Herter Warns Against Over-Commitment on Goods for Foreign Aid

Questions Ability Of United States To Meet Wheat Needs of Italy

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Herter Committee yesterday declared France and Italy urgently in need of stopgap assistance, but warned against overcommitment of goods in short supply.

Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), who led a bipartisan House group to Europe, questioned United States ability to meet Italian wheat requirements.

He said other foodstuffs might be substituted, but European "disillusionment" would follow failure to deliver any promised supplies.

Testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in support of interim aid, Herter said United States wheat available for export "will not be available (for Italy) in the quantity set fourth in the State Department request."

He said his group estimated the deficiency at some 20 million bushels. This would reduce the 227 million Italian aid figure as much as 74 million dollars, he said, unless it is made clear in the bill that money authorized could be used for other substitute foods.

Five More Reports Issued

Herter said neither he nor his committee wanted to reduce the Italian ration but feel it would be "cruel and unfair to these people to appropriate for commodities not available here."

The Massachusetts Republican laid down detailed reports prepared by his group on political and economic conditions in France and Italy. He concluded the Administration "reasonably" estimated their interim needs.

Five additional reports on United States long-range "availabilities" of grain, steel, petroleum, coal and fertilizer were released by the Herter group.

The grain report termed a serious 1948 shortage of wheat "a probability" and said the outlook appears insufficient to result in an increased ration, "even in those countries where it is much needed as basic to reconstruction."

Sacrifices May Be Needed

The steel report said "very heavy and perhaps intolerable sacrifices will have to be made by American consumers of steel" in 1948 unless means can be found to increase west Germany production, or European (CEEC) steel end-use programs are reduced.

The petroleum report said that if export demand for gasoline, gas oil, kerosene and residual fuel oil continue at present levels in the next six months "it is doubtful whether civilians could go through this period without a considerable reduction in the consumption of these products."

The coal report said requests for coal from this country to meet western Europe deficits "are within

Harriman Wouldn't Aid Nations Turning Red

Secretary of Commerce Harriman told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that he would quickly "lose interest" in helping any western European country that turned Communist.

He also said the United States should cut off exports which could add directly to the military strength of Russia. But he rejected a suggestion from Representative John Davis Lodge (R., Mass.) that the United States should use an "economic pistol" against Russia or her satellites.

Tito Makes Overtures

While the Secretary was testifying on Capitol Hill, Marshall Tito's Yugoslavia was making overtures at the State Department for an improvement of economic relations with the United States. Foreign Minister Stanoye Simic and Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler spent more than an hour with Secretary Marshall, accompanied by Ambassador Sara Kasanovich.

Harriman urged the House committee that "our resources should be conserved so that we will be able to ship the things needed for the recovery of the free peoples of the world."

"I would not cut off trade with Russia altogether," he said. "We don't want to build an iron curtain west of the iron curtain, but seek development of trade which will aid in general world recovery.

Ready With Friendly Hand

"We must recognize that some countries in the Soviet sphere would like to have worked with us, but were refused permission by Moscow," said Harriman, referring to the refusal of Russia and her satellites to participate in the Paris Conference which drew up the European recovery program.

"We should still work with any nation in eastern Europe which frees itself of Soviet domination, for we must extend a friendly hand to nations which are forced into an iron vise against their will."

On the other side of the Capitol Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg

But Won't Campaign

Gov. Warren Agrees to Accept GOP Presidential Nomination

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP).—Gov. Earl Warren announced today his willingness to become a "favorite son" candidate for the Republican nomination for President, but firmly conditioned his candidacy on a personally inactive role.

He also made it clear to newsmen that he was "not interested" in being a candidate for the Vice Presidential nomination under any circumstances.

State party leaders had urged Warren to become a candidate.

"I shall be proud to have (the California delegation) present my name to the convention for this purpose," he told Republican State Chairman Arthur W. Carlson with regard to the presidential candidacy.

"I will not, however, seek delegates in other States," he added. He gave no reason for this qualification.

"If a person in my position, being willing to have an active campaign waged on his behalf by the California delegation, can be termed an active candidate, then I am an active candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination," Warren told a press conference.

"If the matter is considered in the light of my willingness to wage an active personal campaign for the nomination, then I cannot be considered a candidate."

He said he had not changed his opinion expressed originally at Chicago three years ago in declining the vice presidential nomination—that the governorship "is the greatest job any Californian can have."

GOV. EARL WARREN
He is willing

Chairman Carlson and Vice Chairman Ed Shattuck of Los Angeles, said after the Governor's announcement that they would go ahead with formation of a campaign committee to push Warren's candidacy after the first of the year.

U. S. to Seek Rare Minerals From Europe

Strategic Materials Procurement Figures In Recovery Program

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Plans for acquiring strategic materials from Europe and its colonies will be a part of the Administration's European recovery program, a State Department official disclosed yesterday.

"We feel that under the long-range recovery program there are definite possibilities of our obtaining such materials," William T. Phillips, an adviser in the Office of International Trade Policies, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"Have you any specific examples in mind?" Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) asked him.

Cobalt From Belgian Congo

"Yes, I do," Phillips answered. "For example, we figure you could increase cobalt production in the Belgian Congo by a million pounds a year—and we need cobalt. Industrial diamonds would be another; bauxite, chromite, lead, mica, about 47 items in all, could be acquired particularly in colonial territories.

"We are hopeful that by an expansion of production in those territories we can increase our stockpiles."

Senator Vandenberg asked whether more uranium, one of the sources of atomic energy, could be imported from the Belgian Congo in part payment for American aid. Phillips said he was not able to talk on what he called such "higher realm" things. The Senator, grinning broadly, asked Phillips to tell top officials "that before this show is over"—namely committee hearings on the "Marshall

Germans Told Police State Is Aim of Reds

U.S. Warns Communism Threatens to Enslave People as Did Nazism

Berlin, Nov. 13 (AP).—The American military government opened its official campaign against communism today with a broadcast in which Germans were told communism stands for "suppression of the individual and the systematic denial of the basic rights of free men."

The Germans were warned that communism threatened to enslave them as nazism once did.

The broadcast was made by Dr. Edward H. Litchfield, director of Military Government's Civil Administration division, who spoke over the American-controlled Berlin station and the American zone network in the first of a series of weekly radio talks entitled "Freedom Versus Totalitarianism."

Litchfield declared the United States would never agree to the political unification of Germany except "in such a way as to forever eliminate the disregard of individual rights."

Without mentioning the Russians or the administration of their zone, he described Communist "methodology" in detail, including the conduct of elections, press control and "government-sponsored kidnapings."

Western-controlled newspapers here have repeatedly reported mass arrests, political persecutions and labor drafts in the Soviet zone.

Litchfield said that "in a democratic society men do not lie in constant fear of the policeman who comes without warning, fear of long prison terms without trials, fear of systematic beatings without provocation, fear of government-sponsored kidnapings."

Canfield and Wilner Reported Picked for Murphy Trial Board

Attorney Austin F. Canfield and Joseph Wilner, local businessman, have been selected to serve on a three-man trial board to weigh charges against Fire Chief Clement Murphy, a high District official revealed yesterday.

Commissioner John Russell Young refused to comment on the matter but did not deny that Canfield and Wilner had been named.

The Commissioners still are "studying" possible candidates for the third trial board post. Both Young and Commissioner Guy Mason said they expected to announce appointment of the entire board today.

Canfield, former president of the District Bar Association, said he had been called Monday and told his name was under consideration. "I was asked if I would be available if chosen," he said.

"I considered it for a while and then told them I would," he revealed. He said he had received no notification that he'd actually been named to the board.

Wilner said he had been approached in the same manner and had agreed to serve on the board if named. "I believe it is a public duty regardless of the fact it would take a long time," he said. He hasn't been notified officially of his appointment, he added.

Murphy will face the trial board on charges that his actions are "demoralizing" the Fire Department. The charges were made by Capt. Joseph W. Conroy last June.

Murphy's attorney, Martin O'Donoghue, asked for a public hearing of the case Monday after the Commissioners had received a five-month investigation report by the corporation counsel's office, unfavorable to Murphy.

Premier Pins Marseille Riots on Reds

Government Won't Tolerate Further Violence, Ramadier Assures Deputies

By Walter Kerr

Paris, Nov. 13 (NYHT).—Premier Paul Ramadier, his voice shaking with anger, told the National Assembly when it reconvened here this afternoon that the Communist Party was responsible for riots in Marseille last night during which one man was killed and 18 others were injured.

He rejected a long discussion of the situation because of lack of information as to what is actually going on, but he promised the government would tolerate no further violence.

Reports reaching Paris said Marseille today was relatively calm but that strikes were increasing and there was growing unrest.

[As strikes spread at Marseille, the United Press reported a bread famine threat to Paris. Employers of 137 flour mills in the Paris area went on strike, leaving the severely rationed capital with only 12 days' supply of flour on hand.

[Ships which had booked 3000 passengers were reported stranded at Marseille by walkouts of seamen and stevedores, and a general strike vote was scheduled for tomorrow.]

A Communist spokesman in the assembly, Francois Billoux, replied to Premier Ramadier.

It was true, he said, that the people of Marseille had attacked the City Hall and the Palace of Justice, but he denied that Communists had fired the shots.

He laid the blame on followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader

Red Rioting Spreads To Southern Italy

Rome, Nov. 13 (AP).—Violence flared south of Rome today in an apparent campaign against Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government. And Palmiro Togliatti, Communist leader, referred cryptically to "democratic revolution."

Several wounded were hospitalized when police in armored cars fired on Communists rioters in the heart of Naples in the bloody political feuding between leftists and rightists.

Some of the leftists used tear gas bombs against police. Newspaper stands were burned, stones hurled and the Monarchist headquarters in the midtown "Galleria Umberto" devastated. Crowds raced through offices of the Italian Social Movement—called "Fascist" by the left—and of the right-wing "Common Man" movement in the Montesanto, Vomero, Fuorigrotta, Bagnoli and Pozzuoli sections of the city. At several places they broke in and set fire to furniture.

Addressing the constitutent assembly in Rome Interior Minister Mario Scelba declared "attempts against the state and against democracy will not be tolerated" and he added:

"The government cannot permit that with the pretext of fighting Fascism a system of terrorism is established in Italy with all the characteristics of Fascism."

Togliatti, asked by reporters if "the violence of the last three days means the Communists are resorting to direct action?" answered "we will stay on the parliamentary plane as long as that is possible."

But he turned to a reporter from

British Plan To Quit Aug. 1 In Holy Land

United Nations Told Her Troops Will Not Enforce Partition Program

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Britain today told the United Nations her troops will evacuate Palestine by next August 1 and will not be available at any time to enforce partitioning of that country.

However, Sir Alexander Cadogan made it clear to the Palestine subcommittee that the British will not obstruct a United Nations decision approved by two thirds of the General Assembly, provided her troops are not required to enforce the settlement against Jews or Arabs.

Action Taken Immediately

Immediate action to make the partition more acceptable to the British and provide the necessary troops and administration which will move into the vacuum when the British leave was taken tonight.

Herschel Johnson of the United States and Semyon Tsarapkin of Russia agreed to eliminate from their previous compromise all British responsibility for implementing the plan.

They agreed that a United Nations commission should be entrusted with sufficient power to take up administration of areas evacuated by the British, as rapidly as the British leave. The commission, to consist of five members, is to appoint provisional councils in the Jewish and Arab states which will furnish the necessary administration under commission guidance.

In addition, and possibly most important, the provisional council of each new state is to recruit troops from among their "residents" which will move into the evacuated areas and become responsible for law and order.

Agree on Immigration

The U. N. commission is also to be given power, the United States and Russia agreed, to decide on the number of Jewish immigrants to be admitted up to the total of 6250 a month recommended by an investigating commission recently. It will also be given power to modify British regulations on the sale of land.

They agreed also to retain previous agreements which provided that the British terminate their mandate over the Holy Land by May 1 and that independence be given tot he Jewish and Arab states by July 1.

The Soviet-American agreement was made only a few hours after Cadogan declared that British troops would maintain law and order only in the areas which they occupy.

However, he warned:

"The fact that it would be impracticable to withdraw the last military contingents from Palestine before next summer does not by any means imply that we shall continue to maintain a civil administration in Palestine throughout the intervening period.

"On the contrary, we reserve the right to lay down the mandate and to bring our civil administration to an end at any time after it has become evident that no settlement acceptable to both Jews and Arabs has been reached by the Assembly."

During the period between the end of the mandate and evacuation of the last troops, the British would

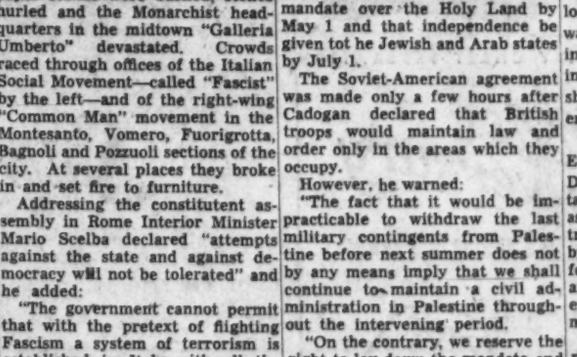
Two Britons Win Nobel Prizes In Chemistry and Physics



Andre Gide | Sir Robert Robinson | Sir Edward Appleton

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 13 (AP).—Nobel prizes in physics and chemistry were awarded tonight to two British scientists while the literature award went to Andre Gide, a French author who formerly was an enthusiast for communism.

Sir Edward Appleton, 55, who helped lay the groundwork for radar, received the award in physics. He was cited for "his contributions in exploring the ionosphere, i. e., electrically conductive strata in the upper atmosphere on the earth."

Sir Robert Robinson, 61, an organic chemist, received the chemistry award "for his research regarding biological significant substances from the vegetable kingdom, especially alkaloids."

Appleton is from Cambridge University and Robinson from Oxford. This marked the second time since the Nobel prizes first were awarded in 1901 that both the chemistry and physics awards went to Britain. The prizes are worth about $40,000 each.

Gide was honored by the Swedish Academy of Literature "for his extensive and artistically important authorship, in which he has exposed the problems and conditions of humankind with fearless love of truth and psychological preception."

Gide, a bald bespectacled bachelor, announced in the early 1930's that he had become a Communist. In 1933 he gave a memorial speech at the funeral of Russian Author

Meyers Lied on Gains In Aircraft Stock, AAF Hid Data, Witness Says

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Army Air Forces not only failed to probe but tried to keep from Congress charges that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers had used his wartime office to make "immense profits" in aircraft stocks, evidence before the Senate War Investigating Committee showed yesterday.

An Army Air Force officer yesterday was compelled to produce official documents showing that the Air Forces in 1943 were busy "squelching rumors of high-ranking officers holding large blocks of aircraft stocks."

At the same time in 1943 the Air Forces were assuring their procurement officers they were not under investigation. It was just that "certain rumors have been fomented which tend to undermine morale within the AAF and impair confidence in the high command thereof with regard to procurement."

May Summon Arnold

The committee investigation showed that at this very time General Meyers, second-ranking procurement officer for the AAF, held $35,074.50 worth of aviation stock, according to testimony.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the Air Forces, called upon his procurement officers to "supply confidentially" information on past or present holdings in aircraft or aircraft accessory companies, but the officers were assured "this is by no means to be regarded as anything in the nature of an investigation."

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) disclosed last night that his subcommittee was considering calling General Arnold, now retired.

On January 15, 1943, Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer sent a letter to the 10 ranking Army Air Force Procurement officers asking them to make secret disclosure of any holdings they might have in aviation stocks.

Meyers, according to the evidence, advised his superiors on January 5, 1943, that he owned only 200 shares of General Electric stock, 100 shares of it bought in 1938 and another 100 in 1939.

Records Tell Different

But Carmine S. Bellino, a certified public accountant formerly with the FBI, said stock broker's records showed that Meyers actually had at that time $35,174.50 in the stocks of seven major aviation companies.

Ferguson read into the record a Federal statute making it a criminal offense, punishable by a maximum sentence of two years' imprisonment and a $2000 fine, for a Federal contracting official to have any financial interest in the concerns with which he deals.

He called Maj. Gen. Junius W. Jones, air inspector, as a witness and asked if he agreed with previous legal interpretations that the statute barred procurement officers from holding stocks in concerns with which they dealt as agents for the Government.

Jones, who had faced a severe grilling over failure of his department to investigate any charges against Meyers, said he believed it applied.

Anonymous Letter Gives Tip

Jones and his executive officer, Col. John H. Price, faced their most severe grilling on their refusal to turn over to the committee back in May information concerning General Meyers.

The record showed that FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover had turned over an anonymous letter to the Air Forces written on June 22, 1945, charging that Meyers had made from "one to two million dollars" by virtue of his procurement connections.

The letter was sent to the Air Forces files without investigation by General Arnold's office, according to the testimony.

When the committee sent a request to the office of the Air Inspector for some specific information concerning General Meyers, the office of the air inspector did

Fleet Admiral to Retire

Denfeld to Replace Nimitz As Navy's Operations Chief

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Admiral Louis Emil Denfeld, Pacific Fleet commander, was named Chief of Naval Operations yesterday, succeeding Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

President Truman announced the appointment at his press-radio conference. He said Denfeld would relieve Nimitz shortly. The wartime Pacific leader is retiring and wants to get away as soon as possible, the President said.

Selection of the 56-year-old New Englander for the Navy's highest post had been generally forecast, as he was out in front in a three-cornered race for the job—one of the hottest in Navy history.

Other candidates whose names were before the President were Admirals Dewitt Ramsey and William Blandy.

Denfeld now is here heading a board which is picking Navy captains for promotion to rear admiral. He told reporters last night he expected to complete that job and leave for his Pearl Harbor headquarters about November 20, return here December 8 and take over from Nimitz about the fifteenth.

"I'm very much honored by the appointment," he said. "We'll have a lot of difficult problems in the next few years and I'll do my best to solve them. It's a great honor to relieve a man like Admiral Nimitz. He's one of the greatest men the Navy ever produced."

One of Denfeld's first problems

Dalton Fired In Budget 'Leak' Scandal

Attlee Aide Dropped For Telling Secrets; Cripps Takes His Post

London, Nov. 13 (AP).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton was dropped from the British cabinet tonight in a swiftly developing budget "leak" scandal that shook Labor's crisis-harried government.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Minister of Economics, was named to succeed Dalton as treasury chief. He retained his recently assumed duties as coordinator of Britain's industrial export drive. Cripps, hailed by Labor and Conservatives alike for his recent exposition of Britain's economic position, thus emerged as the undisputed "strong man" of the government.

Dalton, officially the fourth ranking member of Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet, resigned after apologizing to the Commons for "a grave indiscretion" in disclosing tax secrets to a reporter a few minutes before he announced an emergency interim budget in Parliament yesterday.

Repercussions Likely

His resignation was the first major change and the biggest sensation since Labor came to power more than two years ago.

The full effect of this first break in the ranks of the big five—Attlee, Cripps, Dalton, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Lord President of the Council Herbert Morrison—could not be estimated immediately.

The possibility of further repercussions that might precipitate a government crisis was seen in a demand from Conservative Leader Winston Churchill for an investigation by a Commons committee.

The cabinet storm blew up quickly after Dalton's apology to Commons. It brought a hastily

Army Reaches 70%, Special Gifts Unit 80%, of Quotas

(Related Story on Page C-4)

Campaign workers for the Community Chest Federation reported pledges totaling 47.31 per cent of the $3,900,000 goal for 1948 at the second report luncheon, held in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building yesterday.

With only one quarter of the campaign reporting sessions over, almost one half the quota has been subscribed and officials said yesterday they hoped this would mean oversubscription by the final luncheon on November 25.

A special report made by J. Cortlandt Parker, of the Special Gifts Unit yesterday, showed a total of $815,000 pledged by large donors, approximately 80 per cent of the quota for this category of gifts. The total is unaudited as yet.

The total reported for the campaign thus far, $1,845,273, represents $229,875.79 in pledges turned in yesterday over the Wednesday total of $1,615,398.

The Government unit, headed by Undersecretary of the Navy W. John Kenney, is still leading the federation campaign. Capt. Lewis N. Parks, reporting yesterday for the drive among the Federal workers, announced they had pledged $949,514.76, or 69.93 per cent of their $1,357,800 goal.

More than 20 of the Federal agencies have oversubscribed their goals already this year.

Other unit totals reported were: Business Unit 1, $642,970, or 42 per cent; Alexandria, $24,103, or 42 per cent; Residential, $184,432 or 34.31 per cent; Prince Georges County, $12,635 or 28.71 per cent;

Plunges 55 Feet

General's Widow, 81, Leaps To Death From Hotel Window

Mrs. Mamie Chapin McClure, 81, widow of Brig. Gen. Nathaniel F. McClure, leaped 55 feet to her death yesterday from a window of the Wardman Park Hotel.

Police said it was the third time in recent months Mrs. McClure had tried to end her life. Deputy Coroner Christpoher J. Murphy said he would issue a verdict of suicide.

Her crushed body was found at 2:30 p. m. by a house employe on the one-story theater roof adjoining the hotel's west wing.

Homicide Detective Sergt. George Cook said a half-screen had been removed from a window on a landing four floors above the theater roof. He said a note blaming illness and loneliness was found in a room in Mrs. McClure's third-floor suite.

A native of New York, Mrs. McClure had lived here, most of the time at the Wardman Park, since here husband's retirement from active Army service in 1929.

A Wardman Park Hotel assistant manager said Mrs. McClure had lived alone since her husband's death in June, 1942.

Cook said Mrs. McClure had undergone treatment by Dr. Robert F. Owen, hotel physician, at various times during the past five years.

The note found in her room, Cook said, was scrawled in an apparently nervous hand and listed two nieces and two friends here to be notified. Cook said he was unable to decipher some of the names. One of the friends, he

U. S. to Seek Rare Minerals For Stockpiles From Europe

Plan"—"we will want information on this subject.

The Harriman committee report last week estimated 253 million dollars worth of strategic materials would be available for the United States each year from the territory of the 16 non-Soviet nations of Europe and their colonies, provided dollars were spent in developing production.

This would be almost 15 times as much as the United States is now acquiring annually for its stockpiles.

Phillips did not say today how these materials should be acquired, nor did the Harriman committee of private citizens propose any specific method. The Administration still is studying the problem before completing its "Marshall Plan" proposals which President Truman will submit to Congress.

So far officials have not yet made up their minds which of two alternative methods to use for getting the materials.

One would be to ask the European countries to send strategic materials to the United States as free gifts, in partial return for American help. The metals would be mined, paid for and shipped out of the local currency funds which the respective countries will get from selling American supplies to their own people.

Another way would be to encourage the European countries to sell their strategic materials on the world market (meaning chiefly the United States), thereby earning dollars and cutting down their need of American dollars for other purposes.

Either way the United States would be expected to help develop the European and colonial resources, and either way the United States would be able to add to its strategic stockpiles.

Under the Stockpiling Act of 1946 Congress already has apportioned 275 million dollars for such purposes, but when this fund is used up next year it will have provided only about one fifth of minimum American needs.

The Harriman report listed the following materials that could be obtained under a European recovery program:

BAUXITE—There is an ample supply in the Guianas and the Netherlands Indies.

COBALT—A million pounds of added capacity could be provided from the Belgian Congo, the world's chief source; output from Northern Rhodesia also could be expanded.

COPPER—The 16 European countries and their dependencies are now producing little more than two thirds of their aggregate capacity.

CHROMITE—About 300,000 tons are bottle-necked at the mines in Rhodesia because of transportation difficulties. At least 100,000 tons could be acquired annually for the United States from this source. Turkey's output could be raised by 40,000 tons with more mining equipment and New Caledonia could add 10,000 tons to its present annual output of 50,000 tons.

INDUSTRIAL DIAMONDS—If the 1945 production figure of 10 million carats could be regained, the United States could get 4 million carats for its own essential uses.

LEAD—The biggest potential new supply is in Burma, where the repair of war damage to the mines will take almost three years. From French North Africa 25,000 additional tons should be available late in 1949 or early in 1950.

MANGANESE—The Gold Coast, in west Africa has harbor facilities for loading 750,000 tons annually, of which the United States could get 250,000.

TIN—Production in the Far East (chiefly Malaya and the Netherlands Indies) is not expected to reach its prewar levels until late in 1949.

TUNGSTEN—Portugal could supply more than she is now mining, but at high cost.

Yesterday's Senate committee hearings on the stopgap relief program for Europe showed members concerned over what the United States could get in return for its help.

Asks Review by Congress

Senator Vandenberg told Administration witnesses that "exploration of the quid pro quo is just as important as exploration of the quo pro quid."

He said reciprocal aid from Europe could be assured in negotiating the bilateral "contracts" between the United States and the receiving countries under the long-term program. At least the general principles of such agreements should be reviewed by Congress, he suggested, before legislation for the recovery program is approved.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.), worried by the shortage of oil in the continental United States, suggested the United States be reimbursed later in Middle Eastern oil for whatever American oil it may send to Europe now.

"Has anyone thought," Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) asked, "of getting in return strategic points, airfields and so on, throughout the universe—I mean, throughout the world?"

Assistant Secretary of the Interior William E. Warne, who was testifying on the Krug committee report on natural resources, answered that foreign bases were not mentioned in the Krug report.

Warne assured committee members the 597-million-dollar stopgap relief program would cause "only a relatively minor drain on our national resources, human and physical," although it would aggravate present supply problems in wheat and coal.

Roxas Party Cuts Lead Of Opposition Group

Manila, Nov. 13 (AP).—Returns from outlying areas piled up today on the side of President Roxas' Liberal Party, cutting into the early lead which the combined opposition parties took in Tuesday's national elections.

Two Nacionalista candidates seemed assured of election to the Senate, leaving six of the vacant seats for the Liberal Party, which already controls 10 of the 24 Senate seats. Meanwhile, the number killed in the election campaign rose to 39 with reports of the slaying of three more persons.

British to Quit Palestine

end their civil administration for Palestine, he said, thereby leaving that country without any central government. British administration, he added, would be confined to areas still under military occupation.

British Plans Outlined

As British troops gradually withdraw, the administration would leave with the troops.

The Russian-American compromise contemplated that representatives of five small nations, which are in favor of partitioning Palestine, would act on an interim administration between the end of British administration and the time independence is granted.

Cadogan declared, however, that the commission "must not expect British authorities either to exercise administrative responsibility or to maintain law and order except in the limited areas of which they would necessarily remain in occupation during the process of withdrawal."

Jorge Garcia Grenados of Guatemala asked if Britain would accept recommendations of the General Assembly provided "they do not require that she play an active role to enforce those recommendations."

Cadogan replied that if the Assembly by its required two-thirds vote approved the partition plan, Britain, "will not take contrary actions."

He declined to accept the compromise plan for termination of the mandate "unless we know the exact date."

No obstruction will be offered to the United Nations Commission work, he said, with the general reservation that the British must retain a sufficient degree of control in their zone of occupation to insure the safety of troops and the safety of their withdrawal.

6 Britons Killed, 22 Hurt In Jerusalem, Haifa

Jerusalem, Nov. 13 (AP).—Six British men were reported killed and 22 others wounded tonight as the cities of Jersualem and Haifa exploded in the most violent outbreak of disorders directed against the British in six weeks.

Denfeld to Replace Nimitz as Naval Operations Chief

tions—will go to an aviator under Navy policy. Vice Admiral Arthur W. Radford, now an Atlantic fleet task force commander, is a likely choice.

Won't Have 5-Star Rank

Unlike Nimitz, Denfeld will not have five-star rank as chief of naval operations. A recent act of Congress abolished the grade of fleet admiral in peace time.

The President also announced the appointment of a National Security Resources Board to plan for "the most effective mobilization" and use of manpower in any future war. At the same time, he issued an executive order setting up the new agency, created by the National Security Act passed last summer.

Six Cabinet members were named to serve under Chairman Arthur W. Hill in advising the President on coordination of military, industrial and civilian mobilizations. They were: Secretary oof the Treasury Snyder, Defense Secretary Forrestal, Interior Secretary Krug, Agriculture Secretary Anderson, Commerce Secretary Harriman and Labor Secretary Swellenbach.

The retirement of Nimitz will be the first of a series which probably will give all of the armed services new chiefs before another year passes.

President Truman said yesterday he would announce a successor to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army chief of staff later. Ike has said he will retire early next year, probably about April 1.

Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, commandant of the Marine Corps, also is due for retirement shortly. The President said yesterday his successor was under consideration.

Spaatz May Retire

The Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Carl Spaatz, has indicated privately that he may retire next summer.

Denfeld was with Admiral Nimitz yesterday when his appointment was announced. He put in a radio telephone call to Honolulu to tell his wife and staff about it, but found the newspapers were ahead of him.

"Louie" Denfeld is one of the best liked officers in the Navy. He is a personnel expert as well as a sailor, and with him "personnel" means "personal"—human contacts.

His handling of the demobilization program just after the war won him plaudits from Government leaders both on Capitol Hill and downtown. As chief of naval personnel, Denfeld had to meet the public clamor to "bring Johnny home" and still keep the Navy operating.

This success and frequent appearances before congressional committees brought hi mthe support of Capitol Hill leaders in the selection of a successor to Admiral Nimitz.

Under Denfeld's regime as Navy personnel chief a number of drastic and forward-looking policy changes were made. They included the decision to take half of the future naval officers from civilian colleges instead of virtually all from the Naval Academy. There also were greater emphasis on the role and importance of the reserves and the way was opened for larger numbers of enlisted men to reach officer rank.

A native of Westboro, Mass., Denfeld graduated from the Naval Academy in 1912. He served on a destroyer in the Atlantic during World War I, and qualified as a submariner in 1922. From 1935 to 1937, he was aide to Admiral William D. Leahy, then chief of naval operations and now chief of staff to President Truman. Leahy is a close friend.

When World War II broke out, Denfeld was given command of a destroyer division in the Atlantic Fleet and served on neutrality patrol until 1941. Early in 1942, he was appointed assistant chief of naval personnel.

In the early spring of 1945, he took command of a battleship division and conducted assaults against the Japanese home islands. Recalled to Washington to handle the demobilization problem, Denfeld took over his present command last winter.

De Gaulle Maps Bloc Against Reds

London, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—The organization of western Europe into an anti-Communist economic bloc has been tentatively proposed to the United States and Great Britain by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of France's rightwing opposition, an informed American source said today.

The source said that representatives of De Gaulle have unofficially advised British and American officials that "achievement of an Anglo-American-Franch stand" against Communism would have first priority in French foreign policy if De Gaulle achieves power.

These representatives reportedly said that the French leader considers an anti-Communist merger of the Marshall Plan nations more important even than the "German settlement" tradtionally sought by French politicians.

"We were given to understand that the general fully realizes the importance of Germany to the success of the Marshall Plan, and that—as he said in his press conference yesterday—he considered Russia and Communism a greater threat to France at this time than the possible resurgence of Germany," the source said.

De Gaulle told some 200 newsmen yesterday that Great Britain, France and the United States should ally themselves against Communism and in anticipation of a possible new war.

De Gaule's stand reassured United States diplomats on the chances of successful establishment of an independent state of western Germany in the event that the Big Four Foreign Ministers fail to reach agreement at their meeting here later this month.

Boycott Threat Of Soviet Ignored In 41-to-6 Vote

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly tonight ignored a Russian boycott threat and approved by a large majority Secretary of State Marshall's proposal for a year-round sitting of the "Little Assembly."

The vote was 41 to 6.

The six nations of the Russian group voted against it while the Arab nations abstained.

The Assembly then turned to the U. S.-supported plan for a U. N. commission to "facilitate" the independence of Korea.

Vishinsky Assails Plan

Before the vote, which climaxed a stiff battle by the Soviet group against the U. S. proposal, Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky assailed the majority-approved plan as "scandalous." He announce dagain that Russia would boycott it.

In the debate, delegates of Poland, White Russia, and the Soviet Ukraine also said their countries would not serve on the "Little Assembly."

This meant the so-called "Little Assembly" would have a total of 51 countries willing to be represented, with the six-nation Soviet bloc absent.

Vishinsky thus rejevted completely and quickly a new appeal for cooperation on the "Little Assembly" by John Foster Dulles, U. S. delegate. The Soviet chief delegate told the full Assembly that Russia is determined that the U. N. will not become a "bureau" of the U. S. Secretary of State.

Soviet Ukraine Elected

Dulles opened the final round of one of the hardest-fought battles in the U. N. with a plea to the delegates to give the "Little Assembly" final approval and for the Soviets to cooperate. He said again it would not conflict with the Security Council, as Russia has charged.

Elsewhere on the U. N. front:

The Soviet Ukraine was elected to the Security Council to replace Poland January 1, after United States-supported India withdrew from the contest.

The Philippines and Costa Rica were elected to the Trusteeship Council.

Indian Protest Lodged

After the Security Council election, Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit, chief delegate of India, protested against what she called a big power arrangement by which the six two-year seats on the Security Council are distributed on a geographical basis. She contended that the Indian Ocean area is not properly represented.

GENDARMES BATTLE DEMONSTRATORS—As part of a day of rioting in Marseille, mobile guards and police fight to hold back a crowd of demonstrators. a liberal newspaper and said, "For the rest, you who are a liberal show me that it is possible to organize democratic revolution."

Leftists Shout Invectives

Disorder has fed on disorder in Italy for the past nine days. In that period at least seven persons have been assassinated or killed in riots in various sections of the troubled country.

Pro-government sources described the violence as a burgeoning assault from the left against De Gasperi's cabinet and was part of the "winter plan" of Togliatti.

Leftist deputies in the constituent assembly shouted protests and invectives at Scelba as the cabinet officer answered Communist charges that the government was responsible for the disorders.

Armored cars were drawn up in People's Square, a favored site for leftist gatherings in Rome, and heavy concentrations of police, armed with rifles, were stationed throughout the capital to confront possible demonstrations.

Industrial northern Italy, where violence flared yesterday, was quiet but tense. Work stoppages in protest against violence took place in Genoa.

Ramadier Pins Riots on Reds

of the Rally of the French People (RPF) whom he described as "gangsters."

Premier Ramadier jumped to his feet.

"I know that the manifestation was provoked by a political organization which you know well," he said.

"I know the attacks against the City Hall and the Palace of Justice were carried out by a party which is against the Republic."

Shouts from Communist benches drew the Premier's attention and he turned to them to cry out:

"We will defend the Republic against you! If you seek a dictatorship, we are the ones who will fight it!"

Postpones Discussion

On the plea that he needed more information on which to base a report, he obtained a postponement of further discussion of the case until next Tuesday.

And so, as the Assembly reconvened from its vacation period today, the opening phase of a testing period began to determine whether the so-called "Third Force," as the French call it, has the power to continue to govern France for long.

This "Third Force" is the grouping of center and left-of-center parties now headed by Premier Ramadier. The other two forces are the Communists and the followers of De Gaulle.

"Third Force" leaders are trying now to broaden the base of the Ramadier cabinet or to find a new man to lead the government.

Last night the Popular Republicans, one of the pillars of the "Third Force" (along with the Socialists), called for a new centrist government of greater strength. It was not their intention to reject Premier Ramadier, but to strengthen his hand and if that is not possible, to find a man to replace him.

Events such as occurred last night in Marseille may be expected to speed a cabinet shuffle, but the more they occur the more difficult it will be to maintain the present majority. It is shaky at best and De Gaulle's mounting influence is sapping its strength.

[Marseille Mayor Michel Carlini, a supporter of General De Gaulle, was hospitalized for treatment of head bruises and cuts, according to the United Press. His assistant, Pierre Milani suffered deep head wounds and police said eight De Gaullist councilmen were injured as Communist mobs stormed the city hall and other public buildings.

[Carlini told newspapermen that members of the crowd which manhandled him shouted, "We are going to give him to the crows," as they punched and scratched.]

Greeks Open Large-Scale Guerilla War

Athens, Greece, Nov. 13 (U.P.)—Press dispatches from Kozani said today that the Greek army had opened a large-scale offensive, supported by planes, and operations are under way in eight villages.

The dispatches said that more than 70 guerilla prisoners had been taken and quoted the military as expressing confidence that the entire area would be cleared soon of guerillas.

Meanwhile, police broke up an alleged Communist mass meetilng in Athens, and reportedly arrested 30 persons for trial by court-martial.

Dwight Griswold, chief of the American Aid Mission, today made public the text of a letter he sent to Prime Minister Themistocles Sophoulis, reaffirming the mission's policy for control of revenue and expenditures in view of the government's new budget.

The letter asserted that expenditurs not provided for in the budget, adopted last week, "will be made only with the rior approval of the mission."

Griswold added that it will be the Greek government's duty to attempt to increase revenue collections and "continue to study the over-all revision of tax laws and system with full regard to the equitable distribution of the tax burden and principle of ability to pay."

Old Hands at Stork Game

New York (U.P.).—Two Brooklyn policemen, William Ruisi and Edward Ruane, raced to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Vivian and arrived just in time to deliver a 7-pound girl. It was the seventeenth time in the 11 years they have been assigned to a radio car that the two policemen have collaborated at emergency births.

Harriman Against Aid to Nations Going Red

(R., Mich.) expressed "great surprise" at newspaper reports that the United States was continuing to send Lend-Lease supplies to Russia. Such shipments, he said at a hearing of his Foreign Relations Committee, were "contrary to the disposition indicated by Congress," and he said he would ask the State Department for full details.

The Yugoslav visit to Secretary Marshall was an appeal for American help in the form of unfreezing 56 million dollars of Yugoslav gold held in the United States since 1941. Simic told reporters afterwards that the question of future Yugoslav trade with the United States and western European countries also was discussed.

Simic said early return of the gold was needed to ease Yugoslavia's "very acute" economic problems. He said the whole field of economic and political problems between Yugoslavia and the United States had been touched on, including the recent shipment of 30 cases of surplus radar equipment sent to the Yugoslav Red Cross by the American Committee for Yugoslav Relief in New York.

Officials here were surprised to see Bebler in the Yugoslav group, for at the United Nations Assembly he has been one of the most violent of all the Soviet-bloc delegates in his denunciations of American policies.

Shipping Industry Hits Plan to Sell Vessels

By the United Press

The shipping industry announced its objections last night to a proposal of President Truman's Committee on Foreign Aid that Marshall Plan countries be sold American war-built vessels if they reduce their own shipbuilding.

Frazer A. Bailey, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, said shipbuilding is one of the primary industries of the Marshall Plan countries and its recovery is a substantial factor in the plan.

Boss of British Research

The Yorkshire-born Appleton is the boss of all British research from atoms to the elimination of smoke in the use of coal.

Appleton carried to a practical conclusion a theory advanced by Oliver Heaviside, a British physicist, and Arthur Edwin Kennelly, an American. It began when Marconi sent radio messages between England and Newfoundland in defiance of mathematicians who had "proved" long distance radio impossible because, the radio waves would not bend to the earth's curvature. Kennelly and Heaviside theorized that some upper layer reflected the waves back to earth and Appleton proved their theory.

Robinson, past president of the British Royal Society, was one of the three Oxford scientists first to synthesize penicillin.

Anna Pauker Assumes Post As Minister

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 12 (Delayed), (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Anna Pauker, the only woman Foreign Minister in the world, took over her new office today, and declared that Romania now is an active partner in the anti-imperialist front led by Russia against "the Anglo-American imperialists."

Mme. Pauker, a Communist of long standing, assumed her post in the presence of the whole Romanian cabinet and an audience of 1000. She was appointed Foreign Minister last Friday.

She said the main aim of Romania's foreign policy was to preserve the peace, national sovereignty and independence of the nation. The nation's relationship with Russia, she said, was a guarantee of Romanian independence.

Romania, she continued, rejected the Marshall Plan because the nation does not wish to be subjected again to outside control. She said Romania desired to be admitted to membership in the United Nations, and had a right to be.

Truman Backs Tax-as-You-Go For Europe Aid

President Truman yesterday firmly supported his Secretary of State's view that the cost of Marshall Plan aid must be paid out of current taxes.

Secretary Marshall had made this recommendation to Congress, and it had also been urged by the Harriman committee report. At his press conference yesterday, the Chief Executive was asked if he agreed.

He replied quickly that of course that is what we will have to do.

On another matter connected with his anti-inflation and foreign aid program—the possibility of re-imposing the excess profits tax—the President was mum. Asked about the matter, he replied he would answer the question in his message on the state of the Union at the beginning of the regular session of Congress in January.

The President was asked for comment on the charge of Senator Taft (R., Ohio) that the amount of aid to Europe proposed in the Administration plan would serve to give support to Moscow charges of American "imperialism."

At first, Mr. Truman said he had no comment. Then he added that he thought the Washington Evening Star had a cartoon that commented very favorably.

The President began his press conference with his announcement of Admiral Denfeld's appointment of Chief of Naval Operations, and his appointment of the National Security Resources Board.

Budget Chief Not Resigning

In reply to a question, he said he would have an announcement at a later date on the Chief of Staff of the Army. Similarly, he said he had under consideration the naming of a new Marine Corps commandant, but that no decision had been reached yet.

To a question on the possibility of Budget Director James E. Webb resigning, the President issued a vehement denial. He is not planning resignation, has never said anything about resigning and is not going to resign and that's positive and final, Mr. Truman said.

Asked about prospects of his going to the Bogota Inter-American Regional Conference next January, Mr. Truman said he did not have that under consideration at all.

Told that people in Florida were upset that he was not going to the dedication of the Everglades National Park on December 6, the President said he would like to go, but could make no firm appointments because of the special session of Congress.

A reporter asked if he had discussed with Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) his running for Governor of Illinois. No, the President replied, but he would be glad to discuss it with him if he wanted to.

"What would you say to him?" a newsman asked.

Amid laughter, Mr. Truman replied that whatever he had to say he would tell Lucas, not the press.

The President said he was not yet ready to announce his nominations to the advisory panel of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

To a question on lowering the tax on margarine, because of the high butter prices, Mr. Truman said he hadn't thought of it, but might at a later date.

A reporter asked if he planned to do anything about the expiration of Title Six of the National Housing Act, which insures homes up to 90 per cent. Undoubtedly, the Chief Executive replied, the matter would be put up to him when he prepared his State Union message, but meantime all he knew about it was what he saw in the papers.

He declined to comment on a question about seven Department of State employes who were fired on security grounds without being told of the charges against them.

He said he was not immediately planning any new statement about China.

Asked whether a loan to Argentina was under consideration, he said he hadn't heard of it. But, he added, they're good; they've got plenty of money. He said he regarded them as a good risk, but didn't think they needed a loan. They had 600 millions dollars in gold on deposit in New York until recently, he said.

Meyers Profits Suppressed By AAF, Witness Reveals not turn over the file showing the letter referred by the FBI.

Jones Shown Letter

Price submitted a memorandum to Jones, dated May 7, 1947, stating:

"This anonymous letter seems to have a bearing on this matter; however, I am reluctant to recommend showing it to the Brewster committee or even referring it to General Osborne (military liaison officer with the committee) in view of the fact that no action was taken by this headquarters.

"It is, of course, quite possible that this is exactly the information that the Brewster committee is checking on; on the other hand it is possible that they know nothing of this letter and are hitting from some other source.

"Your decision on this matter is requested."

Angrily charging "whitewash," Ferguson said the committee had to go all the way up to Air Secretary Stuart Symington before it could get the complete files on Meyers—and at that he said the committee only got all of the file two weeks ago.

"Why didn't you give us this in the first place?" Ferguson demanded. "You knew back last May that we were investigating Gen. Bennett E. Meyers."

Blames General Vandenberg

Jones said the decision had been made not to turn the letter over because it was "just a crack-pot letter."

Pressed as to just who made the decision not to turn over the letter and the notation on it which indicated it had been referred to the files without investigation, Jones said he consulted Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Air Force chief and Lieut. Gen. Ira Eaker, former deputy Air Force commander.

"The decision was made on consultation," he said.

Later under further questioning he said that Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, now deputy chief of staff of the Air Force, made the decision.

"Here's the letter—read it," demanded Ferguson. "Is this the letter of a crackpot?"

The letter, written on the stationery of the Hotel President, Kansas City, Mo., said the writer knew that ordinarily people paid little attention to anonymous letters but he was in the Air Corps and feared "vindictive" reprisals if his name became known.

It charged that Meyers' office had access to the letting of contracts and purchasing of all Air Corps equipment, and that it had been Meyers' "practice for 10 years" to buy stock in companies as soon as the Air Corps bids had come in before bids were released.

Wanted "Decency" in Generals

It also said Meyers controlled a Cleveland company manufacturing oil filters which the Air Force was buying.

The letter pointed out that Meyers was then in a hospital seeking retirement on the grounds of physical disability, and said the writer was trying to promote a little "honesty and decency among Air Force generals."

Ferguson demanded to know if the reluctance to permit the committee to see the letter was because it drew attention to the fact that Meyers was seeking a discharge and would get a pension—and in fact has received an honorable discharge and a pension of $461 a month.

"If an officer is guilty of these irregularities should he get an honorable discharge and a pension," Ferguson shouted.

"Not if he is proved to be guilty," Jones replied.

Earlier in the day, Ferguson had sharply declared that there is a vast difference in the penalities dished out to enlisted men and those given generals.

A Public Matter, Not Personal

Price tried to argue that the memorandum he submitted didn't mean he was suggesting concealing anything from the committee.

"Here's your memorandum. Read it out loud, then tell us what it means," directed Ferguson.

Price objected:

"I'm afraid you can read that into it. Please understand this is a privileged communication. It's personal. Written by me to my boss."

"Personal!" Ferguson stormed. "Personal. How can it be personal? You were dealing with a matter relating to this Government. How can that be personal?"

Price finally read it.

"All right," commented Ferguson. "Now tell us why you didn't recommend that the information be forwarded to this committee."

Price, white and obviously furious, sat silent.

"Well?" demanded the Michigan Senator.

"I have no answer to it," returned Price, biting off each word.

D. C. Asks Cut In Costs for St. Elizabeths

The Commissioners yesterday asked for reduction in the six million dollar annual cost of caring for District patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Directed to Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing, the appeal drew his promise to "cooperate" in studying the cost load. He added, however, that prorating of costs "is a matter for determination of the Bureau of the Budget."

Commissioner John Russell Young expressed hope that the $3.65-a-day rate for District patients might be lowered or frozen at the current level.

Heavy Cuts Necessary

In 1942, the per-day cost for each patient was $1.80.

The letter inviting Ewing to yesterday's meeting said the Commissioners will be "forced to make heavy cuts in (all) department budget requests, in spite of our knowledge that some of these cuts will work an injury to our city and its citizens."

The Commissioners have no control over St. Elizabeths expenditures and the money paid to the hospital "must come out of the pocket of some department which is operating equally vital services on a much lower standard," Young's letter said.

He held no brief with the hospital's staff ambition to make it "the most outstanding of its kind in the United States," he said.

School Program Affected

"But it is not just to impose the entire cost of such an ambitious national program on the overburdened taxpayers of Washington.

The additional costs that have been added to the cost of maintaining a patient at St. Elizabeths, Young asserted, means one less new school that we can build per year to reduce double-shifting of pupils due to over-crowding.

Ewing told the Commissioners the hospital budget had received "close scrutiny" of the Budget Bureau and Congress; that its service was "excellent, but not extravagant."

Air Officer Tells of 'BTOs'

Dominicans Fear Second Expedition

By The Associated Press

The Dominican embassy said last night a new expeditionary force was being organized in Venezuela against the Dominican regime of President Rafael Trujillo Molina.

An attempt to invade the Dominican Republic from Cuba was thwarted by Cuban authorities six weeks ago when two landing craft and more than 1000 men were captured by the Cuban army and navy.

The embassy said leaders of the expeditionary force which failed in Cuba had established headquarters in the Paraguana Peninsula in the State of Falcon, Venezuela.

M. Falcon Briceno, counselor of the Venezuelan Embassy, said his government emphatically denies that any invasion against the Dominican Republic is being organized in Venezuela.

The Venezuelan government broke diplomatic relations with the Dominican government about a year ago.

The Dominican Embassy informed a reporter that war material, most of it purchased in the United States, is being stored in Paraguana by the invaders. It said this equipment includes planes, ships, canon and automatic guns.

English Expect Huge Price Rise In Scotch Whisky

London, Nov. 13.—The price of Scotch whisky is expected to reach eight pounds ($32) a bottle by Christmas as a result of tax increases on spirits laid down in the interim British budget, announced yesterday.

Today the prices of black market whisky, the only type available to most people, rose to an average of five pounds ($20) per bottle from about 3 pounds 15 shillings ($15) a bottle.

Chinese Reds Capture Key Rail Center

Nanking, China, Nov. 13 (U.P.)—Teng Wen-yi, government military spokesman, today announced the fall of Shihkiachwang to Communists and admitted that Communist columns advancing south of the Lungha Railroad threatened all central China.

Teng said six central and south China provincial governors attending an urgent military conference called by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek decided today to place all forces at their disposal under a unified command to combat the Communist threat.

He admitted 10,000 nationalist troops were killed defending Shihkaichwang, a vital rail center 18 miles southwest of Peiping, and said about 3000 more were trapped in the center of the city.

Reconnaissance planes reported that fighting ceased last night after a battle in which Communist artillery batteries bombarded the city with more than 1000 shells. Chinese pilots said Shihkaichwang was a city of ruins, with the bodies of soldiers and "tens of thousands" of its one million civilian population littering shell-pocketed streets.

Capture of the city gives the Communists ample clothing, food and military supplies for a major winter offensive in the south, Teng said.

King Orders 'Dress Brass' For Princess

London, Nov. 13 (AP).—King George himself ended a squall of disagreement today over the advisability of touching up Princess Elizabeth's wedding procession with a little pomp. He ordered the War Office to turn out the royal household cavalry escort in full dress.

Those Britons who are ever ready for a parade or a pageant approved the sovereign's wish to enliven the bleak November scene with blue and scarlet, the gleam of plumed helmets, swords and breastplates, and the gold trimmings of the trumpeters.

More purported details of the palace's prized secret—the Princess' wedding gown—were printed in London newspapers, and Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard declared that it was time the Princess gave up her ideas of trying to keep it secret until her wedding day, next Thursday.

Reporters have been permitted to see portions of the gown and sketches of it under a strict pledge of secrecy. The Evening Standard, however, which announced it would not sign the secrecy pledge and would not send a representative to the display, last night printed a description of the gown. The Daily Mirror published a similar description of the dress.

Family Sues City Because of Oil Well In Back Yard

Newport Beach, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP).—The minor miracle of having an oil well pop up in their own back yard has become such a headache for Mr. and Mrs. William W. Tallman that they want a judge to take the problem off their hands.

The Tallmans filed suit against the city of Newport Beach yesterday, seeking relief from what they describe as "the untenable position in which they have found themselves."

Herter Group Warns Against Over-Commitments on Goods

th ephysical capacity of the United States coal mines and coal resources."

The fertilizer report said one partial solution of the nitrogen fertilizer deficit in western Europe is t ouse fully the capacity of that area. Another, it said, was for the United States to use less of that fertlizer so food for Europe could be produced "there rather than here."

Questioned on "Discrepancy"

Herter made each report available to the committee but was questioned chiefly on the "discrepancy" between his own and the State Department wheat figures.

He declined, "except in executive session," to name the source of his wheat estimates, but said it was "the best."

In other direct testimony, Herter:

1. Said he did not agree with Secretary of State George C. Marshall that interim aid must clear Congress before December 1, to keep Italy on her feet, but termed January 1 a "definite deadline."

2. Agreed his committee's broad recommendations for an eight-man bipartisan corporation to adminster all foreign aid probably cannot clear Congress in time to apply to the stopgap program.

French Assets Cited

3. Urged Congress provide interim assistance by an amendment to the last 332-million-dollar foreign relief act, following the pattern of controls then laid down, rather than pass a new bill.

4. Said the United States must proceed "like a prudent banker, step-by-step," in any long range program, adding: "We may find at a given point that it is a hopeless operation." He said the program should continue "as long as there is any chance of success."

5. Said French citizens have between two billion dollars and $3,400,000,000 in "hidden gold." He said the French also have at least 500 million dollars in privately held assets here. The French share of Swiss-held United States securities may run to another half billion, he said.

Challenged by Bloom

Herter was challenged by Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.) when he said he thought it would be proper for foreign governments to put up some of thei rassets in the United States as collateral for American loans.

Herter had said the Treasury does not feel free to tell the French government the names of the owners of the 500 million dollars in known French assets here but the owners had violated French laws in not reporting their holdings.

"I agree with the Treasury," said Bloom. "Those people had every reason to think their money was as safe here as their body was."

The Harriman Committee recently supported the Treasury's position.

France the Key Nation

The Herter Committee's separate report on France termed that country "the key to Western Europe" and said "her existence as a free country is the foundation of any policy that seeks to maintain the democratic system in that area."

It said the recent municipal elections, in which General de Gaulle and his RPF polled 40 per cent of the vote on an anti-Communist platform "has not lessened the importance of effective action in the economic sphere which might ameliorate the political crisis."

It said the immediate effect of the election, however, "may be to accentuate the instability which has long been the bane of French politics by splitting the French people and the French Assembly into Left and Right groups of more or less equal strength."

The report stressed the tested "recuperative capacity" of France, drained of resources by World War II, it said she has made "great progress" in rebuilding her economic system.

The separate Italian report said Italy has made "considerable progress' but has "major problems within the government to overcome.

Communists Threaten Recovery

"The Communist Party continues to present a threat to recovery and it can be expected that this minority group will do all in its power to negate the efforts of the government and to cause its ultimate downfall," the Italian report continued.

"If further aid makes possible the recovery of the rest of Western Europe, and if further aid is adequately supervised, it seems reasonable to expect that Italy can ultimately reach a position of economic self-support and political stability.

"Without further aid and in the absence of political stability, it appears probable that economic conditions will become so desperate that the Italian people will not be as well able to resist the establishment of a totalitarian government."

Teacher Salaries In Virginia Show Drop in 1947-48

Richmond, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—Average salaries for Virginia's classroom teachers will probably rank thirty-fourth in the Nation for 1947-48, a drop from thirty-first place last year, according to preliminary estimates released today by the State Department of Education.

The figures, compiled by the National Education Association, also show that average salaries for all Virginia instructional personnel, including teachers, principals and supervisors, will drop from twenty-sixth place last year, to a tie with Missouri for thirty-fourth place during the current school year.

Dowell J. Howard, assistant State superintendent, pointed out that the figures are tentative and preliminary. They are based on information supplied in October by State departments of education and State education associations. Howard is working on a survey to get a more accurate picture of the salary situation.

Flier Who Studied Under GI Bill Crashes to Death

Danville, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—A truck driver who learned to fly under the GI Bill of Rights a year ago was killed this afternoon when his small plane struck an electric pole and crashed into a cornfield 17 miles northeast of Danville.

The victim, whose burned body was removed from the twisted wreckage, was identified by a cousin who witnessed the crash as Harold Lee Gery, 24, of Danville.

The cousin, Pete Gery, was a member of a crew of workers who were engaged in stringing new electric lines in the community at the time. He told Sheriff Archer Overbey of Pittsylvania County that the pilot had "buzzed" the crew one time before the fatal sweep.

Gery leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gerl; a sister, Miss Thelma Marion Gery of Washington, D. C., and two brothers, Bill and Donndy Gery of Danville.

Cambridge Church Swept by Blaze

Cambridge, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—Firemen tonight battled flames which swept through the Pilgrim Holiness Church and a nearby beer storage warehouse on the edge of Cambridge's business section.

Members of the Cambridge Fire Department responded to an alarm and an hour later reported that the fire had been brought partly under control. Firemen were attempting to prevent the spread of the blaze to gasoline tanks of a nearby filling station.

Navy Unveils Its 'Flying Swordfish'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Navy Unveils New Rocket And Jet Plane

El Segundo, Calif., Nov. 13 (U.P.). The Navy today unveiled a sword-fishshaped, jet-and-rocket-powered plane so fast that, for a few seconds at a time, it may perform like a bullet instead of an airplane.

Called the 'Skyrocket," and informally dubbed the "Flying Swordfish," it was built for the Navy by Douglas Aircraft Co. as a sister ship to the jet-propelled "Skystreak," holder of the official world's speed record of 650.6 miles an hour.

The Navy refused to disclose the new plane's designed speed, but made it clear that it hopes the sleek, white craft will fly faster than the speed of sound which varies from 760 miles an hour at sea level to 660 an hour at 40,000 feet.

Built for Exploration

In an official announcement, the Navy and Douglas said only that the Skyrocket was built for exploration in the so-called sonic speed range of 650-750 miles an hour and that it should produce "substantially greater speeds" than the Skystreak.

"For periods of a few seconds, the machine may become a pure projectile, independent of the air for power or lift," the announcement added.

A Westinghouse turbo-jet engine, burning aviation gasoline instead of the conventional kerosene jet fuel, will power the Skyrocket for takeoff and flight to somewhere above 25,000 feet.

There, the pilot can ease back on a little lever labeled "rocket-engine throttle" and bring into play—one at a time or all at once—an unspecified number of rocket engines. The rocket fuel is enough for two minutes' flight.

Differs in Appearance

In about a month the plane, now at the Douglas factory, will be disassembled and trucked 100 miles to the Army's desert testing base at Muroc, Calif., for preliminary flight tests before turning it over to the Navy and National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics.

In appearance the Skyrocket differs sharply from the usual jet-powered plane. It is 9 feet longer than the 35½-foot Skystreak and has the same wing span—25 feet. The swept-back wings, attached at the middle of the fuselage, are unique in that they droop nearer the ground as they extend farther toward the tip.

A sword-like extension projects 4 feet ahead of the nose, designed to cut down drag and shock-wave interference in the sonic zone.

'Friendship' Train Lengthens

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Nov. 13 (AP). Plans for new Friendship Trains were being made as the original, laden with a heavy harvest of Nebraska wheat, rolled into the Iowa corn belt today.

The train was 57 cars long as it crossed the Missouri River during the night on its cross-country trip picking up food for Europe. Sponsors were having difficulty keeping abreast of unannounced plans for adding to its load of food.

"We keep running into food cars we don't expect," said Tom Slater of the President's Food Committee. "With the unscheduled stops we've had to make, it's a good thing the railroads are being generous with their facilities. And there will be more Friendship Trains."

One unscheduled stop was at Sidney, Nebr., yesterday where three carloads of wheat were picked up. The Lincoln, Nebr., Citizense Food Committee announced it will send another carload of wheat to a Friendship Train which will leave Wichita, Kans., about November 21.

Slater said the train leaving Wichita will be carrying contributions from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Another train will originate at Louisville, Ky., and travel north through Indianapolis, Ind., to Chicago, and still another will move up the Ohio Valley from near Parkersburg, W. Va., to Pittsburgh.

Slater also disclosed another "Friendship Ship" may be provided by U. S. Lines, in addition to the one provided by American Export Lines. One ship will unload in Italy and the other in France, he said.

Late Civil War Writer's Estate Again Up For Sale

The South Mountain estate at Gapland, Md., of the late George Alfred Townsend, Civil War correspondent, will be sold for the second time since 1943.

The Rev. W. F. Murray, secretary for the Maryland-Virginia Eldership of the Churches of God, present owners of the estate, announced that sealed bids will be accepted until December 1 for purchase of the 100 acres and six dilapidated buildings.

The Eldership, which bought the property for a reported $1500 in 1943 and announced that it would be converted into a youth camp and home for the aged, announced that building plans had been abandoned.

The property offered does not include a shrine to war correspondents, which is surrounded by the estate. The shrine, built by Townsend in tribute to newsmen of his era, was deeded to National Parks Service around 1900.

Recommendation to Delay Cut In Taxes Opposed by Knutson

Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, disagreed yesterday with nationally known businessmen who urged Congress to delay a decision on 1948 income tax cuts pending a study of inflationary trends.

Rep. Knutson

The businessmen, all members of the Committee for Economic Development headed by Paul C. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., recommended a program calling for a six-billion-dollar tax cut in 1948 and an ultimate reduction of 15 billion dollars by the early 1950's. But the group said the decision on next year's tax plans should be delayed until inflationary pressures have been examined.

"I don't agree with this conclusion," Knutson replied in a formal statement.

Theory Held Unsound

"I think that the theory that a reduction in the individual income tax is necessarily inflationary is unsound.

"Its adherents do not pay sufficient attention to the fact that a tax cut of this type reduces the demand for wage increases and acts as a stimulus to production."

He promised, however, to give the report a full study by his tax-writing committee, which already has before it a series of revision proposals drafted by its own special tax study committee. Knutson sponsored the Republican four billion-dollar tax cut bill last summer, which President Truman twice vetoed successfully.

Knutson also found fault with the business group for basing its long-range recommendations on the hypothetical year, "Nineteen-fifty-x."

Some Proposals Praised

"The Ways and Means Committee has before it the very practical problem of general tax revision in the immediate future," he said. "The usefulness to the committee of a set of recommendations relating to a vague and uncertain future . . . is distinctly limited."

He praised the business leaders for coming out in favor of extension of the community property-tax system to all States, and of the need for public debt retirement, efficiency in budget policies, and reductions in Federal spending.

But he said that some of their specific proposals for revising budget-making procedure were so "distinctly unusual" that long and careful study would be necessary before he could pass judgment on them.

VA Hospitals Too Crowded, DAV Aide Says

Veterans Administration hospitals are so crowded that some disabled veterans have to be kept in penal institutions while waiting for admission, National Commander John L. Golob of the Disabled American Veterans said yesterday.

The DAV head called a press conference to ask for increased compensation for disabled former servicemen and for allowances for their dependents, they should be authorized by Congress, preferably at the coming special session, he said.

Golob compared the rise in living costs of 62.6 per cent cited by the Bureau of Labor Statistics between August 15, 1939, and August 15, 1947, with an increase in disability compensation payments amounting, he said, to only 38 per cent in the same period.

Turning to allowances for dependents, the DAV commander said World War II was fought to a large extent by married men, who during the war were provided family allowances. A married man with four children received a total minimum of $168 monthly during the war, he pointed out, while the unmarried man received a $50 minimum.

On discharge, he continued, a totally disabled married veteran was reduced to $138 a month, no more than the single man receives under the same circumstances.

Golob cited England, Canada and New Zealand as nations which have provided for the dependents of disabled veterans.

Reuther Gains Full Control Of UAW Executive Committee

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 13 (AP).—The last barrier to complete control of the CIO United Auto Workers by Walter Reuther forces was cleared today when his candidates scored a decisive 18 to 4 majority on the UAW international executive board.

Election of regional directors at the union convention gave Reutherites better than a 10-to-1 voting margin on the board. They always had been outnumbered on factional issues since Reuther won the presidency more than a year ago.

The only regional directors to withstand the Reuther swing were George Burt of Windsor, Ontario; Richard Reisinger and Paul Miley of Cleveland, and C. V. O'Halloran of Los Angeles.

The four top officers, now all Reuther men, and the 18 regional directors make up the executive board. They have varying voting strength. There are only 16 UAW regions, but the two in Detroit each have two codirectors.

Since he first won the presidency in March, 1946, Reuther often has said he was president "in name only."

Detroit Strike of 30 Puts 8700 Out of Work

Detroit, Nov. 13 (INS).—A strike at the Briggs Manufacturing Co., precipitated by 30 employes complaining it was "too cold," resulted in idleness for 8700 automobile workers in Detroit today.

The 30 strikers were fired when they ignored company orders to return to work and 2700 fellow employed walked out of Briggs Conner ave. plant in sympathy.

The tieup at Briggs halted the output of vehicle bodies destined for Packard, and resulted in layoffs for 6000.

A Briggs spokesman said the idle men are ordered to resume their jobs Monday morning, assuming that the Briggs strike is resolved over the weekend.

United Automobile Workers officials were not available for comment, and it was understood that no immediate efforts were made to negotiate the matter.

The "wildcat" strike came as the UAW-CIO national convention in Atlantic City approved a resolution outlawing strikes without the authority of the UAW international executive board or President Walter P. Reuther.

Luray, Va., Nov. 13 (Spl.).—The Town Council here has adopted a budget calling for expenditure of $58,000 during the fiscal year September 1, 1947, through August 31, 1948. Mayor H. B. Dyche told the council that regular town taxes provide about $11,000.

Gildar Wins Hearing In Liquor Conspiracy

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP).—Sam Gildar, Baltimore liquor dealer charged in North Carolina with conspiracy to dispose of 54,000 cases of whisky to bootleggers, has been granted a hearing on his petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Gildar's attorneys attacked legality of an extradition order signed last Friday by Gov. William Preston Lane, jr. Judge Herman M. Moser set a hearing for November 21. He also related Gildar on $1500 bail.

Detroit Car Dealers Indicted On Sale Irregularity Charges

Detroit, Nov. 13 (AP).—Nine Detroit auto dealers and the wives of two were named in indictments signed by Recorder's Judge W. McKay Skillman, one-man grand jury, who has been probing reported irregularities in sales of new and used cars in the Detroit area.

Warrants against two dealers were issued last night with the remainder being signed today by the grand jury. All are accused of violating State laws governing automobile sales.

The defendants include:

Clarence J. Hacquoil, head of Hacquoil Buick Co., one of the largest auto firms in Detroit; Jerry Lynch, used car dealer; Raymond A. Dickinson, Donald S. Wallace and Joseph Schulte of Dickinson-Wallace Pontiac Co., auto distributors; Waldo S. Andrews and Earl C. Jackson of the Andrews Motor Sales Inc., Buick distributors; Jack Geller and Saul Charnes, coowners of the C & G Motor Sales, used car dealers and Mrs. Martha Geller and Mrs. Ruth Charnes, wives of Geller and Charnes.

The warrants—some of them 20 typewritten pages — include charges that:

1. The Dickinson-Wallace Co., since January of this year, sold more than 100 new Pontiacs at prices high above the factory recommended price, but paid sales taxes only on the list prices.

2. That the Andrews Co. sold 27 new Buicks to James Duncan, a Detroit car broker, for resale in Tennessee and other Southern States, using fictitious names as purchasers.

3. That the Andrews Co. hid its sale of 20 new Buicks to the Charnes and Geller lot by inventing a nonexistent real estate transaction between Andrews and the wives of Charnes and Geller.

New Mexico Lost 3 Hours Racing to 'Battle of Newark'

Newark, N. J., Nov. 13 (U.P.).—The powerless and doomed battleship New Mexico, en route here for what may be a last "battle" before it dies in a scrapyard, was "lost" at sea for three hours today.

Weather forced its three towing tugboats to cast it adrift in heavy seas with a standby crew of 15 men on board. The tugs then lost her but a search plane directed them back after three hours.

Meanwhile, Newark's "Navy"—comprised of two fireboats—was threatening to turn her back from the harbor despite a tentative truce. The truce must be "signed, sealed and delivered" before the New Mexico is admitted, Mayor Vincent J. Murphy said.

It was reported that the Navy had agreed to lease some of the portion of the Newark harbor it controls to the New York Port Authority which has a plan to improve the whole harbor area. Murphy now wants the Newark company which bought the New Mexico for scrap to guarantee that it will do a rush job and not clutter up the harbor with junk.

The old ship is scheduled to arrive at the harbor entrance at 10:45 a. m. and the fireboats will try to turn her back unless Murphy calls them off meanwhile.

New Mexicans Prepare To Join Battle of Newark

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Nov. 13 (AP).—From this considerable distance New Mexicans got ready for action today in the Battle of Newark.

Several individuals and organizations telegraphed protests to Mayor Vincent J. Murphy of the New Jersey city, declaring the blockade of Newark harbor to bar entry of the old battleship New Mexico was a "direct insult" to this State.

Pilot Blamed In Galax Crash

By The Associated Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board said yesterday the pilot compromised with safety to save time and blamed on his errors the crash of an Eastern Airlines DC-3 in which 18 persons were killed last January 18 near Galax, Va.

The plane struck a mountain. CAB said the crash probably was caused by the pilot descending from cruising altitude "without having positively determined the position of the aircraft."

"A contributing factor," CAB said, "was the erroneous navigation of the pilot, which on at least two occasions led him to believe that he was farther south than he actually was."

Annapolis May Offer To Buy USO Buildings

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—Mayor William U. McCready said today the city would offer no more than $5000 for two USO buildings now under lease to the Federal Government. One is the St. Mary's st. structure sought by teen-agers for a recreation center.

Government representatives told McCready his price was too small, but suggested he "put it in writing."

Alexandria School Board Arranging for 3 School Sites

Deals for three public school sites in Alexandria are expected to be completed within a month.

R. Samuel Luckett, chairman of the City Council's school site committee, told the School Board Wednesday night that the city expects to have title to all of the land within a month. If a purchase price cannot be agreed to, the land will be condemned, he said.

The three schools for which the School Board has given top priority, are:

1. White elementary school in northeast Alexandria between Montgomery and Second sts. and Royal and Fairfax sts. The city owns all but two lots of this two-block site.

2. Negro school, bounded by Montgomery, Madison and 1st sts. One and a half of the three blocks needed are privately owned.

3. White elementary school in the southern part of the city. It consists of four blocks bounded by Jefferson and Church sts. and Patrick and Fayette sts., all of which is now owned by the city but must be transferred to the School Board.

Luckett pointed out that the city now owns sufficient land to start immediate construction of buildings.

School Board Chairman Edward W. Reed said preliminary plans have already been made of the first two schools. Appropriations will be sought from council as soon as building estimates are received, he said.

Amnesia Girl Found Serving As Waitress

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—Patricia Anne Black—17-year-old amnesia victim missing from Westhampton College since November 5—was located here today working as a waitress in a coffee shop.

Her father, George A. Black, a vice president of the General Foods Corp., who came down to Richmond from his Scarsdale, N. Y., home on Monday, remarked on being reunited with his daughter:

"It's the best news Mrs. Black and I have had. Pat's all right and there is nothing to worry about."

The attractive slight blonde was identified by Mrs. Ralph Moody, an employe at the Williamsburg Lodge who saw a picture and story of the student in a newspaper. Mrs. Moody called police who found the girl's name among her personal effects.

Police said the girl was unable to tell them anything about herself. She was taken to Dr. J. R. Tucker who described her an amnesia victim. She had been hired at the hotel under the name of "Anne Black."

Miss Black was employed at the coffee shop the day she disappeared from Westhampton.

Suffered Headaches

Black said that his daughter had received a head injury in an automobile accident in 1946 and suffered severe headaches as a result.

He said one of his daughter's friends received a letter from her dated the day before Miss Black's disappearance saying she had been suffering from severe headaches and planned to leave school for home. Black, traveling in the Midwest at the time, thought she might have returned to Scarsdale by the time he reached there Saturday.

When she failed to turn up, he went to Richmond, where an extensive search was launched.

Phone Rate Expert Going to Hearing

The Arlington County Public Utilities Commission will meet today with County Manager A. T. Lundberg to arrange for employment of an expert who will represent the county at telephone rate hearings in Richmond next Thursday and Friday.

Employement of the expert at a sum not to exceed $600 was authorized Wednesday night by the Arlington Couny Board following a zoning meeting. Request for the move originated at a meeting of the Arlington Civic Federation on Tuesday.

The Alexandria City Council has authorized City Attorney Joseph Pancoast to represent that city before the hearing of the State Corporation Commission on a request by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to increase rates.

Farmer Spots His Tobacco, Theft Proved

George E. Moore, Prince Georges County farmer, knows his own tobacco.

Because of that a Clinton, Md., man was convicted yesterday in Prince Georges Circuit Court of stealing 174 pounds of tobacco which Moore identified as his after an inspection of a crowded Marlboro warehouse last April.

Charles H. Wood a farm supply dealer, was charged with the theft when a warehouse employe named Wood as the man who sold him the tobacco after Moore, on a tour of the warehouse, identified the leaf as part of a crop stolen from his barn.

Police Lieut. E. A. Turner said Moore selected the two stacks of leaves from hundreds of others in the warehouse, which contained more than 100,000 pounds of tobacco. The color, size and method of packaging were identifying features.

In finding Wood guilty, Judge Charles A. Marbury disregarded the testimony of another farmer, Horace Cusick, that he had sold the tobacco to Wood, who in turn resold it to the warehouse.

Among witnesses called was Walter E. Posey, tobacco specialist from the University of Maryland, who said there was "great similarity" between a sample of tobacco sold by Wood to the warehouse and another sample of Moore's home-grown crop.

On recommendation of State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, Judge Marbury deferred sentence pending a study of the case by the county probation officer.

Professor Refusing Loyalty Affidavit to Continue in U. S. Job

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Dr. Colston E. Warne, Amherst College economics professor who refused to fill out the Government's loyalty questionnaire, will continue to serve as a consultant to the Council of Economic Advisors, it was learned yesterday.

Prof. Warne

The only penalty for his refusal, it appeared yesterday, will be the denial of his travel expenses and a per-diem allowance for the quarterly meetings of the council's Consumers Advisory Group, of which Warne is a member.

In a letter written Wednesday, Warne told Council Chairman Edwin G. Nourse that he considered the work so important he would defray his own travel expenses.

Questioned on the matter yesterday, Nourse indicated that this was satisfactory to him. Nourse explained that Warne, who is the head of Consumers Union, was not appointed to the post by the council, but instead a selection of the Consumers Advisory Group.

Letters Exchanged

The situation was disclosed in an exchange of letters between Warne and Nourse.

On October 29, Warne advised the council chairman that he declined to execute the Federal loyalty forms "as a matter of principle." He said he was not a Communist, but did not think the Government had any right to demand a proof of loyalty of its employes.

Nourse replied to Warne on November 5, stating that it was a Civil Service Commission ruling that anyone who drew any money from the Government, even for expenses on a WOC (without compensation) basis, was classed as an "employe" and was required to comply with the requirements of the President's Executive Order on loyalty procedure.

"Inasmuch as you are not filling out and returning the required blanks in this case, it is necessary that we drop your name from this list of persons eligible to receive travel allowances from us in the future, Nourse wrote.

Warne's response said in part: "Because I feel that the work of the Council of Economic Advisers is so important and its policy of hearing the views of those in labor, business, and consumer circles is so sound I should be happy to cover my own travel cost and will continue to serve on that basis. That is only good citizenship.

Sees CSC on Spot

"I am troubled not a little by the unenviable position in which the Civil Service Commission has placed itself in enforcing this disputed loyalty order in my case. It now seems that the cost of not having to prove one's loyalty to the F. B. I., the Un-American Committee, the Department of Justice, and the Civil Service Commission is about $50 for each trip to Washington. The loyalty procedures apply to me only if I drain the Federal exchequer.

"I am not disturbed by the $50. I am disturbed by the tangle of illogicality that enters when we depart from our democratic traditions and seek to screen individuals for their opinions. I happen not to be a communist but I am old fashioned enough to feel that Communists have rights. Mrs. Roosevelt has, I feel, well stated the correct position in her draft of Article 28 of the International Bill of Rights of the U. N.: 'Everyone shall have equal opportunity to engage in public employment in the state of which he is a citizen.' She wisely adds no clause to screen those with dissident ideas."

Interviewed on the matter yesterday, Nourse explained that Warne, like other members of the Council's several advisory committees, was a designee of the committees, not of the Council. The Council, he made clear, was happy to consult with whoever was chosen to represent the views of labor, business, agriculture, consumers, and other elements in the economy.

"Our door is open and they (the Consumers Advisory Group) can come in with whomever they want," he said. "We're dealing with economics, not politics."

Va. Man Is Acquitted In Feud Slaying

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—In a 2 a. m. verdict today, a Buena Vista jury acquitted Artie Hamilton, 21, of the slaying of Dennis W. Bryant. Jurors deliberated two hours.

Defense counsel contended Hamilton's father, Masco Hamilton, 51, previously sentenced to 20 years for the same shooting, had done all the firing in the feud on Robinson's Gap Road October 20. Bryant was struck by a stray bullet and died November 27.

Swallows Block House Chimney

Kingfisher, Okla., Nov. 13 (AP).—A "mysterious malady" attacked and nearly killed seven persons here before the correct diagnosis—a case of chimney swallows—was made, two local doctors disclosed today.

The trouble started a week ago when Mrs. Howard Baldwin complained of "feeling dull all over." Two days later she collapsed at home and was sent to the hospital, where she improved quickly.

On Monday night her husband was found slumped in a rocking chair, in great pain, and apparently victim of a heart attack. A doctor treated him and called in two nurses, some friends and relatives. Five of these persons, including one of the nurses, were subsequently stricken.

After investigators found two pet canaries dead on the floor of their cage, they raised the windows and called the gas company.

Gas men found odorless, colorless and deadly carbon monoxide flooding the house.

Chimney swallows had built mud nests in the roof vents of the furnace, sealing them tight.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Undisturbed By Red Bomb Story

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—Viacheslav Molotov's veiled hint last week, that Russia knows more about the atom bomb than she lets on, comes as no particular surprise to the American people. The majority have for some time thought that other countries, particularly Russia, have developed the "know-how" of atom bomb manufacture.

But the interesting thing is that American public attitudes toward Russia show no signs of modifying even if Russia does possess the atom bomb.

The number of voters in favor of a more conciliatory policy toward Moscow does not increase significantly when it is suggested that Russia, too, is armed with the powerful and dreaded weapon.

The calmness with which the average American reacts to the idea that Russia may have the bomb was brought out in a public opinion study completed recently by the Institute. A cross-section of voters was asked to express opinions on how the United States should treat Russia. A separate but comparable cross-section was asked what our policy toward Russia should be if and when Russia does have the atom bomb.

As the following results show, the attitudes do not differ markedly:

Which one of these four statements do you agree with most?

"A. It is very important that we make every effort to keep on friendly terms with Russia even if we have to make many concessions to her 6%

"B. It is important that we be on friendly terms with Russia, but we should not make too many concessions to her 50%

"C. If Russia wants to be on friendly terms with us, that's all right, but we should not make any SPECIAL effort to be friendly 18%

"D. We will be better off if we have just as little as possible to do with Russia." 21%

No opinion 5%

Meanwhile, a separate cross-section of voters, also scientifically selected to represent the views of the whole country, was questioned on the issue with a different introductory statement, as follows:

Our scientists think that Russia will be making atomic bombs in a few years. When Russia does have atomic bombs, which one of these four statements do you think you would agree with most?

The same four statements shown above were handed to each voter.

Here is a comparison of the vote of this group with the vote by the first group.

	Without atom bomb	With atom bomb
Alternative A	6%	7%
Alternative B	50	46
Alternative C	18	17
Alternative D	21	25
No opinion	5	5

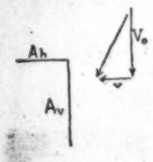
The chief differences are a decrease in the number favoring the second alternative — friendliness without too many concessions—and an increase in the last alternative, which is to have as little as possible to do with Russia.

In short, the American people don't seem to scare easily with the thought that Moscow may have the bomb; the news seems to have little effect and what effect it does have is to stiffen attitudes toward Russia rather than soften them.

Run or Walk?

Wet Weebee Depicted as Rectangle

"It's a snide trick," muttered Weebee, The Washington Post Weatherbird, glancing up from a desk full of alphabetical potpourri.



"I ask a simple question — do I get wetter walking or running in the rain —and what do I get? Rectangles! Projected para l l e l o grams! And now, equations!"

Weebee pointed to "preliminary treatment" of the problem by Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, to wit:

$W = \frac{D}{S}(A_h V_o + A_v V)$

$W = \frac{D}{S}(A_h V_o + A_v \frac{S}{D A_h}[V_o + \frac{A_v}{A_h}])$

(Let Ah be the area of horizontal projection and Av be area of vertical projection, square feet. Let Vo be velocity of vertical fall of rain and v equal velocity, feet per second, of horizontal motion of the body.

(Then if D is the weight of rainwater inside unit volume, pounds per cubit foot, the rate at which rain is intercepted is D(AhVo plus AvV.

(If the person has to go distance S, the time taken is S divided by v, so the total rain intercepted is:

(Hence, the part due to horizontal projection is diminished but the part due to vertical projection is constant. This is valid if the man runs standing up straight.)

"I think I get it," said Weebee doubtfully, three hours later. "He means the faster I walk the less wet I'd get. That's what Dr. Mebs (NBS physicist) found with rectangles and parallelograms.

"I like Dr. Mebs' way best. After all, if I can't be me I'd rather be a rectangle or a parellelegram than an A."

Nearly Half of Canadians Favor Split From Britain

Nearly half the voters of Canada would like to see their country pull out of the British Commonwealth and either become a part of the United States or set up as a completely independent nation.

The other half would like to see the present relationship with the British Commonwealth continued.

Canadian opinion on the subject was measured by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, a member of the 11-nation International Association of Public Opinion (Gallup) Institutes.

Canadians were asked:

Which of these policies would you like to see Canada follow—(1) Continue as a member of the British Commonwealth as at present; (2) leave the British Commonwealth and become part of the United States.; (3) leave the British Commonwealth and become a completely independent nation?

The vote today and in a similar poll in 1943 follows:

	1943	Today
Continue in Commonwealth	49%	45%
Become part of U. S.	21	17) 47%
Become independent	24	30)

Atomic Energy Course Plan

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—"Operation Atomic Vision" is being launched this week to create some better-informed citizens of the atomic age.

It is a plan to begin, in high schools, a study course on the potential peacetime uses of atomic energy, and its possible economic, social and political effects.

Sponsoring it is the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Dr. Paul Elicker of Washington, D. C., association executive secretary, is writing this week to members asking their cooperation next spring.

Dr. Will French, of Teachers College, Columbia University, started the idea. It is one answer, he said, to pleas by David Lilienthal, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, for greater public understanding of the problems and significance of nuclear energy.

Citizens Unit Challenges Rep. Klein

The Burroughs Citizens Association charged yesterday that Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) made "erroneous" statements in his recent attack on the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Klein said Monday: "A self-appointed group heading the so-called Federation of Citizens Associations is actually running the local government of the District."

In a letter to Klein, Burroughs President Robert N. Burrows replied that "general procedure" among the associations is to elect delegates to the federation and receive written reports from them on federation activities. Also, he said "the only power the Federation of Citizens Associations can wield is the weight of public opinion."

Klein, who was unavailable for comment yesterday, made his remarks in calling for "positive" legislation to guarantee full citizenship rights to District residents.

U. S. Clears Way for Sailor To Wed Fiancee in France

Morin, who is 20, came here Monday to get permission to go to Nice, France, and marry his fiancee, Jeanne Bakarcic, a Yugoslavian-born newspaper woman.

By yesterday morning, he was all set, with visa, passport, and plans to leave on a naval air transport next Wednesday. Morin said he would be married as soon as he got to France. He hopes his bride will be able to return to this country in a short time.

Morin met Miss Bakarcic in 1946 when he was stationed in the Mediterranean. They had planned to be married in this country on November 22, but Yugoslav officials wouldn't give her a passport, so French officials wouldn't let her leave the country.

Austrians Ask Hike in Ration

By Seymour Freidin

Vienna, Nov. 13 (NYHT).—Pressures induced by all political parties will bring Austria's most important present internal problem—increasing the food ration—before the Allied Council tomorrow.

A request to increase the ration from a daily average of 1550 to 1800 calories has been submitted by the government, it was disclosed. The primary consideration, Allied informants said, sums up to "who will supply the extra rations?"

Any increase must come from the United States as the Austrian peasant doesn't show any sign of retreating from his hoarding.

The Communist Party has in advance deprecated any further assistance from western Allied quarters as infringement on Austrian sovereignty.

10 Contempt Cases Await House Action

By the United Press

The House Un-American Activities Commitee will ask the House to approve contempt citation for 10 Hollywood writers and directors who refused yes-or-no answer on whether they were Communists, Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) disday.

Rep. Thomas

Thomas said after a closed committee meeting that he has an understanding with House Speaker Joseph W. Martin that the citations will be taken up November 24.

"We understand that this action will not interfere with the aid to Europe program, which is the real purpose of the session," he added.

The decision was a reversal of earlier plans to have Martin submit the citations directly to the United States district attorney. Martin has this authority when the House is not in session.

Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.) a committee member, said earlier that he would seek full House action to clear the committee of possible charges it was seeking to "railroad" the witnesses.

Thomas Committee To Probe Fascists

Hackensack, N. J., Nov. 13 (AP).—Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) says the House Un-American Activities Committee he heads soon will look into Fascist groups in the Nation.

Thomas told the Bergen County Republican Committee last night that it was the former Dies Commitee, of which he was a member, that warned the Nation of Nazi infiltration, and exposed the German-American Bund and pro-Fascist organizations before this country entered the Second World War.

Thomas defied anyone to disprove the findings of the committee in its present inquiry into Communist activities in Hollywood, and hit at those whom he termed "perpetrators of the smear campaign" against the committee members.

Most of the committee's investigators, he said, were former FBI agents and newspaper writers.

Larsen Named Associate Head of Atomic Laboratory

Paul J. Larsen, Danish-born American scientist who helped develop the radio proximity fuse for the Navy, has been named associate director of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico, it was announced yesterday.

The laboratory is where the first American atomic bomb was assembled and exploded in July, 1945.

Larsen will be in charge of the laboratory's work at the Hush-Hush Army-Navy-Air Force special weapons base at Sandia, N. Mex.

Larsen's appointment was announced by Dr. R. E. Gibson, acting director of the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory.

Larsen will get a leave of absence for his new work, which the Federal Atomic Energy Commission asked him to undertake, Gibson said.

Clifford, jr., denying his release under habeas corpus proceedings was taken today by William J. Boone, jr., of Beltsville, Md., Marine Corps private, serving a three-year sentence for voluntary manslaughter.

Boone was convicted in the death in Japan of a Korean civilian.

Stassen's New Book Sells Like Hot Cakes

GOP Presidential Candidate Believed To Have Set Autograph Record in St. Paul

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 13.—Harold E. Stassen arrived in his home town today to find snow on the ground, the temperature near freezing, and his new book selling like the proverbial hot cakes.

The 40-year-old former Governor of Minnesota, who is campaigning for the Republican nomination for President, is believed to have established a record in the field of handwriting and handshaking.

He went to the Golden Rule department store here in St. Paul to autograph copies of "Where I Stand," in which he outlines his personal platform. Police were needed to handle the crowds.

Stassen autographed 1250 books in two hours, and gave each buyer a handclasp. Three hundred more would-be purchasers were in line, but at that point the supply of books ran out.

Kenneth McCormick, editor of Doubleday & Co., Inc., publisher of the book, said that he was 'sure Stassen had hung up a record.

He said that the nearest approach to Stassen's feat that he could recall was the case of the late Queen Marie of Romania. Her book was "The Education of a Princess." Back in the Coolidge administration, while on a visit to Los Angeles, she wrote her royal signature in 1100 books. Howeyer, it took her the whole of an afternoon to do it.

Late today Stassen went over the Mississippi to the twin city of Minneapolis and starred in another book-signing bee in the Powers Department Store. There was another sell-out, and a wire had to be sent to New York for a fresh supply.

Mrs. Stassen, attired in a Kelly-green suit, stood by her husband's side and joined him in shaking hands with the bookbuyers.

Stassen is an even-tempered man, but something happened on the way to Minneapolis that apparently angered him. He had asked Police Chief Charles Tierney of St. Paul to order the motorcycle escort not to use sirens going through the streets.

The order was obeyed in St. Paul.

Once Stassen's party crossed the line into Minneapolis, however, they got a new motorcycle escort. This fellow turned on his siren full-blast. He led the Stassen motorcade through red lights, on the wrong side of streets, and had Minneapolis motorists throwing on breaks and growling all along the line.

Stassen was not smiling when the wild trip ended.

In the course of the day, Stassen held a press conference in the St Paul Hotel. It was devoted almost entirely to agricultural problems. The candidate said that the Marshall Plan would make for high farm incomes in the United States and world stability.

In a five-point agricultural policy, he proposed a guaranteed minimum income for farmers. He said this should be considered the agricultural parallel of the minimum wage and social security for labor.

Stassen, travelling in a chartered plane, arrived here at 3 o'clock this morning, several hours late. The temperature was nine above zero. Nevertheless, a crowd of devoted followers was waiting to greet him.

He is scheduled to fly to Lincoln, Neb., tomorrow morning and then go on to Denver.

Stassen Chance Small, Weekly Editors Hold

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota maintains his position as the most popular GOP presidential candidate among "grass roots" country weekly editors, it will be reported Friday by Publishers' Auxiliary, newspaper trade publication. But the editors give him little chance of election.

When asked to report on opinion in their own communities, only 5 per cent give Stassen a chance for election, compared with 36 per cent for President Truman and 22 per cent for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower has 13 per cent and Senator Robert Taft 11 per cent.

Bossy Gillis Seeks Mayoralty Again

Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 13 (AP).—Andrew J. (Bossy) Gillis, who once ran the city of Newburyport from a jail cell, was back in the political spotlight today after promising "a helluva campaign" if nominated.

The former mayor was nominated yesterday with Mayor John M. Kelleher. Kelleher polled 1211 votes to 1114 for Gillis. The election will be held December 2.

During the first of his three terms—in 1928—Gillis was jailed for two months for clearing trees in violation of a city ordinance to make way for his now prosperous gasoline station. He conducted the city's business from his cell.

Japs' Electricity Cut To 25 Kilowatts Month

Tokyo, Nov. 13 (AP).—The average Japanese household will be limited to 25 kilowatts of electricity monthly, effective December 1, as Japan hoards its meager supply of power.

Small additional quantities will be available to students, the sick, nurses, and families where birth, death or marriage occurs. Homes in areas of heavy snowfall will be granted an additional 20 per cent.

Wallace Nominated To Head U. S. Golf

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Fielding Wallace of Augusta, Ga., has been nominated to succeed Charles W. Littlefield of Montclair, N. J., as president of the United States Golf Association at the end of this year, the association announced today.

Littlefield, who has been president for the past two years, asked to be relieved. Wallace, a vice president of the association since 1945, is president emeritus of the Augusta Country Club and has been secretary of the Augusta National Golf Club, where the masters' tournament is held, since its organization in 1931.

2 Baltimore School Fires Laid to Child

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP).—Police and fire department investigators said today two fires on successive days in Public School No. 6 had been deliberately set.

They disclosed a 10-year-old school boy was arrested for investigation, but released in custody of his parents.

Court Action Seeks to Force Property Sale

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals considered today a plea by Phillips H. Clarke, 2315 Bancroft pl. nw., Washington, D. C., and Vincent C. Tompkins, jr., of Norfolk, Va., to require the sale of certain land in the West Lanham and West Lanham Hills section of Prince Georges County.

Judge Charles C. Marbury in the County Court had refused to order Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Brunk of Harrisonburg, Va., who owned most of the property, and other residents to comply with an agreement made in 1941.

Clarke and Tompkins declared there has been "no substantial change" in conditions since they contracted to purchase lots in West Lanham Hills at $515 apiece and in West Lanham at $350, with an additional option to acquire unsubdivided land in West Lanham Hills for $30,000.

Defendants included persons who had subsequently obtained lots in the area, as well as the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., Inc., and the West Lanham Hills Citizens Association, Inc.

They charged Clarke and Tompkins with delaying action from September, 1942, until February, 1947, when they filed the complaint in Prince Georges County. During that period they contended "the value of the property has increased enormously."

The lower court's decision should be upheld, they added, in view of "the apparent fact that the appellants were speculating with this property."

A separate brief was filed for Frederick X. Wilson, William Bowie and the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., who argue the action sought by Clarke and Tompkins "is barred by their long, unexplained delay in seeking relief."

Prince Georges Bond Issue Is Approved

A $500,000 bond issue for construction of an addition to the Prince Georges County Courthouse, a new building for the Board of Education, and remodeling of the County Service Building at Hyattsville was authorized yesterday by the Board of County Commissioners at Upper Marlboro.

After approving the bond issue, the board awarded contracts, subject to the actual sale of bonds, to the low bidders on two of the three proposed improvement projects. Plans for the third phase of the building program still have not been prepared.

A contract for a three-story addition to the courthouse at Upper Marlboro was awarded to Lee T. Turner of Washington, who submitted a bid of $212,568. Low bidder for the Board of Education building, a one-story structure to be erected at the rear of the courthouse parking lot, was W. M. Chappell, also of Washington, whose estimate was $152,900.

At the same time, the commissioners authorized Paul H. Kea, Hyattsville architect, to prepare plans for remodeling the County Service Building to provide for separate juvenile detention quarters in the attic. Estimated cost of the project is $25,000.

Engineering and architects' fees, survey costs and other expenditures will run the total of the improvement program up to about $414,000, members of the board said.

The commissioners unanimously approved a proposal to employ chauffeurs, truck drivers and machine operators engaged in county service on an annual salary basis, in place of the present hourly labor rate. Board members said the new salary proposal will result in increased wages for workers in these classifications, since they previously drew the same wages paid laborers.

In other actions, the board approved the Mid-City garage at Laurel, Md., as an official inspection station for taxicabs, and received, without taking formal action, two road and zoning resolutions from the Lanham Citizens Association. One of the resolutions indorsed the recent recommendation of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission to restrict commercial development in Lanham, and the other protested the proposed closing and relocating of Hynesboro rd. at its intersection with Lanham-Severn rd.

Pembroke, Va., Blaze Does $50,000 Damage

Pembroke, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—An early morning blaze today destroyed the funeral home, hardware store, and furniture store, operated by Williams Bros. & Co., and jumped Pembroke's Main Street to damage the fronts of a drug store and a clothing store operated by the same company before it was brought under control by the Pearisburg Volunteer Fire Department.

Damage was estimated unofficially at about $50,000.

Fredericksburg Tax Rise Seen in Budget

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 13.—An increase in local taxes was seen here today when the city council received a tentative 1948 budget. It calls for a levy of $1.60 per $100 of assessed valuation, an increase of 10 cents over the current year.

The budget will be formally adopted in December. The council again bypassed a vote on the school board recommendation for new industrial arts building at James Monroe High School. Petitions circulated by the P-TA have called for the construction of an elementary school first.

Va. Hospital Board Contract Challenged

Richmond, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—The State Hospital Board's award of a contract for construction work at Eastern State Hospital was challenged today by two attorneys, who indicated that the case may be carried to court.

Beecher E. Stallard of Richmond and Lee Ford, Newport News, asked the board to reconsider award of a building contract which included a fixed fee of $47,000 as part of a large project at the Williamsburg hospital.

Acting for 'Taxpayer'

Both attorneys asserted they were appearing in behalf of Paul F. Baker, sr., of Richmond, identified only as "a taxpayer." The contract, which was part of a $2,875,000 construction program at the hospital, was let by the board to J. Kennon Perrin Co. of Richmond last month.

Two protests were lodged with the board over the contract. One was by the Peninsula Builders' Exchange of Newport News, and the other by the Laburnum Construction Corp. The Peninsula Builders' Exchange said it believed bids were not properly advertised and the Laburnum Corp. contended it was low bidder.

Subsequently Attorney General Harvey B. Apperson handed down an opinion in which he upheld the board, and instructed it to go ahead with its plans for a negotiated contract with the Perrin Co.

Hearing Requested

Stallard and Ford requested a hearing before the board in behalf of their client, who they said was not connected with any contracting firm but was acting only in his capacity as a taxpayer.

They challenged the board's action on the ground that no "emergency in law" existed and hence the State agency had no right to award a contract without proper advertisement for bids.

Senator Morton G. Goode, of Dinwiddie, asked Stallard and Ford to prepare a statement setting forth their grievances, and submit it to the board and the Attorney General, and in reply to a question of the Newport News lawyer, said the contract with Perrin had "been awarded and signed."

General E. Walton Opie, of Staunton, a member of the board, asked Stallard if he intended to pursue the matter at law if he failed to get satisfactory action from the board and the attorney replied, "I would answer yes."

Policeman Held In Shooting of Fellow Officer

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 13 (AP). One Huntington policeman was in jail on charges of shooting with intent to kill a fellow officer who lay, critically wounded, in a hospital today, Police Chief W. Z. Smith reported.

Detective Chief Azel Bryant said investigation "seemed to bear out" that the shooting climaxed "a friendly argument over who was the better man."

J. B. Wilgus, 29, underwent an operation for removal of a bullet lodged in his right hip after passing through the groin. Accused of shooting him is Jack Rowsey, 27, former regional Golden Gloves boxing champion, Chief Smith said.

He said investigation indicated both officers had been drinking.

Taylor's report will be submitted to Dr. Donald J. Roop, county health officer. Its recommendations, relating principally to cleaning of utensils, will be sent also to the mayor and council with a petition for appointment of a full-time restaurant inspector.

Dewey's Stand on 4 Issues Cited in Answer to Critics

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 13 (AP).—A spokesman for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today that, contrary to claims of critics, the Governor had discussed domestic and international issues in recent months.

He said that Dewey, an undeclared candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, had spoken out in favor of compulsory military training, the partition of Palestine, a "businesslike" plan of aid to western Europe and support of President Truman's doctrine of help to Greece and Turkey to prevent spread of Communism.

Dewey was asked at a news conference to comment on the frequent criticisms, within and without the party, of his alleged silence on issues at home and abroad.

The Governor laughed at the question and declined comment, but a highly placed member of the staff, with Dewey's knowledge, said:

"The Governor does not follow the practice of those who foul their own nests."

He added that Dewey "never criticizes" other members of his party publicly and "does not answer criticisms from other members who do not follow this practice."

The news conference question was inspired by a statement made by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) in Washington yesterday.

McCarthy, one of the leading supporters of the candidacy of former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen for the GOP presidential nomination, said Stassen had gained and that Dewey "has slipped tremendously since his trip West" last summer because of "his refusal to discuss the issues."

Inhuman Practice

The reason for shackling psychiatric patients to their beds at Gallinger Hospital has been explained many times. On Wednesday it was explained again. In the words of Dr. Addison M. Duval, chief of staff at St. Elizabeths, "You have to use restraint if you don't have the personnel." We think the public understands that pretty well. But neither this nor any other explanation wipes out the disgrace of chaining mentally sick people to their beds in the Nation's Capital in this supposedly enlightened year of 1947.

Gallinger's chief psychiatrist, Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, told a conference of interested officials that the hospital lost its trained personnel during the war and has not been able to recoup that loss. No doubt that is an accurate factual statement. But the war has been over for more than two years. How long is it going to serve as an excuse for an inhuman practice in a public hospital? Dr. Duval makes it clear that the lack of attendants and nurses to operate Gallinger's equipment for modern treatment of patients reduces its chance of attracting graduate psychiatric students to do resident work. And the lack of resident psychiatrists further reduces the quality of treatment the hospital can offer. Obviously a vicious circle is in operation. The public can scarcely concern itself with the question of how this circle is to be broken. That is the task of officials. But the public can insist that a break in the circle be made. We hope that a clamor will keep the local authorities and Congress aware of the public sense of outrage over this medieval practice until it can be abolished.

Fair Hearings

"The time has come," said Senator Pepper at the Senate War Investigating Committee hearing the other day, "when Congress must reexamine the whole subject of congressional investigations . . . and formulate a procedure . . . which will give fair protection to the rights of citizens." We agree. We do not, however, agree with the specific rules which Senator Pepper suggests. He would divide congressional hearings into two classes: (1) those designed to get information from citizens as background for legislation, and (2) those designed to put the citizen on public trial for some alleged misconduct of his own. His remedy is to throw around the second type of hearing all the legal safeguards of a courtroom trial.

The utter impracticability of this suggestion is emphasized by the current hearing. Senator Pepper regards it as merely a trial of Howard Hughes before the bar of public opinion. A majority of the committee contends, however, that the Government invested 40 million dollars in contracts with Mr. Hughes and didn't get a single plane for the war effort. That is scarcely a personal matter. But, in any event, no congressional committee is likely to admit that its purpose is to put an individual on trial. Consequently, the rules suggested by Mr. Pepper for such hearings would probably never be used.

A more persuasive argument against laying down rules for congressional "trials" is that there should be no such trials. We tried to emphasize the other day the basic reasons why Congress should confine its activities to the legislative field and leave all action in the nature of judicial proceedings to the courts. The fundamental difficulty cannot be corrected by having congressional committees constitute themselves into courts and operate under judicial rules. We want to stop any encroachment by Congress upon the function of punishing individuals—not to regularize it.

We think this can be done, moreover, without any real impairment of the unquestioned right of Congress to ferret out any information that it needs. One useful step would be to confine all investigations to regular standing committees which are more interested in legislation than in muckraking or witch hunting. There is also need for a code of fair procedure for all hearings. Some of our readers have misunderstood our reference to the fifth amendment in connection with the Thomas Committee's Hollywood investigation. We did not assume that punishment of witnesses for contempt of Congress because they refused to say whether they were Communists would be a violation of the fifth amendment, although we hope this point will be tested again in the courts. The fifth amendment, as our editorial pointed out, guarantees that no person "shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." We also made it clear that the cases before the Thomas Committee were not "criminal" cases.

The point which we did emphasize is that, in probing into the personal affairs of individuals, Congress as well as the courts ought to have regard for the spirit of fairness and justice that infuses the Constitution and that it ought to restrain itself from punishing individuals (through its contempt power) for refusal to air personal beliefs or reveal political affiliations. No doubt some valuable testimony would be lost by such restraint on the part of Congress, but we think this would be more than offset by the respect which Congress would gain in the eyes of the people.

Chinese Mystery

What the Secretary of State has up his sleeve for aiding China is something of a mystery. Even the cost of 300 million dollars, he told the reporters, was given only as an estimate to the questioning legislators. The plan seems to have to do with China's currency, and Mr. Marshall gives the impression that the intention is to set up a stabilization fund to stop the inflation in China. Fingers will be kept crossed till details are forthcoming. In the meantime the size and implications of any American intervention in Chinese domestic currency affairs may be explored in the light of the facts—or what is known of them—about China.

There is already in existence in China a stabilization fund operated by the Chinese government. It was set up on August 15. The main purpose was to encourage the inflow and repatriation of funds from two sources: Chinese immigrants and Chinese public men (and women) who have piled up their capital, mostly ill-gotten, abroad. The former item has hitherto been a considerable factor in China's balance sheet with the world. With these funds, received from all over the world where immigrant Chinese have employed their talents and industry, China used to be enabled to purchase supplies from the industrial countries. The rate fixed by the stabilization fund was 12,000 Chinese dollars to the American dollar. But, as an inducement to money holders abroad, a "baited" rate was set at several times that figure. With the proceeds, the Chinese government intended to start a program of "productive enterprises."

This stabilization policy has been a resounding flop. The rate was not high enough, for one thing, to attract capital hoarded or earned abroad by Chinese. For inside China the rate on the black market was then above it, and it has kept on soaring. The black market rate now verges on 100,000:1. By contrast, before the wars the exchange was 2:1. In the last few months the spectacle has been witnessed of the "stabilized" rate trying to catch up with the black market rate! Now the "stabilized" rate is 60,000:1, but, of course, this brings no funds to China by the regular route, because the black market rate persists in staying ahead of it. There is no magnet in such instability except to the smugglers.

A look at the note issue shows the reason for an inflation of the currency which has jumped the wholesale price index to 88,000 times the 1936 base. No less than 20 trillion Chinese dollars are outstanding. And the note issue keeps going up, in part, because the government, in order to finance the civil war, keeps calling on the banks to print fresh bales of currency. On the goods side, according to the latest Monthly Report published in Shanghai, "the government's policy of aiding productive enterprises has been unsuccessful because of corruption. Instead of going to industry, it is said, these loans actually found their way into the hands of bureaucratic capital and were used for speculation and hoarding." In other words, trade and production are both being stifled. Caught, thus, between fewer goods and more money, the Chinese dollar is rapidly having all value squeezed out of it.

The word for all this is chaos. Is it intended that we shall ask the Chinese to let us direct as well as operate their stabilization fund? Assuming we were allowed to do so—a doubtful assumption in view of the xenophobia in Nanking—we should have to run their government, stop their civil war and pacify the country, and throw into jail a legion of the peculators who, secure in government jobs, are battening on the Chinese people. The job would take an American army and an endless flow of American dollars to China. We might then "stop the inflation." But involvement in such an enterprise would please nobody but the Russians. The only sensible plan, if we must have one, is to let China have 400 million ounces of silver (approximately equal to 300 million dollars) for injection into her money stream as a first step to a return to the silver standard. Under present management that also might go down the drain, or, more exactly, wind up in private deposits in American banks. But we would rather see a gesture of this nature than abandonment of a hands-off policy. Hard money—with an exchange rate corresponding to the world price for silver—is what the misused Chinese people crave as a protection against their government.

Safety In Time

In the past commercial airlines sometimes have been accused of requiring governmental prodding before showing proper solicitude for the safety of their passengers. We are pleased, therefore, to observe the action by American, United and other airlines in voluntarily grounding all their DC-6 planes pending an investigation of the causes of recent accidents. This move was essential to maintain public confidence, and the significant part is that this timely self-policing by the airlines obviated any order by the Civil Aeronautics Board. The immediate reason for the suspension was, of course, the fire aboard an American Airlines DC-6 which caused an emergency landing at Gallup, N. Mex., Monday—happily without loss of life. Several weeks ago a fire on a United Air Lines DC-6 resulted in 52 deaths near Bryce Canyon, Utah.

The investigation in this instance is materially aided by the fact that engineers have a nearly intact plane with which to work. We have no doubt that the difficulties are minor and will be overcome, much as similar defects in another type of plane, the Constellation, were eliminated after a series of mishaps last year. Basically the DC-6 is a sound plane, and with the Constellation it constitutes the great hope of the airlines for improved long-distance transport.

Free-Riding General

Certain details of the deal whereby Gen. Bennett E. Meyers was able to clean up $90,000 on an absolutely riskless speculation in Government bonds have not been disclosed. It would be interesting to know how the general obtained two million dollars of bonds before they reached the open market and the name of the bank from which he obtained the loan that enabled him to purchase them. However, the general's operations in the Government bond market were a well-known type of speculation that the Treasury and the Federal Reserve officials repeatedly denounced in strong language. Consequently, Secretary Morgenthau and Chairman Eccles of the Reserve Board are rightly indignant at General Meyers' intimation that they had encouraged him to proceed with his venture—by assuring him that he couldn't go wrong because the Government would support its bonds at par level.

As a matter of fact, no such assurance was needed, since it was common knowledge that immense speculative gains could be obtained without risk by the so-called practice of free riding. In order to assure distribution of new war bond issues, the Treasury made a practice of offering these securities for subscription at prices somewhat below those the market was willing to pay. As a result, speculators using borrowed money to buy bonds at the issue price could enjoy a free ride by reselling them later at a premium. Individuals as well as banks profited by this system and speculation was, of course, encouraged by the knowledge that interest rates on Government securities had been stabilized. The Federal authorities did their best to suppress such practices by urging banks to confine their loans on Government securities to legitimate credit needs of dealers in securities and bona fide investors. Although these appeals were not without effect, it was obviously impossible under existing conditions entirely to eliminate such speculative operations.

No doubt General Meyers' profits would seem puny compared with those of many lucky speculators who have escaped the limelight publicity of a congressional hearing. Furthermore, as such operations are not illegal, the private citizen has little to fear from exposure of his speculative activities. There is, however, no possible excuse for a high ranking Army officer's engaging in transactions of this kind, regardless of the impropriety of using his official position to get in on the ground floor. For such speculation was officially denounced as against public policy and General Meyers can hardly plead ignorance of that fact. And it seems odd that General Arnold, though passing up an opportunity to garner similar profits, felt interested enough to consult the then Assistant Secretary of War, Robert A. Lovett.

Crying Peace

Mr. Vishinsky, who has already identified some of the warmongers by name, has now identified another by allusion, viz., the President of the United States. He has unearthed from some archive a speech made by Mr. Truman in June, 1941, two days after Hitler's attack on Russia, when the United States was technically still a neutral power. Mr. Truman, who was then, of course, a member of the Senate, was quoted as having said that, "if we see that Germany is winning, we ought to help Russia, and if Russia is winning we ought to help Germany, and that way let them kill as many as possible." This, Mr. Vishinsky seemed to be suggesting, shows that "the so-called Truman doctrine" could have been conceived in nothing but a bloodthirsty spirit and the same is, therefore, true of "the so-called Marshall Plan." The only object of such policies is to frustrate the love and desire of peace that apparently exists everywhere in the world outside high official quarters in the United States.

Thus the road to peace would be wholly clear if the obstacles represented by the Truman doctrine and the Marshall Plan were cleared away. In other words, if the situation were now what it was before the Truman doctrine was enunciated peace would follow automatically. This is substantially what Mr. Molotov was saying last week. Mr. Vishinsky ignored, of course, the point that when Britain, France, China and the United States attempted to make a peace without a Truman doctrine, and, with the UNRRA rather than the Marshall Plan, they found themselves blocked at every step by the unreasonableness and deliberate obstructionism of the Molotovs and Vishinskys. It then became clear to the statesmen of these nations that Russians would not suspend their intrigues and encroachments until they were obliged to do so by the same sort of political, economic and propaganda pressures they had been applying themselves.

THE CHILD AND THE TREE

Two skies she knew, one overfield, the other trailing from the rim of the great linden tree's cupped shield.
The second sky was low and dim.

Above, as children learn to see,
the storied dome was holding in a green light as of undersea.
Below, the house sat flat and thin, afraid, too small even for grief.

She knew no moon but one in boughs as if the sorrowing in each leaf had risen bright from many sighs.

Asleep she knew the tree was there by her bed, and of her small night-growing soul kept back a share, but by and by would have it all.

"Cold War"

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Eisenhower Boom

THE BIG new cloud on the political horizon is the presidential boom for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. It is a feature of the political landscape that the professional politician can no longer ignore.

But does it have any substance? Or is it merely a piece of window-dressing that inevitably goes along with a presidential year which comes at the end of a great war?

The realists and the cynics here in Washington believe it will come to nothing. Their line of reasoning, which seems to make considerable sense, goes like this:

The only nomination that Eisenhower has a chance to get is the Republican nomination. The Republican Party is a tightly controlled institution. The men who run it have little sympathy for outsiders and interlopers.

Reluctantly, in 1940, they took Wendell Willkie and later they bitterly regretted it. One reason they took Willkie was because the boom for him had been so skillfully and quietly manipulated behind the scenes. Another reason was that they believed their chance of winning with a bold newcomer to politics was better than with any of the well-worn veterans vying for the nomination.

In 1948 they might be persuaded to take Eisenhower if it appeared that they could win only with a glamorous, popular, headline figure. But come next June at Philadelphia, they are not likely to think anything of the kind.

Confidence within the party has not been gravely shaken by the outcome of the recent elections, when Kentucky went to the Democrats. The Republicans face 1948 with bright confidence. It is not so great, of course, as to tempt them to go "back to Bricker," which some of the party managers would like to do. So the finger of destiny rests on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York while Mr. Dewey looks with professional modesty in the other direction.

THE REALISTS and the cynics have often been wrong. They calculate on such practical things as delegate strength and the ability to line up associates long before the roll is called. They tend to ignore the cosmic intangibles—sentiment, emotion, popular favor. And on the whole, judged by performance, they can afford to ignore these intangibles.

This, then, is the political Q. E. D. But it leaves out of consideration the towering figure of Eisenhower and his very real hold on the imagination of millions of Americans.

As for the general himself, he tries hard to be frank with the visitors who press him about his intentions. He tells them that he emphatically doesn't want the job. He contemplates the possibility with something like horror.

But—if a miracle should occur and there should be a spontaneous demand for Eisenhower, he could not say no to it. That would be a duty, and a soldier always answers the call to duty. Such a refusal of duty, as Eisenhower knows as well as any professional politician, has never occurred.

To say a flat, final, absolute, unquestionable "No" in the famous words of Gen. William T. Sherman would not be patriotic in the present troubled state of the world. So there is always the call to the highest duty that might remotely come.

YET THOSE close to Eisenhower have a feeling that, to forestall such a call, he may yet come out with the Sherman pronouncement to the effect that he could not be "drafted" and that he would not run even if he were. Such a pronouncement would certainly simplify General's Ike's life. It would end the buzz of speculation that Eisenhower finds so irritating. He wants to be believed when he says, with all possible fervor, that he does not want the Presidency.

The presidential bug is a germ which paralyzes its victim. Even the threat of it produces unnatural strain and anxiety, and General Ike today looks strained and harassed.

Not in many years has he had a real vacation. Therefore, shortly after January 1, he will go on a 60-day leave. When he returns, he will take up his new duties as president of Columbia University.

Eisenhower has been deluged by offers from publishers to "tell all" in the kind of popular, hot-off-the-griddle memoir appearing on the best-seller lists. He has steadfastly refused. The general believes that both the "I won the war single-handed" and the "I could have won the peace if they had only let me" schools of writing have chiefly done harm. He is determined not to add to it. The man who had so much to do with making history is wisely determined to have no part in the writing of it until time has put a broader perspective on him and on the great events in which he took part.

"Two-Way Fellowship"

Your editorial of November 8 on two-way fellowships was a timely reminder of the current importance of international thinking in the field of legal education. In this connection the step taken by the Yale Law School to make fellowships of this type available is both useful and to be highly commended. It is worth noting also that law schools in general are showing a strongly increasing interest in international developments.

At the last meeting of the Association of American Law Schools the establishment of a committee on international and foreign law was authorized. This committee is charged, among other things, with the teaching of international and foreign law with the encouragement of international exchange of legal scholars and students.

In the case of students, the committee is heartily in sympathy with the setting up of two-way fellowships that will bring foreign students to this country and will make it possible for our own students to study abroad. So far as legal scholars are concerned, moreover, great benefits might be obtained if law schools in the United States were able from time to time to send members of their faculties abroad for periods of study, research and teaching on the faculties of foreign law schools. Conversely, many of our schools would be glad to receive for limited periods as visiting professors distinguished foreign jurists wishing similar experience in this country.

The net effect of such exchanges might do much, not only for the improvement of the teaching profession, but for the promotion of international understanding and good will. Both aspects of this situation have been discussed at considerable length with interested schools and other agencies, and it is hoped that experimental arrangements along the lines mentioned may be worked out in the near future.

PHILIP W. THAYER,
Chairman, Committee on International and Foreign Law, Association of American Law Schools.

"Red Fascism"

On October 23 I sent you a letter of three paragraphs on the difference between fascism and communism. On November 1 you published the first paragraph of this letter (which consisted of a categorical statement that the two are different) and omitted the other two paragraphs (which contained the evidence supporting this statement).

On November 5 you published a letter from Mr. William Plampin calling me ignorant for my failure to see the similarities between the two phenomena in question.

In my original letter I made no mention of my qualifications to speak on this subject since I thought that evidence would be superior to authority. Your suppression of the evidence makes it necessary to present my qualifications for raising my voice on this subject. I hold three academic degrees in modern history from Harvard University, have taught history at Harvard, Princeton and Georgetown School of Foreign Service, have been studying fascism for 15 years and at one time even gave a college course on the theory and nature of fascism. My studies extended to fascism in Germany, Italy, Spain, France and the United States and were carried on in four foreign languages. While I do not claim to be an expert on communism the nature of my work has made it necessary for me to become acquainted with the standard works in English on the theory and practice of communism.

At a time when the American people are faced by very complex political and economic problems a paper of the caliber of The Washington Post owes it to its readers to insist that its writers use current terms in their correct meanings and not merely as expressions of disapprobation.

German Press Campaign

"In a dispatch from Berlin dated November 8, Marguerite Higgins reported to the New York Herald Tribune the existence of a campaign on the part of the American military government to attack communism and Russia in the German press. It is further reported that German editors are reluctant if not rebellious in the face of such a campaign. "Some officials (of the AMG) have even suggested that reluctant German editors be relieved of their posts and 'more cooperative newspapermen be installed."

I am aware that we are, probably justifiably, waging a diplomatic war against the Soviet system, and I am aware that Russia started this "smear" campaign. But I cannot voice in terms too strong my protest against the sort of retaliation apparently projected by the AMG.

If there is one principle which has stood the test of time in this democracy, it is that which declares that our best chance of arriving at truth is to allow the free exchange of information and views, no matter how opposing. We have only to look to the revulsion felt among American people upon the enactment of the Alien and Sedition Acts of 1798 to discover an historical root of our hatred for a politically dominated, one-party press.

Does the present state of the world call for the dictation of what shall be said or printed in our campaign to win the world to our point of view? I submit that the answer is more than ever before an emphatic "no." If we are to win our battle of ideas with Russia, we must show the Germans and the world that we are practicing as well as preaching democracy, not only here but in Germany. Nothing could be so well calculated to discourage the anti-Nazis of Germany or to fascinate and encourage the hidden Nazis than this attempt on the part of General Clay to imitate Goebbels in creating a propaganda machine instead of a free press.

"Open The Archives"

In your "Open the Archives" editorial of October 10 you concurred with Prof. Charles A. Beard's demand that all official documents should be open to all citizens on equal terms. That principle should, and probably does, enjoy virtually unanimous support. However, it is important to define "official documents." Surely even a public servant is entitled to a certain amount of privacy. I would think that memoranda between a President and his advisers, for example, typifies the kind of paper that he or his heirs could ethically withhold from the public or make available only to selected individuals.

It is particularly ironical that Professor Beard be the one to warn against slanted history. His recent book, American Foreign Policy in the Making, 1932-40—A Study in Responsibilities, according to The Economist (London, June 21), "raises some very interesting questions of historical methods . . . and] is a perfect example of how partial, and therefore misleading, what purports to be scientific history can become."

Federation Delegate

The refusal of the Federation of Citizens Associations to seat a delegate from one of its subsidiary organizations because the lady was a member of the League of Women Shoppers makes one wonder whether we are still living in the United States.

At various times during my 25 years of residence in Washington, I have been a member of both the Federation of Citizens Associations and of the League of Women Shoppers. It never occurred to me that membership in either should preclude membership in the other. I thought both had been organized to help look after the welfare of District citizens.

Now something new has been added, and it is not yet apparent whether this new thing has been caused by Communists scaring the democracy and good judgment and equanimity out of our "best citizens" or whether our "best citizens" are willfully trying to prevent by intimidation our little people from organizing to fight high prices, sales taxes and low wages by calling them Communists, Reds, fellow travelers, etc.

The only subject I ever heard discussed at the Shoppers' meetings were high prices and relatively low wages and what housewives could do, if anything, about them. A return to price control is what they are now recommending.

My personal opinion is that the Federation of Citizens Associations should not only be proud to seat the delegate from the Kalorama Citizens Association but should humbly apologize to her for its un-American and undemocratic action.

Executive Secretary, Peoples Party.

Intra-European Help

One can be encouraged by the Herter report outlining the kind of organization proposed to handle American aid to Europe. Contrary to common belief, this aid will not be something for nothing. It will be paid for even if European countries can pay only in their domestic currencies. These currencies will be accepted by the aid fund and again used by it either to develop new and needed local productions or to expand old ones as circumstances permit.

But there is a further and important use for these European currencies, one which the Herter report does not mention: namely, American aid is conditioned on European countries helping not only themselves but each other to the maximum extent possible, and is limited to meeting only those indispensable needs that cannot be met otherwise.

France is a large producer of rabbit pelts (now more than ever when even city housewives are raising rabbits under their kitchen tables). Rabbit hair is basic to the felt hat industry. Italy has an important felt industry. But Italy is almost as short of French francs as it is of dollars; it is unable therefore to buy the French rabbit skins needed by its felt industries. On the other hand, the aid fund will have French francs received in payment for American supplies. It can buy and deliver the needed skins to Italy and accept lire in exchange.

But that one deal is not all. Italy is one of the world's few producers of quicksilver, and has the world's richest deposit of cinnebar. Now, though it is little realized, Holland can, today, sell little to impoverished Italy. Hence Holland, itself, is short of lire. In steps the aid fund with its lire. It buys and delivers to Holland needed Italian mercury, this time accepting guilders . . . and so on, around and around, promoting natural intra-European trade and recovery wherever shortages of trade credit now keeps Intra-European trade gummed up.

Defense of Civil Rights

In a letter from F. L. Freeman on November 6, headed "Hollywood Hearings," the writer refers to "The Washington Post, which never uttered a single editorial 'word of caution' regarding threats to 'civil rights' and 'freedom of expression' when the Ku Klux Klan and the Columbians were the targets of investigation, etc." Old readers of The Washington Post know of course, that both in Edward T. Folliard's series on the Columbians and in editorial comments you have consistently defended everyone's civil rights—and that the Columbians and KKKs have been tried in open court, confronted by their accusers and allowed full opportunity for legal defense via counsel.

Witnesses' Rights

A Communication

I HAVE read with much interest your November 5 editorial, "Speaking of Americanism." This editorial is in line with many other comments which you have published with regard to the activities of the Thomas Committee on Un-American Activities. In spite of many conciliatory phrases in your articles, and an evident willingness on your part to "compromise" to a certain extent on these issues, it remains true that your views, as expressed on this subject, are based on what I can only regard as fundamental misconceptions.

The most plausible argument in defense of the recalcitrant attitude of some of the persons summoned before the Thomas Committee is that they were "in substance" being asked to incriminate themselves in violation of their constitutional rights and immunities in that regard. The main objections were raised over the simple question addressed to several of these reluctant witnesses, "Are you a Communist?"

Now committees of either branch of Congress, duly empowered to make investigations, have the clear legal authority to summon witnesses, and in general at least to require truthful answers to questions relevant to the authorized investigation. These committees, like the courts, must respect the provision of the fifth amendment to the Constitution, which requires that "No person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." But the key to the true meaning of this provision in the fifth amendment is to be found in the phrase "in any criminal case."

As has been stated by the Supreme Court in a leading case: "The object of the amendment is to establish . . . that no one shall be compelled to give testimony which may expose him to prosecution for crime. It is not declared that he may not be compelled to testify to facts which may impair his reputation for probity or even tend to disgrace him; but the line is drawn at testimony that may expose him to prosecution." Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, at page 66.

IT IS NOT a crime under the laws of the United States for any person to hold beliefs in accordance with the tenets of communism. Neither is it a crime under the laws of the United States for any person to be a member of the Communist Party. Neither is it a crime under the laws of California or of any other State to hold such beliefs or such party membership. Therefore, the inquiry before the Thomas Committee as to such beliefs or such membership is not, as a matter of plain common sense, or as a matter of technical legal reasoning, an instance of compelling any person "to give testimony which may expose him to prosecution for crime."

The fifth amendment does not protect witnesses either in judicial courts or before congressional committees from inquiries that "pry into their private affairs," or tend to embarrass them or disgrace them thoroughly in the opinions of others, or even that expose actual criminality in cases where such criminality is no longer punishable legally, as in the case of crimes that have been effectively pardoned, or which have been outlawed by the statutes of limitations. As the Supreme Court stated in Hale v. Henkel, "the line is drawn at testimony that may expose him to prosecution."

A moment's reflection ought to convince anyone that parties in legal actions (and witnesses who are not parties and who have no present interest to be served by the litigation) are constantly called upon to give testimony about shady transactions, unethical and unconscientious dealings on their own part, breaches of contract occurring without any moral excuse, negligence more or less gross and ridiculous, all of which may lead to substantial or even ruinous legal liability to make reparation or to pay damages.

And as to compulsory inquiries by governmental bodies, the briefest reflection about our tax system, or about investigations by the Federal Trade Commission, or the National Labor Relations Board, should demonstrate to one that there is no general immunity in favor of persons who feel that their "private affairs" are being pried into or who point out that the questions may greatly embarrass and truly disgrace them.

YOUR EDITORIAL takes the view that the Thomas Committee's method "has the effect of denying rights which are implicit in our constitutional philosophy." But our constitutional philosophy is based on a balance of interests as between governmental power and private right or immunity. The legislative power given to Congress is extremely important and it is better that legislation should be "based on information" rather "undertaken in ignorance" of actual situations. This implies that Congress and its committees have the right and duty to use compulsory methods to secure appropriate information. This conclusion has been several times emphatically supported by Supreme Court decisions. See, for example, McGrain v. Daugherty, 273 U. S. 135; In re Chapman, 166 U. S. 661; Jurney v. McCracken, 294 U. S. 125.

The recognition of the appropriateness of these inquiries is certainly a part of our constitutional philosophy, and indeed not primarily to render impregnable selected individual legal immunities, however historic, but rather, as the preamble to the Constitution itself states, "in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty" for all the people.

To determine accurately what measures will adequately "insure domestic tranquillity" or "provide for the common defense," the houses of Congress must make many choices, among alternative possible courses of action. It seems obvious that it will be better to have these choices founded on concrete information rather than guesswork. Since the function of Congress will often be to ward off dangers that menace our "domestic tranquillity" or that threaten to deprive us of the "blessings of liberty" (that is of the benefits of our present liberties), these inquiries of Congress and its committees may frequently be addressed to minority groups and crusaders, who are thought by members of Congress to be potentially dangerous.

The dominant purpose and the characteristic effect of these inquiries and investigations are to obtain helpful information. The effect on individual witnesses is one of the inconveniences of living in a highly organized society.

Obviously, some tribunal, rather than the recalcitrant individual, must be the ultimate judge of the propriety of the questions asked.

PRIMARILY this tribunal would seem to be the house of Congress itself that authorized the investigation. And in a practical sense the ruling of the investigating committee may be controlling. But in the present instance the relevancy and propriety of the questions about Communist Party membership and Communist beliefs seem to me to be hardly debatable from a logical point of view, whatever tribunal is called upon to decide the issue. It is not a question really of relevancy or of limitations on the legislative power of Congress in the premises, but rather of alleged immunities of the individual as against the power of the Government of the United States, acting in a preliminary way to safeguard by adequate factual investigations the great interests committed to it.

But how is the scope of these individual immunities to be determined? We must indeed draw a line of demarcation between governmental power and private rights in this field as in many other fields. But in relation to this particular problem of compulsory testimony, the Constitution has itself drawn the line, and has used the "criminal case" concept as the basis and the limit of the constitutional immunity.

The line thus drawn is not essentially technical, but practical and popular. The line of demarcation has been drawn so as to balance the needs of practical government, based on massive democratic forces, against the claims of the individual. To extend the immunity of the fifth amndment beyond that conception would not be to carry out the "spirit of the Constitution" as against the letter, but would be to upset the balance between great conflicting needs which the letter of the Constitution was intended to reconcile.

The true philosophy of the Constitution is to be found in what the fifth amendment does not say, as wel. as in what it does say. The specification of certain cases of immunity from testimonial compulsion implies that that immunity does not attach in other situations. Obviously, the literal provisions of the Constitution must all be taken into account, and not merely one set of them. But it is equally true that our reasoning about the philosophy of the Constitution, the spirit of the Constitution and the general purposes of the system must be based on all the provisions handed down to us, and not merely on certain selected passages.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

In A Ruined City

BERLIN.—Among these ruins the political realities of our world seem more solid and tangible than the people who walk the streets like tired ghosts. Berlin is the final symbol of the destruction wrought by the Second World War. And in Berlin, more than in any other city of Europe, there is no concealment of the central postwar fact. Instead of a world at peace, the war has left the world divided into two mutually hostile camps.

To be sure, the Foreign Ministers of the wartime grand alliance—Marshall and Molotov, Bevin and Bidault—will shortly gather in London to discuss a German peace settlement. But, barring the miracle of a complete reversal of Soviet policy, the London meeting can only end in stalemate.

A stalemate in London will, in turn, produce an immediate and unavoidable result. Germany will be divided. Thus Europe will be divided, along the line of the frontier of the east-west zones of Germany, the Czechoslovak border, the frontier of the east-west zones of Austria, and the border of the Yugoslav and Anglo-American zones of Trieste. And thus the world will also be divided, with the lines fully drawn between the two competing systems except in the Far East. The inevitability of this tragic outcome is openly acknowledged here.

AT LONDON, of course, both the Soviet and the Western leaders will maneuver frantically, each trying to lay upon the shoulders of the other the responsibility for Germany's division. The Soviets are so anxious to stand forth as the champions of German unity that Marshal Sokolovsky has told his German stooges Molotov will propose immediate termination of the Allied occupation of Germany. Molotov may not actually go so far. But the main point is that these maneuvers will be entirely for the record—for German consumption, in fact.

Here in Berlin the hollowness of the London proceedings is being acknowledged in advance. While the Soviets and the Western powers continue to give lip service to German unity, both sides are already preparing for the organization of Germany in two parts.

The Soviet plans can, of course, only be guessed at, but there is strong evidence that they will emphasize a highly nationalistic appeal. The Soviets here have not concealed their angry disappointment, caused by the failure of the Socialist Unity Party (the stooge party formed by forced merger of Communists and east zone Socialists, to win any German mass following. Thus the chances are that the Socialist Unity Party will be pushed aside. The new Russian front in the east zone will then be constructed from the wartime Free Germany Movement, the German soldiers, officers and generals who were captured by the Soviets.

FIELD MARSHAL Von Paulus, who with Field Marshal Von Seydlitz has been most conspicuous in the movement, was brought to Berlin to lay the groundwork this summer. The Soviets still retain a great number of German prisoners (unless the death rate has been almost incredibly high.) They have persistently refused to release prisoners of important rank. They have actually rounded up and taken to Russia German officers and generals released by the western Allies. One known trainload included 30 Wehrmacht generals and 420 officers.

It is entirely probable that these men are employed to lead a German army being organized and trained on Soviet soil. It is almost certain that they will also provide the human material for a new "National Front" into which the wretched Socialist Unity Party will be merged. It is expected that Von Paulus and Von Seydlitz will play the role of elder statesmen, while the active leadership of the "National Front" will be conferred on some such figure as Gen. Arno von Lenski. There are also reports that the Soviets will provide right-wing competition for their "National Front" in the form of a Burghers' Party headed by their aged hireling, Dr. Kurlz of the Liberal Party. Thus the facade of the old Germany will be complete.

Simultaneously, the English and Americans, who cannot employ German stooges, have been forced to prepare plans for a provisional government of western Germany. Even if Germany is to be divided, there is no way to avoid disaster except to give the Germans of the west zones clear responsibility for the reconstruction of their shattered land. It is academic to talk of any other expedient. And the time for academic theorizing is now long past.

D. C. Woman Loses Suit In Son's Crash Death

Rockland, Me., Nov. 13 (AP).—A directed verdict for Maine Air Transport on motion of its counsel was granted today by Superior Court Justice Percy T. Clarke in a $10,000 suit by Mrs. Jessie L. Muchenhirm, formerly of Washington, D. C., whose son, Robert, 20, died in a plane crash here July 16.

U. S. Exports To Europe Dip To 1947 Low

Exports to Europe dropped in September to the lowest point for any month this year, falling to $394,300,000 from $410 million dollars in August, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

Declines also were registered in exports to all continents except North America and Asia as total United States exports decreased for the fourth consecutive month falling to $1,100,500,000 from $1,143,100,000 in August.

On the other side of trade balance, larger imports from all continents helped send general United States imports up in September to $481,100,000 from $400,300,000 the previous month.

The $15,700,000 drop in total United States shipments to Europe came despite a nine-million-dollar increase in Europent shipments under the foreign relief and Greek-Turkish aid programs.

Major declines in shipments to Europe were: to Britain, from $95,700,000 in August to $89,800,000 in September; Norway, $18,700,000 to $12,500,000; Germany, $12,900,000 to $8,400,000; Switzerland, $17,700,000 to $14,600,000, and Greece, $17,500,000 to $14,300,000.

Exports to Italy rose from $29,900,000 to $36,000,000 more than half of which was made up by foreign relief shipments. Exports to France increased from $56,800,000 to $64,500,000.

An increase in receipts from Russia, from $2,500,000 in August to the unusually high $14,000,000 in September, was chiefly responsible for the rise in imports from Europe from $64,100,000 to $76,800,000.

Imports from Britain, however, declined for the fourth straight month, $15,700,000 in September against $17,100,000 in August.

Baldwin Head Sees India as Big Market

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 (AP).—"The continent of Europe will be closed to us for exports as soon as we quit lending them money and their production is rolling," President Ralph Kelly of Baldwin Locomotive Works predicted today.

"With the Marshall Plan in operation, I can see a few good years in the export business," Kelly told members of the Foreign Traders Association of Philadelphia.

"I feel that India, now in a state of confusion, is one of our best future markets," he continued.

"After 1950," Kelly said, "we must be quite realistic and realize that our imports must be about as great as our exports."

Kelly briefly discussed the Marshall Plan and declared "I think by the time realists like Bob (United States Senator) Taft get through with it, it will be much less than the 50 billion dollars proposed and I hope it will be made on a year-to-year basis."

The Baldwin president strongly recommends material reductions of the tariff on many items coming into this country.

High Prices Of Food Laid To Exports

High food costs were blamed on the "current unprecedented volume of exports" by the Republican majority of a Senate-House Subcommittee after hearings in the Midwest.

The two Democratic members of the subcommittee and one Republican did not sign the report which was submitted yesterday to Chairman Taft (R., Ohio) of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report and which was signed by three Republicans.

"The attempt to blame any one economic group such as agriculture, business or labor," the majority declared, "is neither valid nor fruitful."

The three Republicans said they recognized that the United States "can and should" help feed western Europe during the next year. They insisted, however, that a "blank check" for large-scale exports would encourage and "constantly stoke inflationary fires."

The report was prepared by Representative Bender (R., Ohio), chairman of the subcommittee, with the concurrence of Senator Kem (R., Mo.) and Representative Talle (R., Iowa). Senator Sparkman of Alabama and Representative Huber of Ohio, both Democrats, and Senator Ball (R., Minn.) did not authorize their names to be signed to the report.

The Republican majority conceded a demand by some labor and consumer organizations for a return of price control and rationing, but rejected this as unsound. Their principal conclusions were:

1. "Charges that grain trading is responsible for present high prices are without foundation."

2. Persons with low and fixed incomes have been "more adversely affected" by high prices and are "not only depleting savings but lowering their standard of living."

4. "Most business groups anticipate that any further inflation must be followed by recession and economic chaos."

4. "Despite an inevitable inflationary pressure we cannot and should not refuse requests from abroad based on humanitarian appeals . . . we should make no impracticable, long-term commitments to Europe which separate the economies of eastern and western Europe and make western Europe continuously dependent on us for food."

6. "The surest and most effective way to halt inflationary pressures is to pare to the bone all Government-financed export and military programs."

7. "While Government officials from the President down have sought scapegoats for the present price situation, the truth is that the Administration's purchasing methods have contributed significantly to price inflation."

8. The "overzealous" application of the price support program for agricultural products has tended to prevent reduction of food prices.

Martin Asks List Of Those Fired For Security

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 13 (AP).—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., demanded today that the United States Civil Service Commission make public the names of 811 Government employes dropped for security reasons.

Asserting "the American people have a right to know who they are," the Massachusetts Republican leader told a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lions Clubs here:

"The Bill of Rights is designed to protect the liberties of the American people. It was not designed to afford a cloak for disloyalty to the United States."

N. Y. Court Upholds Obscene Book Verdict

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 13 (UP).—The Court of Appeals today unanimously affirmed a conviction of violating the State penal law against Doubleday & Co., publishers, relating to obscene literature in the book "Memoirs of Hecate County" by Edmund Wilson. There was no opinion.

The publishers were convicted last fall in New York City and fined $1000.

'Christmas Eve' Libels Kringle

By Richard L. Coe

"CHRISTMAS EVE," at the Warner, is the picture lousy.

Having expended what seemed all yesterday watching it, we don't intend to waste your time or our space on it. But for the record it is the sloppily told story of a rich old maid who once adopted three boys who turned out to be George Raft, George Brent and Randolph Scott, which ought to give you an idea. They left her because they didn't want to sponge on her and showed their affection by never dropping her so much as a postal in 20 years. When it looks as though she's going to be popped in the booby hatch and lose her fortune, she hopes the boys will come home for Christmas Eve. Through it all is stuffed Hollywood's worship of Mammon. The acting is ludicrous, the settings tasteless, the script abominable, the background music tripe and only sense of duty and the feeling you get at a snake pit kept us to the end. Avoid "Christmas Eve" as you would the plague.

DID YOU KNOW there are at least 32 drama groups in our town? Planning ahead for the spring's One-Act Play Tournament, Mabelle M. Clark, of the District Recreation Department, comes up with this imposing list of groups she knows about. In the event your group has not been contacted by the department and you are interested in entering the tournament, you might call her at ADams 2050. Next spring's will be the twentieth annual tournament, for which Byron C. Sarvis is serving as chairman. He's inviting all local drama groups (including suburban) to a meeting at 8 p. m. Monday, November 24, at the D. C. Recreation Offices, 3149 16th st. nw. That's a week from Monday

"CHRISTMAS EVE." United Artists release produced by Benedict Bogeaus, who wrote the screenplay from original stories by Laurence Stallings and Richard H. Landau. Music by Heinz Roemheld. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. At the Warner.

"DAILY READER" from Baltimore has a bone to pick with the comments we printed from Miss Cunningham about "Northwest Outpost," the Nelson Eddy-Ilona Massey film which played the Pix while we were seeing half a dozen others. "By passing along Miss Cunningham's comments you're going to make a lot of enemies. Of all the rotten pictures I've seen this was about the worst." So now you've had both extremes of "Northwest Outpost."

THE NATIONAL'S Christmas attraction will be Charlotte Greenwood in "I Remember Mama." Opening a two-week run Monday, December 22, the John van Druten play will be the season's third Theater Guild subscription offering. Because both are holiday weeks, the Wednesday matinees will be replaced with afternoon performances on Fridays, December 26 and January 2.

WITH TALF OF limiting the power of the upper house of Parliament, there's a news angle to the Columbia Light Opera Company's production tonight of "Iolanthe." For this Gilbert and Sullivan satire makes great sport of the House of Lords in that hummable "March of the Peers," sport which contributed to the breakup of the famous team. Queen Victoria knighted partner Arthur Sullivan and encouraged him to write operas and oratorios; by William Schwenk Gilbert's satire Victoria was not amused, and it wasn't till after her death he became Sir William. Ethyl Manning's company will repeat the operetta in Roosevelt Auditorium, 13th and Allison sts. nw., tomorrow afternoon and evening. The group's downtown headquarters is at 819 13th st.

"THE RIVALS" will be played tonight at St. Margaret's Church Hall by George Vivian's Academy of the Theater to benefit the church's Organ Fund. In the Sheridan comedy are Katherine Duffy, Jerry Speake, Oliver Henry, Stewart Smith, John Michael Condon, Alma Adleman and John Maggio, jr., Handres Rose, James Burke, Shirley Coller, Harold Mathias and Robert Cunningham.

TOMORROW: "Theater People About the Town," by Richard L. Coe.

BUSY AGAIN: After some screen inactivity, Joan Blondell's in there pitching again. She opened yesterday at the Warner in "Christmas Eve," reviewed in the column at the left, and is staying for a second well-deserved week at the Capitol in "Nightmare Alley," in which she does a fine acting job with Tyrone Power

Satan's No Match for Michael

Archangels and Devils Help People Western at the Met

By Leo Brady

In a short film that accompanies the feature at the Metropolitan this week, there's a sequence about a man who makes illusory floral designs by drilling holes in Lucite. One aspect of this "art" is that the driller never knows quite how the pattern will come out.

It is not at all unlikely that this startled craftsman had something to do with "Heaven Only Knows," a stained-glass Western which is, variously, fantasy, melodrama, comedy, farce and sermon. When it is being cute, it is mildly appealing. When it is melodramatic, it is standard. When it sermonizes, it is dull. And its over-all pattern is patchwork.

Robert Cummings plays Michael (presumably the Archangel), who is forced to come to earth to put wild-driving Brian Donlevy back on the narrow path. Motive for this is a celestial clerical error which nobody ought to object to since any story's premise is its own business.

No Miracles Allowed

Michael proceeds to lure Donlevy back to virtue (he is forbidden to use miracles, which is something) by a series of spot sermons interrupted by shooting affrays, six-alarm fires, collapsing skylights, a lynching and a character who looks like the Western villains you've been seeing for years but who turns out to be Satan himself. When Donlevy gets regenerated—through the love of Jorja Curtwright, a good but intense woman—Satan slips into the nearest oak tree and melts away.

There are the usual number of puns which rely on a literal interpretation of expressions like "you sure beat the devil," and Cummings is continually casting his eyes up toward his brows. And two events which look suspiciously like miracles do creep in. A miracle doesn't save the picture, however.

'The Captive Heart'

Integrity Marks Film About POWs

By Richard L. Coe

"THE CAPTIVE HEART," at the Hippodrome, is a finely made, deeply moving and honest film about a difficult subject—Britishers in a German prisoner of war camp during the war.

This import is British to the core. It has the integrity one associates with the better English films—honesty of setting, restraint of character and dignity of purpose.

The story it tells is possibly unlikely, but then so were many things which happened during the war. A Czech who has escaped from a concentration camp hides his identity by assuming that of a dead British officer. Captured, he spends four years with the British in a German POW camp and protects his life by writing to the wife of the man whose identity cards he holds.

Most of the film is devoted to the years in the lonely camp. By purposefully portraying the dullness of the life, the film attempts a matter that is pictorially daring. And somehow it comes off effectively, the endless procession of seasons in a lonely spot which, to its inhabitants, becomes a world in itself. It is effective because the approach is uncompromising.

This is done through natural casting. While the leading characters are played by professional actors, the film was made through active cooperation of Britain's Army of the Rhine and one of the Highland divisions. The men seem to be real and their speech is pretty realistic. (You'll even notice one spot in the soundtrack which evidently has been clipped to accommodate the chaste ears of American audiences.)

"THE CAPTIVE HEART." Universal International-Prestige release, produced by Ealing studios of Michael Balcon. Screenplay by Angus McPhail and Guy Morgan from a story by Patrick Kirwan. Directed by Basil Dearden. Music by Alan Rawsthorn, played by the Philharmonia Orchestra. At the Hippodrome.

Praise for Red Cross Aid

There's a one-pipper, a subaltern who goes blind because the Germans refuse a necessary eye operation. There are two "other rankers"—a private and a corporal who've been in business together before the war; the wife of one dies in childbirth shortly after he becomes a prisoner. There are the lads who say "Bob's your uncle," and who sing that song which one will always identify with World War II—"Bless 'Em All."

The importance of Red Cross packages and mail from home provide a heartening example of what you yourself may have done during those bleak days. The indefiniteness of "the duration" is the hardest thing these men have to bear and how important little incidents can be in admirably dramatized.

It's interesting, too, that the portrayal of the Germans reflects what one used to hear of them as POW caretakers during the war. They were considerably more humane than their Italian allies and the British filmmakers are faithful to this idea. Some of our personal friends were prisoners of the Italians and we recall they always used to say they wished they'd been caught by the Germans. While there are signs of Sadism in "The Captive Heart," they are of individual cases; the overall picture respects the international covenants.

Romance by Mail

The Czech (a professor of English from Prague, finely played by Michael Redgrave) ultimately meets the widow he has been corresponding with in the guise of her husband and the film suggests that their paper love will come to fruition. This fact has been handled with enough understanding to make such an idea acceptable.

The acting is knowingly done, with Redgrave's leading role outstanding. Rachel Kempson, his real-life wife, plays the woman whose letters comfort him and you'll find such noted British players as Frederick Leister, as her father; Elliot Mason, as the Scottish subaltern's mother; Basil Radford, as the major whose prewar interest was racing; and Ralph Michael (remember him at the National in "Love Goes to Press"?) as a medical officer.

There's nothing gay or glamorous about it, but there is an honesty and integrity about "The Captive Heart" which makes it an admirable film.

Tax Returns To Drop 14%, Institute Told

By S. Oliver Goodman

Nine million fewer Federal income tax returns are expected for 1947 than for last year, but total revenues should hold near 1946's level of 40 billion dollars.

Hamel

This was predicted by Charles D. Hamel, recently retired chairman of the Excess Profits Tax Council of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, who addressed a dinner meeting of the Institute of Federal Taxes at the Statler. Hamel has entered private law practice here.

Tax returns, he said, reached an all-time high of 84 million for 1945, with aggregate revenues of 44 billion dollars. Last year the returns declined to 64 million with 40 billion dollars revenue. This year reliable estimates placed the total number of returns at 55 million, with about 40 billion dollars revenues.

The Nation has come a long way since 1914, he said, when 755,000 Federal income tax returns were returned with revenues of 450 million dollars. With the levy now reaching one out of every two and a half persons, he added, the Bureau of Internal Revenue must use the "utmost caution" in its public relations work. Litigation is costly for both sides, he explained.

Another speaker at the Wednesday night meeting was E. Barrett Prettyman, associate justice of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, who outlined the ideal way for tax attorneys and Government officials to present their cases in court.

Presiding at the session was Robert Miller, institute advisory chairman. Another speaker was Dr. Fritz K. Mann, institute director. The third annual institute, recently concluded, was sponsored jointly by the American University and the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Among the guests were Paul F. Douglass, president of the American University, and Henry J. Merry, who succeeded Hamel as chairman of the Excess Profits Council.

TRANSIT WOES: Reflecting sharp declines in earnings, Capital Transit Co. common stock equaled its all-time low yesterday at 16¾. One hundred and fifty shares changed hands at this level on the Washington Stock Exchange in two transactions. The issue last year sold as high as 40½.

INNOVATIONS: Industry's growing awareness of the importance of "live" stockholder relations is exemplified in the current four-page letter to stockholders of the Idaho Power Co. Along with a simply presented report of activities during the past quarter, the company attracted reader interest with presentation of a detailed forecast of earnings covering the years 1947 through 1951, in addition to a tabulation of actual earnings from 1943 through 1946. A second innovation was a tabulation for the same years of plant account, retirement reserve, earned surplus and capital structure. Believing an informed stockholder is a better stockholder, the company also gave a full report on the status of its expansion program.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

A bee can pull 300 times its own weight. That's nothing—I've seen a bee move a 300-pound man with one little push.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

Loyalty Board May Reassure Worried Thousands

The 20-man loyalty review board, meeting here today for the first time, can be expected to set off a series of actions to reassure thousands of Federal workers who are worried over the loyalty inquiry. These actions are in the works:

1. The President will meet with the board at noon today. He has told several recent callers that his loyalty program must be administered with firmness and justice; that the civil rights of Federal workers must be protected, and that the program must not become a witch hunt. The President can be expected to say something similar to the board.

2. For the board to indorse a statement by Attorney General Tom C. Clark that mere membership of a Federal worker in a Communist front group is a minor factor and is insufficient cause for his removal. The major factor will be the employe's activity in the front—if he was a top officer in it, if he fixed and argued for pro-Soviet policies, etc.

The board members will have lunch with Clark at 1:15 p. m. At the lunch, the Attorney General can be expected to turn over to it his list of organizations he has decided is "subversive." The list will be accompanied by a statement which will point out that only membership in the Communist Party should be conclusive evidence of disloyalty.

The board can be expected to order prompt publication of the list.

3. The three Civil Service commissioners will propose to the board a long list of rules and regulations to cover the cases of accused employes who appeal to the board. These rules are reported to include:

That no employe should be suspended without pay from his job until he has been found guilty of disloyalty by the loyalty board in his agency. Also, that 30 days' notice be given to all accused employes, except in a rare case where the national security is at stake. The law now requires that a veteran be given a minimum of 30 days' notice before he can be suspended or fired.

Incidentally, the Civil Service Commission is slated to ask Congress for authority to pay any employe for the time he lost during a loyalty suspension if he's cleared eventually.

That the decisions of the Loyalty Review Board should be binding on the agencies so as to provide for a uniform loyalty policy throughout the Federal service. A new law makes decisions of the Civil Service Commission mandatory on the agencies in the appeals of veterans. In loyalty cases, the commission will delegate this absolute authority to the review board. So as to give equal protection to the veteran and the nonveteran employes, the board will insist that its decisions be followed.

That veterans accused of disloyalty be heard first by the loyalty boards in their agencies. The veterans preference law gives veterans to appeal any case of suspension or dismissal direct to the Civil Service Commission.

In a word, the rules and regulations will be drawn so as to treat all Federal workers alike, veterans and nonveterans.

That the Civil Service Commission set up a staff to inspect the handling of loyalty cases in all Federal agencies, and finally,.

That each agency must make a prompt report to the Civil Service Commission on how it disposed of any and all loyalty cases. The commission, in turn, will relay the information to the President.

It seems to be a clear possibility that the board eventually will assume jurisdiction over all loyalty cases in all Federal agencies. State, Army, Navy, Atomic Energy and Central Intelligence all operate under special laws which gives them the authority to fire any person in the interest of national security.

However, the employes in these agencies will be checked by the FBI and any accused employes will be free to appeal to the new Civil Service review board whose chairman is Seth W. Richardson, a prominent local attorney. But these five agencies can ignore the board's findings. In fact, they can ignore the board and refuse to give it information on which the firings were based. But it's a good bet they won't after what has happened in State.

NOTES: Mel Reese has been appointed director of the disposal property division at War Assets . . . Veterans Administration has openings for engineers and architects in its Richmond office. Salaries range from $4149 to $4902 . . . I.Q. Lord is chief of the new retail operations office in Commerce's Marketing Division.

BUDGET: The President told his press conference yesterday that it was positive and definite that James Webb would not resign as Budget director. Furthermore, he said that Webb had never discussed with him a desire to leave his post.

ARMY: In the not too distant future, Army Air Forces is slated to set u its own management and records staff—work now done for it by the Army. This is likely to result in the split-up of the Army's Adjutant General's Office and a transfer of part of it to the Air Forces.

Constitution Allows Home Rule, Insists Auchincloss

Differs With Laws; 12 Experts Have Passed on Legality Of Plan, He Says

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) said yesterday he believed it would be constitutional for Congress to turn over the job of making District laws to a locally elected city council.

He voiced this belief when asked for comment on questions raised by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court.

Justice Laws, in a talk to the District Bar Association Wednesday, said it would be "questionably constitutional" to create a legislative body in the District with general law-making powers similar to State legislative powers.

Auchincloss' proposal for District reorganization and home rule would place power to pass ordinances and general local laws in the hands of an elected city council, but Congress would retain the right to veto any action of the city council.

"I'm personally satisfied about the constitutionality of the plan," said Auchincloss.

He added that his House District subcommittee has asked for reports on the plan from 12 experts on constitutional law. He said he was not yet ready to release their reports.

He agreed with a suggestion from a reporter that the home-rule plan would not reduce the present authority of Congress over the District, although that power would be exercised by a veto. "Congress could reverse the whole thing (home rule) any time it wants," he added.

Justice Laws also cautioned the Bar Association that a plan to strip the present District Courts here of all but strictly Federal jurisdiction might develop from the Auchincloss committee studies.

On this point, Auchincloss said that no decision on what should be done with the courts would be made until the subcommittee met to discuss it.

Silver Spring Rezoning Plea Withdrawn

To gain more time for organized support of their apartment rezoning requests, owners of the Watson-Rose tract in Silver Spring, Md., yesterday withdrew the controversial rezoning petition.

Twice denied by the county commissioners, the petition, asking apartment classification of the 20½-acre trace at Colesville rd. and Dale dr., has met with large scale opposition from adjoining and nearby home owners.

Backers of the development have disclosed they plan a 300-unit garden type apartment project for the property.

Following the most recent rejection, the owners, J. A. Watson, jr., H. F. Watson and Hilleary D. Rose, ran advertisements in local papers soliciting support of apartment projects in Montgomery County.

The ads asked apartment seekers to "fight" for apartment rezoning, pointing out a majority of such petitions are disapproved by the county commissioners.

Revealing the owners' plan to resubmit their petition at a later date, possibly in January, Rose said:

"We intend to wait until we can enlist the support of many county residents who need and desire expansion of apartment facilities in this county."

He said the advertising campaign to organize public support has thus far met with "good response."

2 Policemen To Face Trial Board Today

Two Metropolitan Police privates will appear before a police trial board this morning.

They are Pvt. Edward Long, 32, Twelfth Precinct patrolman, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer, and Pvt. Raymond Fuge, 36, First Precinct patrolman, charged with failure to communicate with his station through the signal system, and failure to patrol his beat properly.

Affidavits charging Private Long were filed by Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Boxwell, 14 R st. ne., following their arrest, with a guest, James Clark, 22 E st. ne., on disorderly conduct charges by the officer last October 17. The charges were dismissed in Municipal Court by Judge Armond Scott.

The policeman testified that he had heard loud noises coming from the Boxwell home as he passed through an alley. After observing numerous bottles on a table through the window, he entered the house and placed the three under arrest, he said.

Private Fuge is accused of being found asleep in Union Station between 3 and 4 a. m. on November 1 after he had failed to communicate with his station on schedule.

Aftermath of Crash Before Dawn . . .

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

STRETCHER CASE—Members of the Police Accident Investigation Unit and ambulance crewmen put Erna Harvey, 30, of 3801 Blaine st. ne., on a stretcher beside a wrecked 1947 sedan which, police said, she was driving when it crashed into a car parked in front of 3012 Alabama ave., about 2:20 a. m. yesterday. James H. Elliott, 25, passenger in the Harvey car, is bandaged but appears still dazed. Both were taken to Casualty Hospital where their conditions were pronounced "fair"

6000 Cases Seen

Saved Lives Will Pay for Lung X-Rays

Costs of the 1948 city-wide X-ray survey for tuberculosis will be more than paid for in lives, members of the Metropolitan Washington Tuberculosis Conference were told yesterday.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, Montgomery County, Md., health officer, was elected president of the conference at its semiannual meeting held at Howard University School of Medicine, 520 W st. nw.

Plans for checking all District persons over 15 years of age was the chief business before the conference.

The survey will begin January 12, and continue until June 15, 1948.

Sponsors of the survey, first to be held in a city of more than a half million population, are the United States Public Health Service, District of Columbia Health Department and District Tuberculosis Association.

Expect to Find 6000 Cases

"The cost of X-ray service and correlated activities will be more than paid for if we save some 20 of the approximately 4000 persons expected to be found in the minimal stage," Dr. Robert J. Anderson, senior surgeon, Tuberculosis Control Division, United States Public Health Service, said.

"The thing we are counting on is a knockout blow," he said, "on the principle that each case comes from another case."

"It is hoped that at least 600,000 persons will be X-rayed, and we can expect at least 1 per cent, or 6000 cases of tuberculosis," said Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director, District Health Department's Bureau of Tuberculosis.

"Previous surveys would lead us to believe that 4200, or 75 per cent, of these will be in the minimal stage, as contrasted with the 20 to 30 per cent we now find," Dr. Coulter said.

Social Factors Discussed

Public Health Nursing, social factors, and health education in relation to the survey were discussed during the afternoon session by Lila Anderson from Catholic University of America, Ruth Taylor of the United States Public Health Service, and Claudia B. Galliher of the Montgomery County (Md.) Tuberculosis Association.

The morning session was devoted to meetings of special sections.

Dr. Howard M. Payne, associate professor of medicine at Howard University College of Medicine, was elected vice president, and Mrs. Rebecca Sweeney, director, Professional Information Bureau, District Tuberculosis Association, was elected secretary.

Named to the executive committee for one-year terms were: Dr. John Sims, Alexandria, Va.; Dr. W. A. Hardin, associate professor of medicine, Howard University, and Miss Galiher. Named for two-year terms were Mrs. Barbara Hodges, administrative officer, Medical Social Work, Catholic University of America, and Dr. Charles P. Cake, Washington.

Minister's Death Brings Total to 65

Traffic deaths this year..... 65
Deaths this date last year.... 56
Total deaths last year 72

The Rev. Frederick W. Johnson, 83-year-old retired Baptist minister, 401 Seward sq. se., died at Casualty Hospital at 5 p. m. yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday when struck by an automobile.

Death was due to head and internal injuries, but no certificate of death has been issued.

The city's 64th traffic fatality of the year also went on record yesterday with death of Jesse Rucker, 27, of 1712 Corcoran st. nw., who died Wednesday after being struck by a car during Tuesday's heavy rains.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson, police said, walked into the side of a moving ice truck at North Carolina ave. and 4th st. se. The truck was driven by Ernest Stevenson, 35, of 1335 3d st. sw., who will appear before a coroner's inquest.

Mr. Johnson, a native of Pennsylvania, came to Washington about 40 years ago and had been pastor of the Grace Baptist Church, 9th st. and South Carolina ave. se., for 35 years before his retirement in 1942.

He leaves his wife and a sister, Mrs. Rozella Noblette of Philadelphia.

In an early-morning accident, Erna Harvey, 30, of 3801 Blaine st. ne., suffered a possible brain concussion when the car she was driving struck a parked car at 3012 Alabama ave. ne.

One other person, James H. Elliott, 25, of 4546 Overlook ave. se., a passenger in the Harvey car, suffered head injuries and face cuts.

Police said the Harvey car struck a parked car, owned by Nellie Anderson.

92, Boasts of Digging 20 Bushels of Spuds

Kendallville, Ind. (U.P.).—Mrs. August Haas got tired of hearing some 80-year-old and 90-year-old fellow townsmen boast of going fishing at their ages.

"If these old people want to go fishing, that's their business. I planted a garden last spring, tended it and recently dug 20 bushels of potatoes from it, unassisted," she said.

Mrs. Haas is 92.

Handicap Well Licked

Hinsdale, Mass. (U.P.).—Charles L. Winchell, 62, who has been blind since he was 6, has made a living and raised a family of seven children during the past 50 years by repairing chairs.

City Investigates Death of 2 After Being Jailed as Drunks

District authorities yesterday probed the death of two men who died within 20 hours after police detention.

The dead are:

Arthur G. Simler, 66-year-old bookkeeper of 121 Longfellow st. nw., who was arrested twice for intoxication Tuesday and released on collateral both times. He died at his home about 8:35 a. m. Wednesday.

Jesse Rucker, 27, an ice company laborer of 1712 Corcoran st. nw., who was struck by an auto at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday. He was examined by three doctors in one hospital, who diagnosed his condition as "acute alcoholism," released to police on a jaywalking charge, and returned to his home. He died in another hospital at 11:20 p. m. Wednesday.

Both men, according to autopsies, had skull fractures, but no death certificates have been issued pending inquests. A coroner's jury will be sworn in on both cases today.

Bailed Out by Friend

Simler, described as "staggering badly," was arrested at 5 p. m. Tuesday at 4th and Kennedy sts. nw. He was released at 9:45 p. m. when a friend paid $10 collateral for him. During his detention, police said there was one other man with him in the cell block. The other prisoner said he neither heard nor saw anything to indicate "trouble."

At 11:50 p. m., Simler was found lying on the sidewalk near his home and police were called. Police on the wagon said he was able to walk and answered questions readily when booked again at the Sixth Precinct.

Simler was alone in the cell block at 4 a. m. and received permission to make telephone calls. At 5 a. m. another friend appeared, paid $10 collateral and took Simler away in his car. The friend told police later Simler walked up the steps to his home without assistance.

Landady Hears Him Fall

Shortly after 7:30 a. m., Simler's landlady, Mrs. Anna Einhaug, heard a heavy thud in his room. He weighed over 200 pounds.

When he failed to answer her call, she investigated and found him slumped over a table.

Dr. S. C. Weiner, 100 Longfellow st. nw., pronounced him dead at 8:35 a. m. Homicide Detective Sergts. John Curtis, George W. Cook and Carl Howe said a few strands of hair were found on a radiator in the bedroom. Spots of blood were found on the bed linen, on a blotter where his head had rested and on his collar.

Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg said an autopsy disclosed a "recent fracture—within 24 hours." He said there were bruises on the man's left arm and right shoulder and that the autopsy disclosed indications of a heart condition.

Rucker, whose death went on city traffic records yesterday as the sixty-fourth of the year compared to 56 at this time last year, was struck in the 1700 block of 16th st. nw., during Tuesday's driving rain. Driver of the car was Norris C. Bakke, 53 of 1111 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md., associate general counsel for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., of Washington.

According to Pvt. Robert P. Herlong, of the Accident Investigation Unit, Rucker was crossing the street outside the crosswalk.

Bakke, who said he saw Rucker only a split second before the left front fender struck him, took him to Emergency Hospital. En route, Bakke said, Rucker was conscious and sat up in the seat beside him.

Dr. Charles Wirth, an interne at Emergency, said Rucker walked in, supported by Bakke, and shortly afterward asked to go to the bathroom. An orderly was with him in the bathroom when he collapsed.

He was given a "complete examination," Dr. Wirth said, but no X-rays were taken. Rucker had regained partial consciousness about 7:30 p. m., but was so restless that a restraining strap was put across his chest.

Dr. Wirth's diagnosis was "acute alcoholism." After Dr. Wirth went off duty, two others, Dr. James McCarthy and Dr. Richard Myers, also made examinations. After 3 hours and 35 minutes, Rucker was released to the Third Precinct, charged with violation of pedestrian controls.

Police said he remained in a cell until 3 a. m., when he was released to get collateral. He never returned.

Seemed Normal to Wife

Lieut. William J. Liverman of the AIU quoted Rucker's 20-year-old wife, Savala, as saying she picked him up in a taxi after his release and took him home. He appeared normal, Liverman quoted his wife, but complained of a headache.

She attempted to awaken him about daylight Wednesday, but he only mumbled, she said. Later she went out to get him some headache powders. When she tried to awaken him about noon, she got no response and called Dr. David H. Reid, 1736 U st. nw., who advised immediate hospitalization.

D.C. Has Third '47 Polio Death; Total of 21 Cases Reported

Washington's third death of the year from poliomyelitis was reported yesterday—a case in which doctors said paralysis, in three hours, raced to a stage ordinarily reached in a week.

The victim was 28-year-old Fred Featherstone of 105 Anacostia rd. se., personnel officer at the Coast and Geodetic Survey, who died at Gallinger Hospital a week ago.

His death was reported in Health Department data released yesterday, disclosing a total of 21 infantile paralysis cases in the District and 34 in the suburban area this year.

Mr. Featherstone, father of three children, returned home from work at noon October 31, apparently suffering from the grippe. By Sunday, friends said, he was hardly able to sit up. Between 9 a. m. Monday, when a second doctor was called, and 1 p. m., when he was taken to the hospital, paralysis made it almost impossible for him to move.

Funeral services were held in Provo, Utah, early this week.

The Featherstones had lived in Washington since 1939. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mary Ann, 5; and two sons, Thomas, 3, and David, 9 months.

$10,000 Bond Set For Pair Held in Couple's Abduction

Speedy police work yesterday was credited wit hsolving two brutal holdups in th evicinity of Union Station Monday night.

Three youths arrested by police in connection wit hthe holdups were ordered held for action by the grand jury when arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Armond Scott. Judge Scott set bond for each man at $10,000.

The three are Charles W. Taylor, 21, and Russell L. Perry, 21, both of 212 D st. nw., and Harold Scott, 20, of 825 New Jersey ave. nw.

Police said Taylor and Perry were the pair who held up Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones of 3334 Blaine st. ne., Monday night on a parking lot near Union Station. The middle-aged couple were forced into their own car at gunpoint and abducted. They were beaten with the gun before they managed to escape from the car.

And, police said, it was Perry and Scott who later that night held up Paul S. Allen, 47, of Baltimore, and shot him in the thigh near Union Station.

Taylor and Perry were arrested Tuesday night at their D st. rooming house, shortly after the Joneses' stolen car had been found abandoned. Police said a .38-caliber revolver was found in their room.

Apparently on information furnished by Taylor and Perry, robbery squad detectives picked up Scott at his home about 5 a. m. yesterday.

Police said Scott, who is on parole from Lorton, denied knowing anything about the holdup and abduction of the Jones couple.

He said he was on his way home Monday night when "these two guys" drove by and offered him a ride. Police said Scott related that when he climbed into the back seat he discovered it wet with blood and found a blood-smeared hat. He said he asked Taylor and Perry what had happened and they answered that they had "just beat up a guy."

Mrs. Larrabee Of 'Oakwood' Is Dead at 54

Mrs. Madge Stokes Larrabee, 54, owner of Oakwood in Warrenton, Va., died yesterday at Doctors Hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Larrabee

Wife of Col. Sterling Larrabee, Mrs. Larrabee had moved to Oakwood in 1917, and had developed there one of the most beautiful estates in northern Virginia.

Born in Baltimore, she was the daughter of the late Sylvanus Stokes, a prominent Washington businessman, and Minnie Stokes.

Mrs. Larrabee moved to Stokes, Va., at an early age and was educated in Virginia.

In 1917, her father bought Oakwood, which had been given as an original grant to Col. Martin Pickett, a direct ancestor of Mrs. Larrabee, for his services in the Revolutionary War.

A niece of Gen. George E. Pickett, famous for his charge at Gettysburg in 1863, Mrs. Larrabee, acting as her own designer and architect, developed the estate.

Three Acres of Gardens

The estate, which has 441 acres, with a grove of 200-year-old oak trees, contains 3 acres of gardens which Mrs. Larrabee developed. The Garden Club of America describes the boxwood in the garden as "the finest collection of boxwood in northern Virginia."

The house was built by Col. Martin Pickett, who added to it in 1805 and gave it to his daughter, Elizabeth. The house commands a view of the Blue Ridge Mountains and the Shenandoah Valley.

In 1924 she was married to Colonel Larrabee, a graduate of West Point. Colonel Larrabee was sent overseas in the spring of 1942, and served as assistant military attache to the Union of South Africa until 1944, when he was made military attache to Greece and Yugoslavia. Colonel Larrabee returned to the United States in the spring of last year.

Entertained Windsors

Mrs. Larrabee was the hostess of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on their trip to the United States in October, 1946.

Blinded Negro Loses Suit Against Bus Line for Ejection

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—A Circuit Court jury returned a verdict for the defendant today in a $50,000 damage suit brought against the Atlantic Greyhound Corp. by a Negro veteran who said he was blinded by Batesburg, S. C., police officers after being put off a bus in South Carolina.

The jury, composed of 1 Negro and 11 white men, deliberated four hours today before reaching a verdict. It received the case yesterday afternoon, and after nearly two hours asked Judge Julian F. Bouchelle to re-read the court's instructions regarding the laws in the case.

Isaac Woodward, jr., the 28-year-old veteran, brought the suit against the bus company. He contended the bus driver wrongly identified him as the person creating a disturance on the carrier and had the Batesburg officers remove him.

Woodward said a beating he suffered at the hands of policemen after they removed him from the bus caused the loss of his sight.

Tar Heels Bring Record Throng to Terp Game

The Washington Post Sports
4B Friday, November 14, 1947

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

I DON'T HOLD with the calamity howling college football coaches who go around moaning about the utter hopelessness of trying to win Saturday's game. It's supposed to be fashionable among coaches, I guess, to put their heads to the wailing wall and lament the futility of it all but whoinell do they think they're kidding?

POVICH

This week, Jim Tatum has been saying Maryland won't come within five touchdowns of beating North Carolina. Frank Leahy of Notre Dame and Earl Blaik of Army approach every game with a good cry. Gil Dobie used to sob it out pretty well, too, and Mr. Average College Coach reacts like a skeptic dyspeptic during the week before the big game.

Even when their gloom is warranted, as it rarely is, I'd have to say they offer a messy spectacle in selling their kids short publicly. The coach is supposed to inspire a football squad with his leadership, but decrying their chances before they go into a ball game is doubtful inspiration. They call it psychology, I guess, but their football players, meanwhile, are taking a bum rap.

I'M WAITING for the day when a football squad gets tired of hearing their coach describe 'em as hopeless incompetents who don't stand a chance of winning Saturday's game. Some day some team is going to tell off a coach properly, and will be applauded. I visualize a fed-up squad of college guys telling a coach to shut his trap and listen for a while because:

"If you don't think we can win, why don't you pack up your belongings and clear out of here. We think we can win, even if you don't. We don't need your lack of confidence in us, so we'll play this ball game by ourselves. If we're gonna get beat by eight touchdowns, we don't want any I-told-you-sos. Anyway, you're just a hired hand who hasn't any faith is us. So scram!"

It's a thin technique of the coaches, anyway, this week-to-week gloom. If they win in the face of their dire forebodings, then, of course, they're pure genius who did a miracle coaching job to get their team down in front. In defeat, they've built up a pregame alibi. The calamity coaches are always in there protecting themselves.

GIVE ME THE baseball manager or the professional football coach, like Bucky Harris or Ray Flaherty, who will say after a losing ball game, "Those lucky stiffs who beat us won't do it again." They don't decry their own material. They know their teams would walk out from under 'em with the support of the club owners if they popped off like the college coaches.

What the college coaches say may be for only public consumption, and they probably tell their athletes otherwise in their closed sessions, but it doesn't sit right anyway. More refreshing is the technique of Tom Hamilton, the Navy coach, who has never yet deplored his losing outfit which has won only two games in two seasons.

The worst that Hamilton has ever said about his Navy teams is that "We made too many mistakes," and it's always "we," including Hamilton, not "they." Before last year's Army game when Navy was a 28-point underdog and the opportunity inviting for Hamilton to flaunt his pregame alibi, he told newspapermen, "We ought to crock Army tomorrow. I think we can win."

LEAHY OF Notre Dame can be pretty modest in victory, though. After beating Army 27-7 the other day at South Bend, he merely commented, "I thought we played an improved game." But a coach who wins a big game can afford to be pretty smug. The final score is a big compliment in itself.

A couple of years ago when Notre Dame knocked off some opponent, 60 to 0, or thereabouts, Leahy refused to display complete joy. "We were weak on kicking extra points," he said.

When a team gets licked 73 to 0, as the Redskins did by the Bears in 1940, the coach ordinarily is entitled to throw up his hands and admit he didn't have much material to work with. But Ray Flaherty didn't say that. "We could have won it," he said, thus confessing he had helped to boot it.

Armory Seat Ban Won't Halt Schools

Cox Says They Can Use Own Bleachers

The refusal yesterday of the District Commissioners to allow the National Guard to install bleachers in the armory will not prevent the high schools and colleges from playing scheduled basketball games in the huge edifice, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, National Guard unit commander, said last night.

An application for a permit to install the temporary bleachers was rejected, the Commissioners said, because it listed the "D. C. National Guard" as owner of the armory.

"I see no reason why the high schools and colleges can't bring their own bleachers and we'll help them install them," General Cox said. "Surely, the Commissioners wouldn't stop them from playing now after they have arranged their schedules."

Also denied was a National Guard application for a license to use the armory as a "public building." Commissioner Guy Mason said the Guard needed no license to use the armory for its own activities. And only the Commissioners have authority to lease the building to outsiders, so the Guard would have no need for a license in any event, he added.

These actions were the latest moves in a long battle between the Commissioners and Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, National Guard unit commander, over who will control nonmilitary use of the armory.

On the matter of using the Armory as a "public building," General Cox said:

"If the Commissioners object to the Guard as owners of the building, then those who wish to use the Armory merely have to go to the Commissioners to get permission. We are not interested so much in who gives the permission, all we want to see is the Armory used."

The National Seating Co., which applied for the permit, had planned to install 3800 seats on the main floor of the arena, Cox said.

Sox said he didn't know why the Guard had applied for the license. "I suppose the officer who made the application thought it would be the courteous thing to do," he declared.

The Arena Sports Shop has donated a trophy for the outstanding performer on the card. Tickets, priced from 80 cents general admission to $2.20 ringside, are on sale at the armory; The Sport Center, 9th and D nw. and at the Arena Sport Shop, 14th and W sts. nw.

Villanova Is Favored Over Hoyas

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Georgetown, which has had one Villanova wildcat by the tale for a week, invades the lair of all the Wildcats here at Shibe Park, 8:30 tomorrow night.

The Hoya gridders go into the game two-touchdown underdogs and, rumor has it, the Villanovans are enraged over the theft by Georgetown students of their live wildcat mascot, Count Villain, III.

Coach Jack Hagerty's hoping the opposition won't be too angry. He thinks the task of upsetting Villanova will be difficult enough under the most favorable circumstances.

After a few futile attempts to rescue their mascot in Washington this week, some of the boys from the Main Line campus took to the air to retalliate.

Uncomplimentary leaflets were dropped on Georgetown from a Piper Cub. They predicted dire consequences for the Hoyas on the football field tonight, specifically a 34-0 victory.

While the students frolicked—both schools held big pep rallies tonight—the respective football squads concluded their preparations for the game.

Up and down Georgetown figures to have a chance against Villanova—if it's "up." Last week's off date means that a rested Hoya squad will go into action. It was particularly beneficial for the injured Babe Baranowski, who's slated to start at quarterback.

The other starting backs include Lefthalf Tom Graham, Fullback Connie O'Doherty and either Len Bonforte or Joe Sullivan at right halfback.

Incidentally, Graham is one of three Philadelphians in Georgetown's starting lineup. The others are End Fran Desmond and Tackle Tom Dolan.

The Hoyas have split even in six games and showed to advantage in two of their three games on the road. Wake Forest beat the local club, 6-0, in North Carolina and the Hoyas traveled to Oklahoma to upset Tulsa, 12-0.

Boston College is the only mutual opponent tomorrow night's foes have faced. Georgetown took a 27-6 pasting and Villanova lost by 6 to 0.

WINX Airs Game

The Georgetown - Villanova game will be broadcast by Bob Wolff, 8:15 tonight over WINX.

Kinney May Be Lost to Old Liners; N. C. in Doubt About Its Fullback

Snavely Undecided on Rodgers Or Other Stalwart, Walt Pupa

By Noel Houston
Special to The Washington Post

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 13.—North Carolina rooters, the greatest number ever to attend an out-of-State game—packed bags today in readiness to ride special planes, trains and cars to the Maryland game in Washington's Griffith Stadium Saturday.

As the Tar Heel caravan of partisans made ready to roll, the burning question down here was: "Who will start at fullback against the Old Liners?"

The fullback plays a mighty role in Coach Carl Snavely's single-wing system. Hosea Rodgers and Walt Pupa have seesawed for two seasons trying to prove which is the better man at the position.

Snavely himself hasn't come out with a flat announcement, except to say that Rodgers may not be sufficiently recovered from injuries received in the Tennessee game two weeks ago. On the other hand, Pupa, along with several backs, including Charlie Justice, is reported ailing with a bad cold.

Pupa 1946 Star

This Rodger-Pupa teeter-totter started at the beginning of last season when Rodgers was supposed to tear the opposition apart. But when Rodgers couldn't get going, his understudy, Pupa, took over and before the season's end had sports writers throughout the country calling him one of the game's great, both at passing and running.

This season saw Rodgers still on the bench, but when Pupa bogged down the first three games, Rodgers got another chance. He proceeded to run wild in the Florida game and his passes couldn't miss. Big and so fast he is sometimes sent on "outside" plays, Rodgers then went on to rip the Tennessee line at will, again putting on a great passing display.

Then an injury laid up Rodgers and Pupa was called on last week against N. C. State. Smarting from bench splinters, Pupa trotted out on the field and on the first play from scrimage plowed through the center for 65 yards for a touchdown. You could almost hear him muttering, "That'll show 'em."

If the Maryland defenders stop both Rodgers and Pupa Saturday, an 18-year-old fullback named Bob Kennedy, 176 pounds, who has looked good in the few chances he has had, may get a shot. Kennedy, who got his first college letter at the tender age of 16, is noted for an ability to slip through the cracks.

No matter which of these fullbacks bears the brunt for Carolina, it is dead certain his throwing arm will be used as much as his churning legs. In the Snavely system, both the tailback and the fullback must be equal pass-threats.

Center Bruises Right Shoulder; He's Listed 'Very Doubtful'

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland's chances of knocking off North Carolina at Griffith Stadium Saturday received a sock on the chin yesterday.

A sock on the shoulder would be more specific because it was Center Gene Kinney was injured and the chances of playing against the Tar Heels were pronounced "very doubtful" by Trainer Duke Wyre.

If Kinney, a red-headed junior from Louisville, Ky., can't play at all or even if he isn't at top strength, the Terps will really suffer a tremendous loss.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pounder is Maryland's defensive bulwark and is high on the list for All-Southern Conference honors. He's one of the few players Coach Jim Tatum leaves inth e game both on offense and defense.

No Break But Bad Bruise

Kinney injured his shoulder in Wednesday's gruelling session, but didn't complain about it until yesterday morning when he reported to the college infirmary.

At first, it was believed he had suffered either a separation of a fracture, but X-rays revealed he's got a bad bruise.

Kinney, a big, rangy speedster has sparkled in every one of Maryland's six victories. He's Maryland's key man on defense. Not only is he a fine line-backer and pass-defender, but he also calls the defensive signals.

"There goes our ball game," moaned Champion Moaner Tatum when he heard the sad news about Kinney.

Jim Reaches into Reserves

To fill the breach, Tatum alternated Junior Jimmy Brasher, 187-pound Waco, Texas, junior, and Freshman Jake Rowden, 190-pounder from Duncan, Ariz., at center in yesterday's drill. He also reached down on the "B" squad and promoted Bill Everson, a Pittsburgh freshman, to the varsity.

In the West Virginia game, in which Maryland stopped the Mountaineer running game cold, Tatum used all three—Kinney, Brasher and Rowden—as linebackers at the same time in his 5-3-2-1 defensive pattern.

To halt the thrusts of Fullbacks Hosea Rodgers and Walt Pupa and Tailback Charlie Justice of North Carolina, he had planned to employ the same system.

Jesse Flores Sold by Macks

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics today announced sale of Pitcher Jesse Flores to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League for the $10,000 waiver price.

Manager Connie Mack said it was the first step in the Athletics rebuilding program, making room for younger, more aggressive players. He said something may develop in the way of another deal in a day or two.

Commenting on reporters the A's are seeking Washington's Jerry Priddy, Mack reported the Senators wouldn't sell and added there is no chance of buying a player in the majors or triple A at this time. Trades alone will bring new faces to the club, he added.

Flores had his best year with the A's in 1943, the year he came up from Los Angeles, winning 12 and lost 14.

No Offer—Griff

Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, denied yesterday that the Athletics had made an offer for Second Baseman Gerry Priddy. "Any deal we make must be on a player-trade basis," he said. "There is no chance of a cash sale."

Navy, Swarthmore In Big Soccer Test

Annapolis, Nov. 13.—Navy and Swarthmore, two of the strongest soccer teams in collegiate circles, will meet at 10 a. m. Saturday on Lawrence Field.

Navy has won seven and lost one, but may be without the services of Manuel Bentin, Peruvian inside right, and Al Schaufelberger, All-American goalie, due to injuries.

Lions Strengthened Tonight For Match With Springfield

Washington's Lions, refreshed by a good rest and strenghtened by the reporting of a new player and the return of two injured men, may end their losing streak at six tonight when they meet Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians at Uline Arena 8:30 o'clock.

George Hunchuk, 185-pound defenseman, makes his debut with the local pros while Larry Archambeault, sturdy defenseman, and Kenny Schultz, flying center, have recovered sufficiently from recent injuries to compete.

The Lions have defeated the Indians twice previously this season by scores of 6-0 (here) and 7-5 (in Springfield). However, Springfield skates in here fresh from a 7-2 rout of the St. Louis Flyers.

The availability of Archambeault and Hunchuk on defense makes it possible to return Walter Babey to the forward line and to alternate the versatile Red Raney where he is needed. Schultz, a fine center and fiery competitor, is one of the best team men on the squad.

Pro Basketball League Folds

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—The infant 16-club Professional Basketball League of America bllew up today in a splash o fred ink, flooding 160 players, plus managers and coaches, into the pro player market.

The league, stretching into 13 midwest and southern states from St. Paul, Minn., to Houston, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga., lost a reported $600,000, including promotional expenses, in operating less than a month.

All players on the 16 clubs have been declared free agents, which means they are permitted to negotiate with teams in the National League or the Basketball Association of America.

This decision is particularly important to stars like George Mikan, 6-foot, 9-inch center, and Bobbie McDermott of the Chicago Gears. Mikan, an outstanding star in the Nation, was playing for an annual salary of $12,000.

The league was made up of two divisions, as follows: Northern Division—Chicago, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Kansas City, Mo.; Louisville, Ky.; Omaha, Nebr.; St. Joseph, Mo.; St. Paul, Minn., and Waterloo, Iowa. Southern division—Atlanta, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Houston, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Springfield, Mo., and Tulsa, Okla.

Johns Hopkins Lists 1948 Football Slate

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP).—Johns Hopkins University today announced an eight-game schedule for 1948. Two switches were made in opponents, Franklin and Marshall replacing Randolph-Macon and Dickinson listed instead of Haverford.

The tentative schedule:

October 2, Franklin and Marshall; 9, Washington, away; 16, Penn Military; 23, Catholic U, away; 30, Drexel, away. November 6, Swarthmore; 13, Dickinson; 20, Western Maryland, away.

N. Y. Leads Caps, 40-27, at Half

New York, Nov. 13. — The Basketball Association of America opened its second season in New York tonight when the New York Knickerbockers clashed with the Washington Capitols before 13,000 in Madison Square Garden.

The Knicks held at 40 to 27 lead at the half.

Apparently in mid-season physical condition, the Knicks ran the visitors ragged in the first half and wound up with a 13-point edge

Rose Bowl Television Slated for First Time

NBC will film the game here and rush the reels to the Atlantic Coast for eastern television release. KTLA will televise the game directly from the Rose Bowl for release in southern California.

Kentucky to Expand

Other Favorites Should Win

Sleeper of Week Is Navy to Upset Unbeaten Penn State

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—With the limb badly bent but still unbroken, this football forecaster inches closer to the end for another round of gridiron guesses in the hope of improving an average that stands at .792 on 439 correct predictions and 115 misses:

Michigan vs. Wisconsin—By their antics of recent weeks, the Badgers have transformed what was to have been a breeze for Michigan into Saturday's major attraction, with the Big Nine title at stake. But if Bob Chappuis can't dent the tough Wisconsin line he should be able to penetrate a weak Badger pass defense. One hefty vote for Michigan.

Army vs. Pennsylvania—The Quakers have had some setups on their schedule but they dumped Virginia out of the all-victorious ranks and manhandled Columbia, which broke Army's streak. What chance do the Cadets have without a potent passing attack? Looks like this is the year the Quakers go all the way. A confident vote for Pennsylvania.

Georgia Tech vs. Alabama—Tech is all-victorious but 'Bama has come up fast since two early season defeats and this game rates as a toss-up. Unless the Yellow Jackets have been fooling the last two weeks, they may get their wings clipped here. Strictly on a hunch, Alabama.

Penn State vs. Navy—Here's our sleeper for the week. All-victorious Penn State, with the country's best defensive record, is a 6½ point favorite to take a Navy club that has won only once. But Elwood Petchel's absence won't help the Penn State offense. In an upset, Navy.

Texas Christian vs. Texas—Once-beaten Texas can't afford a let-up here. TCU has recovered from a slow start and the winner can latch on to second place in the Southwest Conference. Texas.

Washington vs. UCLA—If the Uclans don't try to look ahead to their important November 22 struggle with Southern Cal., they should have no trouble, although Washington is improving.

Mississippi State vs. Louisiana State—What's happened to the LSU club, which was supposed to burn up the Southeastern Conference? Little to choose between these two. Out of the hat, Mississippi State.

Arkansas vs. Southern Methodist—Nothing is safe in the Southwest Conference, but SMU has negotiated its biggest hurdle and is heading for the Cotton Bowl. Southern Methodist.

Holy Cross vs. Columbia—Lou Little's Lions have lost their chance for the Ivy League crown but have a habit of treating outsiders roughly, as Army and Navy can tell you. 'Til Rossides breaks his arm, Columbia.

Minnesota vs. Iowa — These two teams aren't going anywhere in the Big Nine but this should be worth the money. One fat vote for Minnesota.

Montana vs. California—Montana has won its two Pacific Coast conference games to date but the picnic is over. California.

Texas A. and M. vs. Rice—Both teams lost to Southern Methodist, as who hasn't. Probably a close one. Our guess is Rice.

Oklahoma vs. Missouri—Oklahome needs this one to stay in the Big Six race but the Tigers are tough. Eeenie, meenie . . . Missouri.

Oregon vs. Stanford—By winning here, Oregon could share in the Pacific Coast title if UCLA bumps Southern California. Oregon.

Illinois vs. Ohio State—The once-mighty Buckeyes have fallen on evil days. Not even close. Illinois.

Colts Hope For Upset in Game Today

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Calvin Coolidge's defending champion Colts, struggling desperately to get back into the running for an interhigh football playoff berth get their do-or-die chance today at 3 p. m. when they tangle with McKinley Tech's unbeaten Trainers in the most important schoolboy game of the weekend.

Central's Vikings, tied for first with the Trainers, invade Western High and Eastern entertains Wilson, in interhigh play, both games beginning at 3 p. m. A side attraction will be the cross-country race between Western and Central at halftime at Western Stadium. It will be the first such race in interhigh history.

Victories for the Central and Tech grid warriors would eliminate Coolidge and send both the Vikings and Trainers into the championship game undefeated and untied in league competition.

The Colts only hopes remain in a combination of wins against Tech today and Anacostia next week, and two losses for either Central or Tech in their two remaining games. Central and Tech are slated to meet next week.

Carrying a hot streak of three straight shutout victories into today's scrap the Colts are conceded a fair chance to trip the Trainers, despite the latter's record of having held their league foes scoreless in five straight contests.

The Colts will bank on two backfield veterans of last year's championship team, Bobby Rohr, the team's triple-threat, and Houston "Tex" Jones, speedy breakaway runner. They'll get plenty of help in the passing department from Sophomore Chuck Davis and former Roosevelt star, Jess Houston.

Prime passing target will be the rising young Left End Don Helfer, who was a third stringer last year. Other line standouts are Tackle Chuck Ackerman and Center Krys Valanos, both holdovers from last year.

Almost the entire Tech team is made up of veterans of last year's championship game, which the Trainers lost, 18-6, to Coolidge.

Backfield pacemakers for the Trainers are Bugs Thompson and Cece Gray, both good runners and fair passers. All-High Center Bob Bell and End Jim McCauley are the line standouts.

Out Fishing...

By Jack Bell

MAKING A CONCERTED effort to break up illegal big game hunting practices in the Blue Ridge Mountains, 80 regular and special game wardens have been assigned to patrol 21 Virginia counties west of the ridge which will be open to deer hunting tomorrow morning.

In most of these areas deer were completely exterminated by countaineers who knew of no seasons. However, since establishment of the Shenandoah National Park and National Forests in the State, deer have staged a remarkable comeback.

It has been freely predicted that ultimately Virginia will vie with Pennsylvania, known today as the greatest of eastern deer-hunting States.

While Virginia is conserving game to perpetuate sport, it is on the other hand conspiring to completely remove fish as well as oysters from Chesapeake Bay.

ACCORDING TO INFORMATION now at hand, certain Virginia commercial fishing establishments adjacent to the shores of Northhampton and Accomac Counties have requested permission to relocate their stake nets beyond the present 20 depth line to the 60-foot contour line.

The League of Maryland Sportsmen, representing 77 affiliated clubs, has strongly opposed such measures.

Weakfish, croakers, striped bass and other species, because of commercial inroads, are waging a losing fight for existence.

It is believed if extension beyond the 20-foot depth is allowed, such extension would practically leave onliy a narrow ship channel and would have a disastrous effect upon the movement of fish in Chesapeake Bay, and leave the upper bay without fish for either sport or commercial fishing.

It is the understanding of the league that a meeting of the Fish Stake Net Committee of Virginia composed of U. A. A. engineers of of the Norfolk, Baltimore and Washington (D. C.) districts is to be held.

Sportsmen feel that the engineers have a moral if not a professional interest in protecting the heritage of the many as against the interests of certain commercial fishing interests.

Canadians Vote Filchock Berth on All-Star Team

Toronto, Nov. 13 (AP).—Frank Filchock, banned from pro football in the United States for failure to report a bribe attempt, today was named to the all-star team of the Canadian Interprovincial Rugby Football Union by coaches and sportswriters.

Three other United States imports, Hank Christman of Villanova Pa.; Herb Trawick of Pittsburgh and Virgil Wagner of Belleville, Ill., also were named on the all-star team. Filchock was named quarterback.

Filchock, who played last year with the New York Giants of the National Football League, also was barred by the Rugby Union at the start of the season but was declared eligible at midseason. Filchock played this season with the Hamilton Tigers.

Hamilton PoohPoohs 'Great' Irish—He'll Take Penn

By The Associated Press

Annapolis Md., Nov. 13.—Coach Tom Hamilton of Navy not only doesn't agree that the unbeaten Irish eleven is "great," but he said today "I believe Penn could beat Notre Dame."

This is the second time Hamilton expressed first-hand doubt of the greatness of the South Bend juggernaut. After his Middies took a 27-0 lacing from the Irish, he said Notre Dame was weak on the ground while powerful in passing.

A couple days later Notre Dame in whipping Army gained 361 yards on the ground and only 28 yards passing.

Navy also has been trimmed by Penn, 21-0, and today Hamilton said "I believe Penn could beat Notre Dame because it is more versatile."

He reiterated that the Irish have great passers, "but Penn has a standout player in (Skippy) Minisi, who can do everything, and a host of other backs who can run and pass.

"From tackle to tackle, the lines are even, but Notre Dame has an edge at ends. It would be a whale of a game if these teams played each other, but I believe I'd take Penn."

Calvados 2d in 2½ Mile Event

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 13.—With Jockey Conn McCreary standing up in the saddle and waving his whip at the crowd, the Mill River Stable's Miss Grillo jogged into the finish line 40 lengths in front of the closest opposition in the sixteenth running of the $25,000 Added Pimlico Cup Handicap today

Seldom in the long history of racing at this point has a horse won as easily as did Miss Grillo—Whirlaway's walk-over in the Pimlico Special is one exception—in the marathon test of 2½ miles.

The South-American bred mare came home more than a sixteenth of a mile in advance of the Lazy F. Ranch's Calvados. Another length and a half back was Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Halconero. A distant ofurth and last was Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree.

Miss Grillo, in making amends for her defeat by Halconero in the Exterminator here, returned a $3 win mutuel. Her time over a track still dull from early week rains was 4:29 4/5. A crowl of 14,000 saw the "race".

Some fans believe Jockey Eddie Arcaro allowed Miss Grillo to drop too far back in the Exterminator and it was evident from the start of today's effort that Trainer H. A. Luro had given McCreary different instructions.

McCreary kept Miss Grillo close up from the start. Shivaree did the expected and went to the front at the break. Halconero and Calvados were closest with Miss Grillo trailing through the first mile.

The victory was the fourth of the year in 14 tries for Miss Grillo and she earned $19,200 to bring her 1947 total to $79,480.

Bowie Opens 14-Day Meet Today

Maryland's major racing season moves into the final phase today with the opening of a 14-day meeting at nearby Bowie under the auspices of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association. Post time for the first race is 1 p. m.

Patrons of the Prince Georges County course will have to wait until Saturday for the $10,000 added Lynch Memorial, the first big event of the session, but the opening program is a well-rounded one to be featured by the Cherrystone.

A field of 11 fleet horses has been named for the battle of six furlongs with the Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol, assigned 122 pounds, the probable favorite.

Opposing the sprint ace of the Art Rooney-owned barn will be such as Gorget, Music, Flood Town as well as the one-time half-mile greats—Meetmenow and Annie's Dream.

Four other short races have been programmed. One test is a mile and a sixteenth and another at a mile and an eighth. What the card may lack in class, it makes up numerically with limit fields slated to vie in at least six events.

In addition to the Lynch Memorial, five other big purses will be decided before the turf action hereabouts goes to Charles Town. The Burch Memorial Bowie Breeds' Stake are booked November 19 with the Prince Georges Autumn Handicap on November 22; the Endurance Handicap on November 27 (Thanksgiving) and the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial Handicap on November 30 (closing day). All these fixtures carry $10,000 in added money.

Bill Bennings Says

At Bowie.

DEAR FOLKS: According to Frank Cronan who is beating the publicity drums, the Bowie plant is spic and span and awaiting big business. With the exception of New England, the nearby course has the only action in the East. Bowie has come a long ways since the early days when it was virtually impossible to get there by auto and many of the customers traveled by flat car on the old Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis electric line. Old timers will recall the craps and three-card Monte games going and coming. Then there was "Longshot Red" who guaranteed 10-1 shots and was a dice shark of better than average ability. The track was almost exclusively a men's affair in those days.

A few guys with their gals went first class on the two parlor cars. However, for the most part, it was racing in the rough. A fire took away the old wooden stands. Bowie perked up after that. Improved roads and train service came and the "track in the pines" finally came into its own. Bowie once again will have messenger service for betting available to customers who want it. These fellows, who did a nice job last year, make their way on tips. The system was introduced in this area at Bowie last year. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

Solunar Tables

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

Fiesta has sparked up its floor show by adding funnyman Alen Drake and songstress Marylyn Kayser, both upper bracket entertainers. Bill Strickland's band will deal out rhythm until Hal McIntyre's orchestra rolls in next Wednesday.

UP AND ATOM. What gave Al Shea the idea of calling his Dubonnet Room group the "Atom Band" I wouldn't know. But it drove publicist Homer Humbert to write, "These molecules can jump from hot to sweet music before you can say 'Cyclotron.'" Smile, Homer, smile, before you call a Shea a molecule . . . The Atoms registered a thumping success at their Dubonnet opening, getting scads of applause for both individual and ensemble performances. Their dance music has a pleasant bounce, Stan Jones' songs are ingratiating and Carl Parker's organ soloing of such things as "Clair de Lune" and "Hora Staccato" completely charmed the dinner crowd . . . Manager Raymond Bruen of the Sheraton Hotel was understandably happy over his new music, said "They're atomic!" And they are. In a nice way.

Sedate Olmsted's was thrown in a tizzy the other night when a gent came in wearing an Oriental devil dancer mask that covered his entire head. What's more, he didn't take it off but sipped his dinner while his companions were steaking.

NEW! NEW! Marge and Gower Champion, shining young dancers now at New York's oh-so-ultra Plaza, have been booked into the Mayflower Lounge beginning Monday, November 24 . . . Sacha Lucas of the magic muted violin, is the new attraction at De Jon's on Connecticut Ave. . . . The Neptune Room is now presenting pianist Harold Mertis formerly associated wth the Metropolitan Opera Company . . . Sara Vaughn, Esquire song winner, opens at the Bali tonight.

VIRGINIA HOE-DOWNS. They seem to be having a lot of fun down below Alexandria these evenings. Frankie Condon has a new band at the Nightingale with Leah Matthews as the singer . . . The Log Tavern is a-leaping with the swing of Frankie Mann's steamy orchestra . . . River Bend keeps rolling right along beside the Potomac with "Piggy Parties" on Wednesdays, mammoth chicken dinners and George Stein's dance music every night.

Johnny Long's orchestra with his "Beach Combers" and Francey Lane will play a one-nighter at the huge National Guard Armory on Saturday, November 22 . . . Ray Anthony's band comes to Club Kavakos next Tuesday for a six day stay.

TOP SECRET. All of those movie stars and writers who were in town recently dropped into the Good Earth for Chinese dinners. "A fine time to tell me about it," I said crossly to Manager Jimmy Lee. He came back, "Well, they said they wanted privacy and we always take customers seriously."

Katharine Stinson wasn't a tomboy, but dolls didn't count for much with her.

That was back in the late 1920s when the Lindberghs, the Byrds, the Acostas and the Stinsons were making aviation history.

Katharine wasn't making history. She was putting together model planes at her home in Raleigh, N. C., and looking into the sky with all the despair of a grounded sparrow.

Today, at 29, she is assistant chief of the specifications staff of the Civil Aeronautics Administration—one of the few women aeronautical engineers in the country.

Miss Stinson, who lives at 4704 Chevy Chase blvd., Chevy Chase, Md., recalls that she got over that "grounded sparrow" feeling when she took her first plane ride. That first flight is still vivid in her memory. And with reason! It was with that fabulous pioneer of aviation, that guy who flew by the seat of his pants . . . the late Eddie Stinson.

She was 10 when Eddie (no relation) visited Raleigh. Somebody told the famous flier about the aviation struck kid—and Stinson met Stinson.

Eddie usually collected $10 a ride but Katharine went for free. After that ride, other kids could have Lindbergh as their hero; Katharine, thank you, was on Eddie Stinson's team.

Eddie, who died of crash injuries on January 26, 1932, would be proud of his namesake. Today she is a scientist of aviation. She and the others of the CAA are the policemen of air safety for those who fly in the Nation's 100,000 civil aircraft.

KATHERINE STINSON

When a "bug" is found in any type of civil aircraft—whether it be a 54-passenger airliner or a private two-seater—Katharine sends a bulletin to every owner of this type of plane in the country. They are told what changes must be made before their planes can be flown again.

The "bugs" can't always be ironed out with a sliderule. In 1943 one type of small plane was found to have a weak structure. There were several hundred planes of this type in the United States. Their owners received orders from the CAA to ground them until a remedy could be found and changes recommended.

There had been eight crashes of the faulty type plane and half of them produced fatalities. Even so, Katharine decided the best way to learn what was wrong was to fly the plane. She is gifted with the same calm determination which characterized the late Amelia Earhart.

Katharine and another CAA engineer went to a field near Butler, Pa. First they put the plane through ground tests. Then they took it up and put it through spins, dives and rolls.

The wings vibrated like harp strings but stayed on. They knew definitely now what was wrong.

Wasn't she frightened?

"No reason to be," says Katharine in a soft Carolina drawl. "We had 27 parachutes."

Katharine is understating the case. When the wings of a plane tear loose in a dive even parachutes are poor insurance.

Following this test, the CAA instructed owners of the faulty type plane what changes should be made in the wing structure. There were no more reports of collapsed wings.

But Katharine in not a "lady test pilot" or 'stunter." The CAA considers her too valuable for that. During the war the Army asked the CAA to redesign light planes so they could be converted into gliders.

"It wasn't much of a problem," says Katharine. "I figured it out in one day."

Two necessary steps were removal of the prop and engine. The hard part was shifting the center of balance.

It was only a day's work to Katharine, but it meant that light planes then coming off the assembly line could be easily converted into gliders for the Army.

She is also valuable to the CAA as a coordinator of recommendations from different CAA engineers They don't always agree. Her job is to see that they do. It is a job that only an engineer could undertake and only a diplomat could accomplish.

Katharine's training in aeronautical engineering was gained at North Carolina State College. She was graduated in 1941.

FBI Brought Into Rockefeller Kin Fight

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Anne "Fifi" McCormick testified in a child custody trial today she had suggested an FBI investigation of her socially prominent sister-in-law's application to serve in the Wac.

She did this, she said in reply to a question, because:

"I understood from my aviator son that the United States Government in this war was very particular about the nervous equilibrium of their people, and that many people with nervous tendencies were screened out."

The sister-in-law, Mrs. Muriel McCormick Hubbard of Middletown, Conn., served in the Wac after relinquishing custody of two adopted children to qualify for admission. Her brother, Fowler McCormick, chairman of the International Harvester Co., is opposing her attempts to regain them, contending she is an alcoholic and unfit to care for them.

Mrs. McCormick, who has become the star witness so far in the trial now in its third week, was questioned about statements she made in a letter sent February 23, 1943, to Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, then commander of the Wac.

She said information that Mrs. Hubbard had been attended by a psychiatric nurse came from McCormick. She added that her husband recommended the nurse at the time Mrs. Hubbard had a breakdown in 1938.

"What was your purpose in writing this to Mrs. Hobby?" Leslie Vogel, Mrs. Hubbard's lawyer asked.

"I thought she should have it, it would give her an opportunity to make up her own mind about the suitability of Mrs. Hubbard," the witness replied.

"I should like you to tell the court what you meant by this statement about Mrs. Hubbard's parents ending up badly both physically and psychologically?"

(Muriel and Fowler McCormick are children of the late Harold F. McCormick, harvester magnate, and Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, sr.)

"They were both very ill," Mrs. McCormick replied. "You can become ill through worry."

CYPRUS:
ISLE OF DREAMS, AND NIGHTMARES

CYPRUS, British Crown Colony in the Eastern Mediterranean, has a romantic past. Here Richard the Lionhearted was wed, and Othello wooed Desdemona.

There's nothing romantic about Cyprus today. It's a morass of misery and frustration for Jews caught trying to run the blockade to Palestine.

The British permitted only one correspondent attached to the U.N. Special Committee on Palestine to enter Cyprus. She was Ruth Gruber.

In today's Collier's, Miss Gruber gives you an eye-witness report on this island way station, just an overnight sail from the Promised Land. She describes the pitiful plight of nearly 17,000 huddled souls, confined without plumbing or electricity, with insufficient water, lacking adequate protection against summer's heat and winter's storms. Yet withal, living, loving. Marrying. Raising families.

This is a picture to stir the conscience of the world. And Ruth Gruber paints it in a way you'll never forget. Read Sidetrack to Palestine, in Collier's today.

Will the Negro Elect Our Next President?

In 17 states, with 295 electoral votes, the Negro now could hold the balance of political power. These are more than enough votes to swing the next election. Up to now, declares Walter White, Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Negroes have not voted as a unit. Next year, for the first time, they may use their voting strength to obtain the square deal they seek. Here is a challenging article no thinking American can afford to miss. First Assistant United States Attorney John W. Mihelly will leave by air tomorrow for Tokyo where he will help in the prosecution of former Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo and 23 others accused of war crimes.

The assignment is not a new one to Fihelly who had prosecuted the Japanese leaders from December, 1945 to December 1946.

Fihelly said yesterday that he expected Tojo to take the witness stand early in December. The attorney will receive a 60-day leave from his post here.

The trial is in progress before the International Military Tribunal for the Far East in the War Ministry Building in Tokyo.

Circus Animals Abandoned On Farm; Caretaker Held

Seattle, Nov. 12 (AP).—A caretaker in charge of a number of circus animals found in near-starving condition on a Maple Valley farm near here was arrested today on a charge of cruelty to animals.

Ray W. Hinea, manager of the King County Humane Society, said he filed the complaint in Renton Justice Court against James Pearson and made the arrest himself. Pearson will be tried Monday.

Society investigators hauled feed, meantime, to the farm and also removed the dogs and goats to the society's shelter here. The Tacoma Zoo sent a man to look at the bears but decided their condition was too poor to warrant taking them, Hinea reported.

A total of 33 animals had been found in drafty stalls in a barn on the farm and in barred circus wagons.

The animals were left in the Northwest when a circus which had been touring Canada and the Northwest gave its last show at Tacoma last summer. Several elephants were later removed to Sarasota, Fla., winter quarters.

The circus wagons carry the name "Sparks Circus," but at Macon, Ga., Charles Sparks said he had sold the show in 1929, and is not now connected with it. Hinea said he understood the show had two or three owners and he was trying to trace them.

Swedes Discern Right Swing From Eastern Europe Lookout

By Lyle C. Wilson

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 13 (U.P.). This city is like a fire tower in a tinder forest, overlooking the troubled expanse of Europe.

It is a pretty good spot from which to get an overall, if distant, look.

What the Swedes see from Stockholm cheers them a little, despite the depth of their economic ills.

There is sound evidence of a small rightward swing in eastern Europe, where recent elections have partly tested popular feeling. Sweden itself may follow that In late October municipal elections, but she is not likely to follow it very far.

Picture in Norway

In neighboring Norway, the labor government has a majority of only one in the parliament. The Norwegian Labor Government is allied with the Communists there. In late October, municipal elections there was a swing away from the Norwegian Socialists and Communists, to the non-Socialist parties.

Denmark's general elections came in the last week of October. There the Communists lost strength to the Social Democrats. Non-Socialist parties did not gain.

For Swedish conservatives and liberals, there is some hope in all of that for a Socialist reverse here next year. But political observers do not believe it likely.

The government's opponents are hopeful that the Socialist majority will be cut down next year so that it will lack the parliamentary powerhouse necessary to ram through what are regarded as extremely radical measures.

Communist Pressure

Perhaps the Socialists themselves would slow up a bit but for the pressure of Swedish Communists. Some left wing Socialist voters might be won to the Communist party if the Socialist Government paused in its campaign for bigger and better things for the workers—more pensions, and such. But the Socialist government is not in cahoots with the Commies here.

Five major parties were in on the 1944 general election. The Socialists polled just about half of the three million votes cast, and took 115 seats in the Riksdag. The Conservatives won 39, the Liberals 26, Agrarians 35 and the Communists 15. The Communists cast 318,466 votes, a bit more than 10 per cent of the total.

Sweden is on the Russian frontier in terms of modern warfare. Her rich industrial plants and technical skill would be a bonanza for Russia and communism. The Swedes know that. This country doesn't want any part of communism. Therefore its greatest single expenditure is for national defense, with social welfare second.

It is these fat contributions to social welfare and to public institutions that keep the Socialist Party in power. What troubles some of the opposition parties is that the Socialists must constantly promise more and more bigger and bigger benefits to keep the voters happy and to keep the Swedish Communists off their heels.

Report Calls Bay Oyster Outlook Dim

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—Prospects for dredging in Chesapeake Bay are "as poor if not poorer than any time during the entire history of oyster dredging in Maryland," Ralph C. Hammer, State shellfish culturist, reported today.

"The absence of shells in the lower bay indicates that the scarcity of oysters is a result of overfishing, while the abundance of shells at the head of the bay indicates a severe natural mortality due to fresh waters in 1945 and 1946," he added.

Hammar's report summarized a survey made last month by the Department of Tidewater Fisheries with representatives of the Department of Research and Education and the United States Wildlife Service.

It was released at a time when the Tidewater Fisheries Department disclosed the heaviest daily dredging hauls reported from the bay were no more than 60 bushels.

Only Pembroke Bar, a portion of Cedar Point Hollow, was found in the survey to yield marketable oysters in the lower part of the bay, south of Patuxent River. Hammer attributed the "meager" setting rate of the "absence of spawning adults."

Few oysters or shells were located along the western shore except for Hog Island.

Maryland to Open More Oyster Beds

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—In response to requests to make more oysters available for the Thanksgiving trade, the Tidewater Fisheries Commission will open 17 oyster bars next Monday.

The bars to be opened are those planted with seeds or shells by the State, on which oysters are mature.

At the same time, fishermen were reminded that the crabbing season closes Saturday.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—About 25 editors and publishers of daily and weekly newspapersin the tidewater area of Maryland will make a two-day trip aboard the State yacht Potomac to observe oyster tonging and dredging in Chesapeake Bay, beginning tomorrow.

Officials of the Tidewater Fisheries Department will accompany the newspapermen. They will see oysters processed and watch the 16 dredge boats now operating in the bay.

Pastor Leaves Mount Rainier Church at 70

The Rev. Charles H. Frick last night announced his resignation as pastor of Mount Rainier Christian (Disciples of Christ) Church 33d st. and Bunker Hill rd. ne.

His resignation was accepted "with regret" by the church official board.

A desire to retire from the active ministry was given as Mr. Frick's reason for leaving the pulpit he has served since 1942. He is 70. A chaplain in two World Wars, he has the distinction of having his name on the church service roster with the names of his two sons—John C. Frick and Paul S. Frick.

When the then-chaplain Frick reached Army retirement age in 1942, he offered his services to Mount Rainier Church in the absence of the regular pastor, the Rev. Fred S. Miller, who was on leave in Army chaplaincy service.

Mr. Frick has been a minister 50 years. He was ordained in Lockhaven, Pa., and has spent 25 years in chaplaincy work. He was born in Newark, Del., and received his theological training at Hiram College, Ohio. His resignation will be effective January 15.

17 Colonizers Sail to Civilize Jungle Isle

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (AP).—A 74-foot tug chugged through Pacific waters today bearing 17 agricultural adventurers to a new life on a jungle island where there is no housing shortage or high prices.

The vessel named the Aster is a sturdy, Diesel-engined former Coast Guard buoy tender owned by Harper Henry of Los Angeles, who also owns the island of Chirote, off the province of Chiriqui, Panama. The exepdition expects to reach the island in about three weeks.

Henry didn't give newsmen a roster of the dozen farmers and wives of five of them but said they were friends of his from various parts of the Nation who were "thoroughly discouraged trying to live here in the face of high prices and the housing shortage.'

The Aster flew the Panamanian flag as it cast off yesterday.

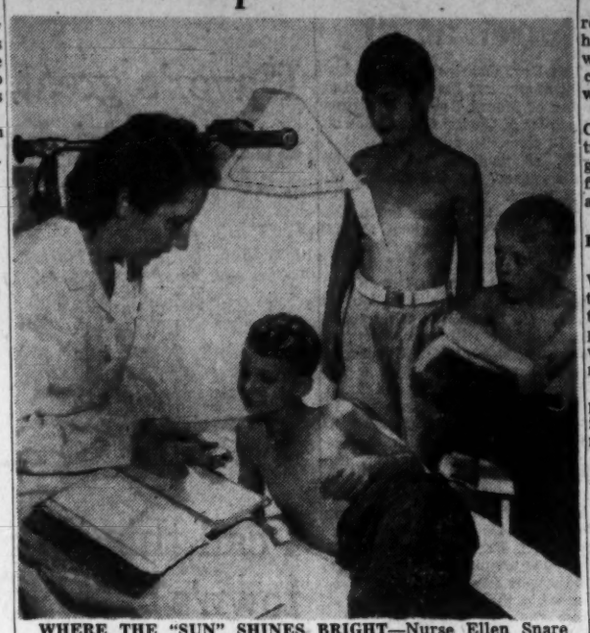
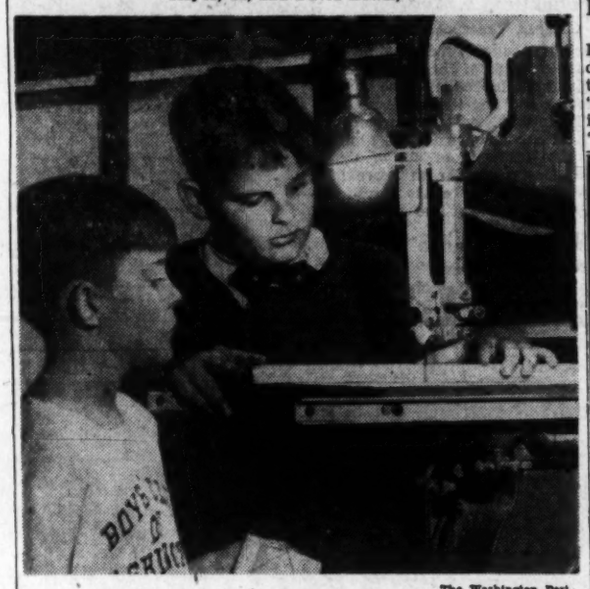
Via Boys Club, Unkempt Joe Made the Diplomatic Service



WHERE THE "SUN" SHINES BRIGHT—Nurse Ellen Snare times Frankie Wilkerson, 10, under the sun lamp. Others among those "wintering" at the Boys Club of Washington are Leon Hayes, 11, and David Lewis, 9



The Washington Post

OFF TO AN EARLY START—Joe Shelton, 11, watches Thomas Greenwelll, 16, operate the band-saw in the Washington Boys Club's modern wood-working shop. The youths turn out useful home appliances

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Call him Joe, if you like—his name doesn't matter.

He walked into a Boys Club one rainy night in wet, dirty, ragged clothes. He was unkempt. His hair was tousled.

Charles M. Fyfe, director of the club, a Community Chest agency, took one look at him and told him to go down to the shower room and take a bath.

"I'm not a member of the club, Mister," he said. Fyfe waved him on, anyhow.

Joe became a member. He didn't have any money, and you have to pay a small fee—ranging from 50 cents to $1.50, to join the Boys Club. So Fyfe gave him a job around, paid him $6 a week.

Joe wasn't eating very well when he came to the Boys Club. His father was a drunk and his mother gave him something "once in a while."

Eventually Graduated

The $6 a week helped. After a while, Fyfe saw him again, told him to take better care of his clothes, comb his hair—be a man. And Joe did straighten up. He got some clothes. Eventually, he "graduated" from the Boys Club.

Fyfe ran into him again about 10 years later. He was studying law, and paying for it by working at a night job.

"What do you want to be, Joe? Are you going to practice law?" he asked.

Joe didn't think so. He wanted the diplomatic service. Law was just a way station to that.

"Takes good connections to get in, Joe," Fyfe warned him.

"I think I'll make it," Joe said confidently.

Now in Embassy Post

And he did. He made foreign service, and within the past two months has left Washington for an overseas post in a United States embassy. You might recognize the name if you heard it—the name of this guy called Joe.

In a way, the story of Joe is the story of the Boys Club of Washington. In another way, it isn't. Not by any means are all the boys who join the club and pay their membership fee as poor as Joe, nor come from homes in such distressed circumstances. Most of them are just plain boys, in normal, healthy homes.

The Boys Club of Washington isn't a "bad boys" club—it isn't a collecting point for juvenile delinquents. It is a form of insurance against delinquency, crime, social evil.

Some of the boys who come are juvenile delinquents, true. But when they get interested in nontaboo forms of enterprise, they stop being juvenile delinquents.

Expressed in Mural

In the entrance hall of the headquarters of the club at 17th and Massachusetts ave. se., there is a mural, done by a 16-year-old boy clubber. The mural shows the background of American expansion and science. There is a boy in the painting, and he is being led by Abraham Lincoln into the future.

The mural is that boy's idea of what the Boys Club does. It says —"We've given you the background. The future is up to you."

Some people say the Boys Club is too expensive, an operation—that boys could get the same thing without the organization. Fyfe figures the Boys Club is pretty cheap. For every $50 you spend there, you'd spend $1200 in paying for reform schools, receiving homes, probation officers.

It' s all in intangibles. But more than 50,000 boys have held membership in the Boys Club since it was started over three score years ago—first as the Newsboys and Children's Aid Society—and those boys are to be found in every walk of life. They are lawyers, doctors, ministers, businessmen. They are good citizens.

Chicken Munched Without Baleful Glares

Yesterday was "eat-all-the-chicken-you-can" Thursday.

In restaurants and hotel dining rooms where last week you might have drawn an icy glare from the waiter (or waitress) if you ordered chicken, menus yesterday offered a wide variety of poultry dishes.

The President's Citizens Food Committee after five hectic poultryless Thursdays, adopted as a grain saving measure, reversed its field last Friday night and launched an "eat-a-hen-a-week" program.

But eggs were still verboten.

Public Trend the Same

The general trend in downtown Washington restaurants was for those who had observed the poultryless and eggless Thursdays of previous weeks to follow along with the continuing eggless-day mandate.

And those who had disregarded poultryless Thursday continued to ignore suggestions for eggless menus on Thursdays.

In connection with the Nation's first eggless Thursday, the Washington Restaurant Association, in the current issue of its magazine, The Restaurateur, asked its members to cooperate with the program to the "best of your ability."

John S. Cockrell, assistant executive secretary of the association, predicted that local restaurants will cooperate much better with eggless Thursdays than they did with poultryless Thursdays, which they disliked.

He said the restaurants are "doing a fine job of complying now and more are getting behind the conservation program all the time."

But if the restaurants were more agreeable to eggless Thursdays than poultryless Thursdays, not so their customers. As one manager put it:

"It's hard to break the tradition of eggs for breakfast."

Poultry wholesalers reported a slight upswing in business and said prices yesterday were at the highest level in six weeks. Dressed chickens were selling wholesale from 45 to 46 cents a pound.

AFL International Labor Representative Named

Frank P. Fenton, organizing director of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday was named top AFL representative in international labor affairs. His appointment was announced by AFL President William Green.

Shanghai, China, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—Inflation hit the Chinese courts today when all fines were raised 1000 times. This was still considered "cheap" since the cost of living index is 49,000 times greater than "normal."

From Rangoon to Washington

Burma's Witty Envoy Joins Capital Ranks; Chic Duchess Expected Soon—on Business

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

NEW AMBASSADORS have been popping up all over Washington. Newest to join the ranks is U So Nyun, Ambassador from Burma. His Excellency speaks perfect English, for his parents were among the first high ranking Burmese to educate their children in England. He is an Oxford and University of Edinburgh graduate and was admitted to the London Bar. Since then he has done a good job as head of the Rangoon Corporation, the equivalent of Mayor of the Burmese capital. He remained in Burma during the war and his business sagacity helped pull Rangoon through fire, bombing and other calamities in fairly good shape.

Like most Burmese the Ambassador is agreeable humorous and so quick-witted he keeps everyone mentally on their toes. His wife, who speaks little English, is a home body devoted to their three pre-teen-age children, two boys and a girl.

Incidentally, flag fanciers will be interested in the new Burmese flag. It is red with a blue field in the upper left corner. In the blue field is a single huge star between whose spokes nestle five smaller stars. They represent the union of Burmese tribes—the Shans, Katchins, Karens, and so on. The provisional President of Burma glories in a delightful name. He is Sao Shee Thaike, Saopha of Yawnghwe (or Chieftain of the Shan tribe). Now that Burma is starred in the news a good book to read is Gordon Seabrook's "Burmese Surgeon." It's a fascinator.

Gift Seekers' Heaven

BAZAARS ARE fun any time of year but for those beset with holiday gift problems they're a godsend. Shop hounds of the American Aid to France have ferreted all sorts of intriguing oddments for their Christmas Bazaar at the French Embassy next Tuesday. They are repeating, too, the gastronomic specialties which made such a hit last season. Tops on the best seller list are chocolate cake and French dressing. The voluptuous cake is whipped up from a special recipe by Annette, the French Ambassadress' famous Cordon Bleu. The dressing, simply gallons of which are sold, is mixed by Mme. Nicklin from an equally secret formula. We have tried it and our taste buds were in a dither trying to distinguish one lovely herb from another. From Paris, specially for the bazaar, Eleanor de Bekessy, one of Mrs. Joseph Davies' trio of blonde daughters, has dispatched a collection of about twenty snuff boxes. They are mostly Restoration and Directoire, of fruitwood, some inlaid with silver and all are quite beguiling. Mrs. Burrall Hoffman, who returned from France a few weeks ago, heads a Flea Market, like the Paris Marche des Puces. She has gathered hundreds of astonishing oddments, everything from jades and Ming vases to a child's pot de chambre! Prices range from very high to a reasonable 25 cents. The bazaar, by the way, is open at 11 a. m. and tea's served in the late afternoon.

Balsans to Be Visitors

IT HAS BEEN several years since the Jacques Balsans have visited Washington but they are going to be here for a few days around December 1. They are on the way to Florida and are taking time out, more or less, for the pause that refreshes. Mme. Balsan, who has weathered the years with remarkable grace, was the former Consuelo Vanderbilt. Her wedding to the late Duke of Marlborough was New York's most spectacular social spectacle at the century's turn. Her second marriage, to the gallant French officer is as happy as her first was disappointing. Though Mme. Balsan is mother of the present duke, her heart really belongs to France. She plays an active role in all French charities and last year donated a Renoir painting whose sale netted French relief well over a hundred thousand dollars.

Chic Visitor Comes on Business

SOON DUE in Washington is Loelia, the third wife of the Duke of Westminster. Tall, handsome, exceedingly smart, she is the British representative of House and Garden and is in this country strictly on business. The duchess is a sister of Lord Sysonby who lived with the Charlie Winns in wartime Washington. Her father, Sir Frederick Ponsonby, who became Baron Sysonby in 1935, was a great character in court circles, serving under Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, King George V,—as equerry, keeper of the privy purse and a variety of similarly picaresque jobs. Mere mention of the Duke of Westminster evokes a Noel Cowardish nostalgia for prewar Riviera days when his handsome Grace slipped from port to port in his yacht, played bridge for fantastic stakes, was chief pride and ornament of Monte Carlo's gaming halls and inevitable companion to couturier "Coco" Chanel. Evidently war failed to dim the duke's zest for living, to say nothing of loving, as last February he married for the fourth time. The latest duchess is Ann Sullivan, daughter of Brig. Gen. E. L. Sullivan, and decades junior. Her predecessors were Constance Cornwallis-West, Violet Nelson and, of course, Loelia Ponsonby. Each received a generous settlement and the privilege, if they wish, to retain the ducal title.

On the Party Calendar

MME. VAN KLEFFENS, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, entertained at a small informal tea yesterday at the embassy, one of the first unofficial parties she has given since she arrived in July and since her own furnishings arrived from home.

The embassy, one of the best adapted for both comfort and entertaining, was abloom with autumn flowers, arranged by Mme. Van Kleffens who takes special interest in that art. There are new draperies at the long windows, beige and yellow tones blended as a background for deep crimson roses, which the hostess had selected, and the half dozen or more lamps in the drawing room cast a becoming glow through the palest of pink shades.

Very much in evidence yesterday was Jansen, the Van Kleffens' French poodle, who immediately made friends with all.

More than 20 publishing houses are represented at the fair, providing a wide choice of Christmas gifts for the bookminded giver. There are five tables with books suitable for five age-levels, from the toddler to the adult.

Today the fair will be open from 2 to 5 p. m. and tomorrow from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. Tea will be served each afternoon from 3 to 4:30.

The fair is a cooperative project of teachers, parents and students. Posters were made by a student group.

U. N. Aid Seen as Hope of World

By Lucia Brown

More people will die of hunger in the next 12 months than were killed in World War II, Sir John Boyd Orr, director general of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, told members of the Women's National Press Club yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, Sir John termed the situation "grim and unhappy," with the world 10 million tons of grain short of meeting last year's low dietary levels.

"Why are we in this grievous condition more than two years after the war's end?" he asked. "Back in 1945, we thought 1946 would see the worst of the food crisis well over. Now it seems likely that bread rationing will continue in many countries until 1949 and there will be world shortages of fats and some other foods for years to come.

"The big reason," he said, "is that the devastation in Europe has turned out to be worse than we at first realized—the destruction of farm machinery, the breakdown of manufacturing facilities, the number of horses driven away or killed.

War Dead Sorely Missed

"The loss of agricultural technicians has contributed to the situation, too," he continued. "These men were the type that joined in the underground movement against Nazi tyranny and, as a result, many were killed in fighting or 'exterminated' in prison camps. They are sorely missed in Europe now.

"The terrible European drought this year has been the crowning blow," continued Sir John, a practical Scot farmer. "Before the war, Europe produced 70 million tons of wheat and rye. This year production is only around 41 million."

Conditions in Asia are even worse than in Europe, he said, with food as short in India as it was just before the Bengal famine in 1943.

The distribution of food is better there now, however, he said.

The present crisis is really more of an industrial and financial one than agricultural, according to the FAO director. Agriculture can't recover until industry manufactures the needed machinery and fertilizer. Many countries can't buy needed equipment abroad because of their financial condition.

Paying tribute to the American farmer, Sir John said that the magnificent increase in agricultural production here in recent years is now the salvation of people all over the world.

"Never in history has any nation been prepared to make such a magnificent effort to alleviate suffering and put the world back on its feet," he said. "Children yet unborn will be even prouder of the work of your country now than of your part in the war."

The United States is not the only country that is helping, however, Sir John pointed out. Rationing is still maintained at war levels in the British dominions so that the maximum amount of food can be exported. Last year, he recalled, Britain turned down an offer of United States coal so that it might go to countries that needed it worst.

"The hope of the world is for the United Nations to get on with its job," he said. "The different sections of the organization must get their work fitted together in a common plan so that the broken-down economic system of the world can be built up. The whole thing depends, too, on all the United Nations cooperating in the effort."

In closing, he asked his audience to remember that most of the nations of Europe are proud nations with ancient heritages. They hate to ask for charity, he said, and the United Nations fills a most useful role. If aid comes to them from this organization—of which they are all members—bitterness that could poison international relations for years to come may be avoided.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you tell me what can be done to seal up cracks in the tile around my bath tub?

J. S.

Ask at a paint or hardware store for a waterproof cement or a tile cement. Tile cement is not waterproof, but can be made so after drying by a coat of glaze that can be purchased where you buy the cement. If the crack is very wide or deep, the amount of cement needed can be lessened by filling the crack to ¼ inch from the top with strips of damp newspaper packed in tight. Also, another excellent material for filling this joint is a top quality caulking compound. Clean out the crack well and press the compound in to fill it full. The stickiness of the surface of the compound can be taken away by dusting with talcum powder. Another solution to the problem is to buy a metal strip to fit this joint. These are available at some hardware stores.

How can I remove two coats of casein paint from a stone fireplace in the living room of our newly purchased home? The stone is limestone, they tell me, and paint has been on it about five years. E. H.C.

It is not easy to remove all traces of casein paint from a rough surface, but with patient work this should do it. Make a solution of one-half cup of washing soda to a gallon of warm water. Moisten the stones with this and, when thoroughly soaked, scrub with a stiff brush. Work over a small area at a time. Should this solution splash or drip on painted or varnished woodwork or walls, it should be immediately wiped off to avoid damage.

I am to have a new sister-in-law and would like to have her meet our friends, perhaps at a tea on Sunday afternoon. Please suggest an inexpensive way to stage the affair. I have a punch bowl but no silver service. Is it too late in the season to use a punch bowl? Can a silver tea service be rented reasonably for the occasion; if so where? I am not interested in serving anything alcoholic. Is a receiving line in order for an informal tea for an occasion of this sort? Please suggest a menu for such an occasion and any other general hints will be greatly appreciated. C. R.

Although occasionally punch is served during cool weather, I think you will find your guests would very much rather have a hot drink. A silver tea service can be rented. Look in the yellow pages of the telephone directory for "Caterers" who also conduct a rental service of china, silverware, glasses, chairs, etc. If you do not wish to serve tea, you might serve a hot drink such as Mulled Cider or Hot Spiced Grapejuice. Either of these could be poured at the table from an attractive pitcher.

Usually one does not have a formal receiving line at an informal home tea, I would suggest you have the guests of honor and the host and hostess stand in a spot easily accessible to the incoming guests. Such a spot might be in front of the fireplace, before a large window—any place which affords room without blocking the way to the front door or dining room.

The hostess should arrange in advance of the party to have friends or relatives assist in the dining room, kitchen (if there is no paid help) and at the front door. This will leave her free to greet her guests in the living room, to introduce her friends to her honor guests and (if the tea is not too large) to see that all guests are invited to the dining room to be served. The host would double in these capacities, being sure that either the host or hostess is with the guests of honor at all times to perform introductions.

The number of women friends you ask to assist in the dining room will depend upon the number of guests invited to the party. If you wish to serve both coffee and tea, one at either end of the table, two friends should be invited to pour at one time. If the tea is to last for longer than an hour, it is customary to invite each woman to pour only an hour. When asking the women to pour, be sure to mention the exact time they are wanted, for instance, "from 4 until 5." There should be at least one other woman assigned to the dining room to replenish the tea table and another to stay in the kitchen to keep hot tea ready and so forth.

For food, I would suggest a variety of open-faced sandwiches, nut or fruit bread sandwiches, cookies and (or) tea cakes, mints and salted nuts. It is nice in planning your refreshments to have a color scheme in mind and carry it out in the food. The open-faced sandwiches can be made the day before and placed in layers in a closed container such as a roaster. Be sure to put a layer of wax paper between each layer of sandwiches and cover all with wax paper. Then spread a tea towel, tightly wrung out of water, over the top to keep them moist. Nut or fruit bread is nice with tea. This could be made days ahead of the party, for it improves on standing. Slice it thinly and spread with butter or cream cheese.

A variety of cookies, some frosted in keeping with your color scheme, are attractive and can also be made a few days ahead. Also, tiny frosted cup cakes are delicious and add color to the table. Fruit cake during this season is a nice addition to the tea table. Make your tea table as pretty as you can make it with a lace cloth, a large bowl of flowers and lighted candles.

Is it varnish that should be combined with paint to use on tin such as cans and cannister sets? If so, what proportion? Is it necessary to scrape the paint off the cannisters before applying to new coats? P. M. O.

Use a good quality of enamel to paint your cannisters. Success of your job will depend upon the preparation of the cans before painting. Thoroughly clean off all loose or scaling paint or rust by rubbing with steel wool or emery paper. Rub until the surface is very smooth. Then wipe with turpentine or benzine as a final cleaning. Now, paint with a good undercoater, (purchased where you buy your paint) and allow to dry thoroughly before putting on the enamel.

An aqua chenille bath robe was dry cleaned commercially before it was stored two years ago. When unpacked recently, several small rust-like spots resembling blood stains were scattered over it. How can I remove the rust stains without affecting the color of the robe? I prefer to avoid having to launder the entire garment as it is clean except for these few spots. What causes this rust to form on cloth? The robe was wrapped well in clean brown paper and stored in a chest in a dry room. R. T. B.

If the spots are rust they can be removed by spreading the stain over a pan of boiling water and squeezing lemon juice on the spots sprinkle on a little salt and let stand a few minutes. Rinse and repeat the process. If they do not react to this treatment, it would be wise to take the robe to a professional dry cleaner since home methods are not successful when you don't know exactly what caused the stain. Rust will form on cloth if a pin is left in the material when stored. Or, if the robe is lined, maybe the spots are caused by weights between the lining and the robe.

Sausage and Apple Patties
Salad of Peach Halves Topped with Shredded Cabbage
Mocha Cream

SAUSAGE AND APPLE PATTIES

2 medium apples, pared and cored
2 teaspoons lemon juice (about) dash of salt
1 pound sausage meat
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 cup crushed raisin bran

Cut apples into six ¼-inch slices. Season with lemon juice and salt. Combine sausage meat, onion, and bran and shape mixture into 12 small balls. Place balls between two sheets of waxed paper and flatten into patties, ¼-inch thick. Put together in pairs with an apple slice between patties. Press edges of patties together to seal in apple slices. Arrange in shallow baking dish. Bake, uncovered in slow oven (325° F.) 40 minutes, or until apples are tender. Baste occasionally with drippings. Serves four to six.

Food Conservation Reminders

1. For more flavorful and nutritious canned peas or beans, drain off the liquor from the vegetable into a saucepan, quickly boil down to one-half volume. Turn in vegetable, heat, season and serve.

2. Apples are coming into market in plentiful supply. Plan to use them often in desserts, as well as in salads; eat them out-of-hand.

Trousseau Gift Flown To Princess

PRINCESS Elizabeth is receiving a wedding gift—a complete trousseau—from the New York fashion industry.

New York Dress Institute announced yesterday that a satin-lined trunk filled with 25 dresses, suits, coats, evening gowns and negligees, has been flown to London so that "the princess will not be denied the right of a bride to a trousseau of pretty clothes."

The trunk, a specially built square chest of honey beige rawhide, lined with quilted blue satin, was delivered at Buckingham Palace yesterday. Its keys were turned over to Her Royal Highness' lady-in-waiting, Lady Mary Strachey, by Capt. T. M. Bullock of British Overseas Airways who flew the trunk to London.

Selected as representative of American taste and workmanship but conforming to current British regulations as to length and sweep, the wardrobe included six suits, nine day dresses, a fleece country coat, a wool city coat, two housecoats, two dinner dresses and four evening gowns. The majority of the garments are in British fabrics.

Samuel Zahn, chairman of the New York Dress Institute, announced the gift and gave descriptions of the clothes to the press. Stressing that the trousseau is a gift of the entire dress industry, with 1300 manufacturers and designers, Mr. Zahn said, "The costumes were planned to adequately, though conservatively, fill the needs of the princess for her public and private life during the next year."

The clothes are slender in line, and moderate in length, the daytime hemlines conforming to the new British regulation of 14 inches from the floor, Mr. Zahn said. They were described as following the color preferences of the princess, including navy and marine blue, pastel blue, pink and green, beige, gray, white and flamingo red. Youthful touches such as small collars, box pleats, puff sleeves and bowknot detail are included.

Accessories Achieve the New Look

By Peggy Preston

Just exactly what is this "New Look"? What does it mean besides longer skirts and how can we obtain it without spending our last penny on an expensive, new wardrobe.

At a recent fashion show we found a few simple answers to these questions that are plaguing womankind this season. Entitled "The New vs. The Old Look," the show demonstrated what a clever, style-conscious woman can do with well chosen accessories. It proved that no matter what we've heard to the contrary, it is neither difficult nor expensive to achieve that look!

Important thing to remember about 1947 fashions is that they seek to create a clean-cut, serene effect. During the war we used a fussy array of accessories in order to cover up the fact that most of our clothes were inferior, both from the standpoint of fabric and design. Now, two years after the war, we are obtaining reliable fabrics again. The cut and workmanship on our clothes is getting better. Our clothes are costing more now than they did two years ago, but we are undoubtedly getting better merchandise.

Stress Your Suit

So, a major idea behind the "New Look" is to stress your suit, dress or coat—and go easy on elaborate accessories.

Second point to keep in mind: It's not so much what you wear, but how you wear it. That, of course, is a rule that always holds true, but this year it is especially important. You can be just as fashion-right in an inexpensive, classic suit, provided you wear it properly, as you would be in a high priced garment which incorporates all the new, drastic style items.

In the two pictures above, a model demonstrates these two basic facts about the "New Look." She is wearing a men's worsted glen plaid suit. Priced at $45 it is finely tailored, trim and neat. Although it features a long jacket and longer skirt, it is not too noticeably different from your last year's suit, the one you've been thinking looks dated this year. She wears the same brown hat and scarf in both pictures. The big difference is in how she wears them.

The 1946 Version

At left is the 1946 version: Hat is forward and veil is over the face. Earrings are long and a large, ornate costume pin is on the suit lapel. Scarf is looped around her throat, hiding the neckline and collar. She wears white gloves and carries a short, stubby umbrella. Completing the chopped-off, fussy look are her flat-heeled shoes.

In 1947, at right, our model gets a slim, long, clean effect by rearranging her suit and accessories.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

1945

Fussy accessories were the rule two years ago as demonstrated here by a model who wears her hat forward with a veil over the face, costume jewelry and ties her scarf in a big loop. Short umbrella, low-heeled shoes and white gloves produce choppy effect

Styling by Woodward & Lothrop

Wearing the same suit, hat and scarf, the model achieves the fashionable "New Look." Her hat is back and veil has disappeared. Scarf is knotted neatly at her throat and her skirt has been let down a couple of inches. New notes are dark brown gloves, long-handled umbrella and medium-heeled walking shoes

Her hat goes back on her head to reveal the hairline and the veil is pushed over the crown. Earrings are small and tailored and she removes the pin from her lapel. Scarf is tucked in at the neckline and knotted in a tight side-bow. Gloves are in a matching shade of brown. New notes in accessories are the umbrella, with its long curved handle, which adds to the lengthening effect, and her brown leather shoes which have medium-height heels.

Soroptomists Plan Fall Conference

Soroptomist Club of Montgomery County will be hostess for the fall conference of the South Atlantic Region of the American Federation of Soroptomist Clubs scheduled for Sunday.

The all-day session, to begin at 10 a. m., will take place at Indian Springs Golf and Country Club.

One of the topics of discussion will be the region's project of sending Christmas gifts to its sister clubs in England. Members of the Washington Club have decided to send to their sister club in Taunton, England, purses filled with the same items British women find the scarcest, such as soap, hand cream, lipstick, and safety pins, as well as larger articles of clothing.

Brush and Hanger Technique Adds Years and Grace to Wool

Now that you've paid your last sou for a winter suit or coat you had better make up your mind to take good care of it. With the price of living on the upgrade it may be a long time before you can afford another new outfit.

So this is the time to learn something about the "brush and hanger" technique. It is not necessary to spend long hours babying a wardrobe and whisking it in and out of the pressing room. Thoughtful attention after each wearing is the basis of correct care for winter clothing, says the American Wool Council.

If followed closely, these common-sense rules suggested by the council will help keep your woolens smart and new looking for many seasons.

1. Allow for proper "breathing space" in the closets where you place wool skirts and dresses. Wool has a natural resiliency that allows it to fall back into original lines if shaken out gently and hung up in a roomy closet. Never jam your woolens tightly into a closet.

2. Protect shoulder lines by using broad, well-shaped hangers. Wide-shouldered ones which allow the garment to hang in natural folds should be used for suits and coats. Wooden or covered hangers for dresses should be sufficiently thick and wide to extend across the shoulders to both sleeve seams.

3. After each wearing, brush woolen garments carefully with a firm-bristled brush. Pay particular attention to pleated skirts and fur-trimmed coats and suits. Open pleats and brush between them in a straight, downward line. On coats and suits, turn fur-trimmed collars back and brush into crevices, seam lines and under lap. Hidden particles of dirt work their way into fabric with an abrasive action that literally wears out the material.

4. If you and your new fur-trimmed coat run into a shower don't despair. Both fur and wool can stand an occasional dash of cold water. Shake the moisture out of the fur, hang the coat up carefully and dry away from the heat. When the garment is dry, shake the fur to restore fluffiness. If the moisture on the fur had penetrated to the skin, the coat should be taken to an expert furrier so that some treatment can be used to prevent the fur's drying out.

5. Try to remember to carry your handbag in your hand away from your coat, to prevent harming the nap of the fabric. Never toss a wool coat over a chair and let it remain there for any length of time. When you have removed a garment, brushed and aired and properly hung it up, forget it for at least 24 hours.

Every few weeks during the fall and winter, all wool garments should be hung outdoors in the sun for a short time. Sponging is an excellent restorative treatment following brushing.

Younger Son of Wealthy Family, Estranged From Possessive Mother, Asks How to Learn Details of Trust Fund Grandmother Left Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am the younger son of a family of wealth. When I reached the age of 21 I left home because I was unhappy, also because I was being submerged by my mother's possessiveness, which knew no bounds.

I love my dad, but he is as much under mother's thumb as I ever was; and from childhood I lied and sneaked, due to fear of my parents. I don't like the terms "black sheep" or "problem child," and I feel that by proving my independence I have outgrown these labels.

Financially I am not well off, although I have a good job and don't ask my parents for any assistance. My brother, more power to him, is at the top of the heap, so to speak, having stepped into my father's established business.

Wants to Avoid Legal Battling

RECENTLY I lost my grandmother, who was my real buddy and confidante. In settling her estate, my mother informed me that my inheritance consists of a trust fund which names mother as trustee. The details are a big secret, not divulged to me, and I think I have a right to know.

I have asked for a copy of the will, to which I am legally entitled; but my family hasn't provided this and it is my belief that they don't intend to. They have never trusted me.

I don't want to hurt my family and I know my mother's power. Up to a few years ago it was my greatest fear. Please advise me, how can I get an accounting of my inheritance? Taking legal steps is the last thing I want to do. Is there any other approach? C. H.

Will Is Matter Of Public Record

DEAR C. H.: You don't have to cross swords with your family, neither do you have to take legal steps, to gain a sight of your grandmother's last will and testament, assuming she left such a document.

Your family can't keep the provisions of the instrument a secret from anybody, because it is a virtually universal requirement of law that a will be filed as a matter of public record, as a first step in settling the estate of one who dies "testate."

When the will has been filed, the next step is to determine the legality of the document, as is done via court summons to the person who drew up the paper, also to the witnesses, to appear and give sworn testimony concerning (1) the authenticity of signatures and (2) the testator's fitness of mind at the time of authorizing the provisions therein.

Photostatic Copies Readily Available

THUS if your grandmother's estate has been settled, or if indeed it is still in process of distribution, the will is on file in the jurisdiction where she maintained her permanent or legal residence. You will find it in the office of the Registrar of Wills or the Probate Court or the Surrogate's Court, as the case may be.

As such, it is available for any caller's inspection; and if you shrink from making a personal appearance for that purpose, you may send a mail order for a photostatic copy of the document. These are furnished on request at nominal cost.

One thing more: If your grandmother has left funds in trust for you, it is logical to think that some banking institution figures in the picture, and is mentioned in the will. If so, that bank would be a ready reliable source of information concerning the principal sum, dividend income and other details of your legacy. M. H.

SUNDAY: Sister asks sympathetic suggestions for chivalrous brother, who loves fine girl from bad background, despite militant disapproval of his parents.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Starving Is Not Way to Reduce

By Ida Jean Kain

The sensation of hunger is more intense than appetite, and not nearly so pleasant. Real hunger is a sharp, hollow feeling in the pit of the stomach when it is empty. The pangs are caused by the so-called hunger contractions. If too long a time elapses before food is eaten, the hunger sensation may be accompanied by a headache, weakness and irritability. Food is needed.

Does the overweight need food when she feels hunger? Certainly! Many an overweight will write that she has tried to reduce, in fact that she has gone with almost no food for two or three days at a stretch, but she always feels so weak and dizzy she has to go back to eating. Quite sensibly she has concluded that it is better to be 50 or 75 pounds overweight than to feel ill. But she wants to know why this happens to her.

Fat Stores Energy

It would happen to anyone. The excess pounds, whatever their number, represent reserve energy—in other words, calories which were not needed for energy at the time they were eaten, and were stored.

We can't live by fat alone, and that is all the stored pounds represent—fat. There is no regulating material to keep the body humming smoothly like a well-tuned engine.

How can one reduce? By covering the basic essential needs, but keeping the fuel content, as measured in terms of calories, below the amount needed to cover daily activity. Then the excess fat is tapped for energy, and you lose weight.

Eliminate All Starches

The foods best eliminated from the menu are the concentrated fats, butter, cream, gravies, pastries, mayonnaise etc; and the sugars and excess starches. One starchy food with a meal is a good rule to follow while trying to reduce. Not only do these concentrated foods furnish too many calories for reducing purposes, but they furnish the same kind of material that is stored in the excess pounds.

VARIOUS stages in creating her highly decorative figurines are shown in this picture of talented Kathi Urbach, at work in her Silver Spring studio. Two of the figurines—colorful Mexican dancing girls will be sold for the benefit of French children on November 18 at the American Aid to France Bazaar at the French Embassy

Basement Studio Dolls

Young Mrs. Urbach's Figurines Capture Charms of Many Lands

By Lucia Brown

THE CAMBODIAN BEAUTY is going to Hollywood and Mme. Pompadour to Rio de Janeiro, but the Mexican dancing girls are staying in Washington for the American Aid to France bazaar.

All are figurines, the work of a gifted local girl, Kathi Urbach of Silver Spring, Md. She makes them of wire, clay and cloth in the basement studio of her home, and sells them in smart shops scattered through the Americas.

Two of them—a pair of colorful Mexican dancers—she has donated to the Aid to France to be sold for the benefit of French children, at the bazaar to be held at the French Embassy on November 18.

Still in her early 20s, Kathi Urbach made the first of her unique figurines only two years ago. For her own amusement she modeled a small, brown Guatemalan peasant girl. When her husband, Everett Urbach (a physicist at the Naval Research Laboratory) and friends showed enthusiasm she started making the figurines as gifts. It wasn't long before a demand for them developed at a leading store to be sold as unusual decorative pieces for fine homes. Now, with the aid of two assistants, she's turning out 25 a week and selling them in Havana and Rio, as well as in this country.

Costumes Are Authentic

Kathi's graceful and engaging figurines are known for their authentic detail. Costumes are faithful to those of the country or people they represent. The slender, delicate hands really look like hands. Their garments drape with a natural grace that can only be achieved with fabric. Yet they're dust, moisture and even water proof through a special secret process perfected by their designer.

To make them, Kathi starts with a skeleton frame of heavy-gauge wire. Over this she molds a base of cotton pulp, which she covers with fine ceramic clay. The figures are dried in an oven before being clothed in colorful materials treated with a plastic mix. As this substance dries it takes on the appearance and texture of china.

Features Are Painted

The skin and parts of the costumes are painted with oils. Features and hands (made of tiny wires covered with clay) are added. Many of the costumes are hand-embroidered. The final step is a sprayed coat of fine lacquer, low-fired, which gives the figure a protective coating.

A native of California, Mrs. Urbach moved to Washington about three years ago with her husband. She is a gifted pianist, having majored in music at UCLA and won a scholarship for study under Arnold Schoenberg. Although she studied oil painting at the Corcoran Art School for awhile, she has had little formal art training and her great interest was music and dancing until the day she started modeling these beautiful and unusual figurines.

Birth Announced

Dr. and Mrs. Jacques Kunstenaar announce the birth of a daughter, Patricia Claire, on November 10 at Doctors Hospital. Mrs. Kunstenaar is the former Gertrude Ambrose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ambrose of New York. Dr. Kunstenaar is chief of the international trade section of the Department of Commerce.

Help Keep Her on the Job!

Sickness, accident and hospitalization are no respectors of purses. But in the cause of common humanity, no man denies another medical and nursing aid when he needs it. That is why you seldom board a streetcar without meeting a Visiting Nurse bound on a mission. Hers is a uniform equally familiar in out-of-the-way rural districts, as she dispenses health information, stems epidemics, and cares for the sick in their homes. Her organization alone averages over 400 calls every day right here in the Washington area.

Ranged alongside her in the unceasing fight for better public health is the long list of clinics and convalescent homes—free or low-cost hospital and medical care. ALL of these humane services are sponsored by your Community Chest agencies. ALL of them are looking to you for aid to carry on. Don't let them down! If your ONE contribution totals $50, you are paying for 25 sick calls from a Visiting Nurse—$100 provides 100 clinic visits!

YOU GIVE BUT ONCE! In the face of this great need make it more than you intended to give!

Remember, 125 worthy agencies are looking to you!

"EVERYBODY BENEFITS—EVERYBODY GIVES"

Last year alone, your Community Chest agencies sponsored over 150,000 calls from Visiting Nurses— over 22,000 clinic visits in the National Capital Area.

Nika, The Great, Makes Like a 'Long Hair'

By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

HE PLAYS AS IF INSPIRED . . . PUSHES BACK HIS HAIR LIKE A MAESTRO AND THEN IMITATES ONE OF HIS MASTER'S GUESTS

Nika, the Great, a Capuchin monkey, lives with his master, Nicholas A. Dunaev, former actor, now a member of the Diplomatic Service and an author, at 1417 Belmont st. nw. It is said that Rachmaninoff was once a guest of Nika's master and ever since the monkey has taken a delight in trying to mimic the great pianist. Nika, who has a wife and child out at the Washington Zoo, was born in Indo China. His parents, however, are from South America

Protest Continues Against Race Ban

Demonstrators showed up for the third day yesterday at the new Whelan drugstore-cafeteria in the Longfellow Building, Connecticut and Rhode Island aves. nw., to protest the management's whites-only policy.

The delegation consisted of about 50 employes of the Public Housing Administration and the Food and Agriculture Organization, both of which occupy the building and employ Negroes. The protestants charge the Whelan Co. had promised, before it built the store, to serve any employes in the building, white and Negro.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Negro Vote in North, West Seen Decisive in Close Race

New York, Nov. 13 (INS).—Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, stated in today's issue of Collier's that the Negro vote in the North and West will elect the American President in 1948—if the balloting is close.

The nationally known Negro leader stated that the Negroes now hold the "potential balance of power" in 17 States of the North and West and that their greatest power, outside the South, is in nine of the biggest States. He said:

"These nine States have a total electoral vote of 223, and the party which carries them will put its candidate in the White House in 1948. Only 266 votes are needed to elect a President."

He said the other States, with a substantial concentration of Negro voters, have an additional 72 electoral votes.

He said the 17 States were New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, California, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, Missouri, West Virginia, Maryland, Connecticut, Delaware, Kansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Massachusetts.

White said that "at the moment" President Truman seems to be strong among the Negroes. He added:

"The question is whether he can hold what he has gained or whether the good will which he created for his party and his own candidacy will be overthrown by the actions of Southern members of Congress."

He said that the Negroes apparently have no enthusiasm for any of the current Republican candidates.

Truman Reminds Newscasters on Power

President Truman yesterday told almost 100 radio newsmen that their potentially vast influence on public opinion gave them a responsibility to present facts, and not propaganda.

The President talked for five minutes yesterday morning to a group of delegates to the second annual convention of the National Association of Radio News Directors.

Asserting that the presentation of facts can help this country keep its position of world leadership, Mr. Truman used a classical allusion to illustrate the alternative.

Should radio sink to the spreading of propaganda, he said, it can open the way to a soft speaking demagogue who might take over the Nation as did Alcibiades in ancient Greece.

The President jokingly referred to his own "Hooper rating," saying that he had been informed that his White House broadcasts reached 40 million persons.

Today's sessions, which are scheduled for the Mayflower Hotel, will include two panels on technical problems; a talk on legal problems of radio by Prof. F. S. Siebert, director of the Journalism School, University of Illinois, and a dinner at the Mayflower at 7 p. m., when Senator Burke Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), chairman of the Senate's Atomic Energy Committee, will speak.

Does Anybody Have Change for A 3-Cent Piece?

A few days ago we printed Valda Stotler's description of an old coin, and asked if anybody could identify it. From the response I'd say that Washingtonians know their coins.

J. F. Danner of Upper Marlboro, Md., says it's a 3-cent piece. Mrs. George H. Ellis of 2321 N. Jackson st., Arlington, Va., agrees.

So does G. H. Emery of 6310 Hillcrest pl., Chevy Chase, Md., who adds that the coin was made of nickel, and is worth as much as $7.50, depending on its condition.

All the other respondents agree that the coin is a 3-cent piece, but there's little agreement on the value.

J. Sunderland Davis of 1511 Franklin st. ne., says that it's worth from 5 to 15 cents (and is one of the few coins we've ever circulated that didn't have its value indicated on the face.)

Morris Elliott of 5620 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, Va., places the value at "between 5 and 25 cents," while Ted White of Edgewater, Md., says he had two of them "and got 6 cents for the pair."

Roger S. Cohen, jr., of 3767 Oliver st. nw., places the value at "less than 80 cents," and Mrs. Harry D. Helfrich, jr., of 911 S. 26th pl., Arlington, Va., says "my list says it's worth 8 cents."

Mrs. Helfrich adds that these 3-cent pieces were coined from 1865 to 1889 to retire the 3-cent fractional currency notes then in circulation. P. K. Stone of 321 Newark st. nw. explains that the 1865 issue was the one everybody saved — therefore it's the least valuable of the series.

Lawrence L. Clarck of 924 Jackson st., Eastport, Md., gives us some additional information. He says the "three pillars" on the coin are actually the Roman numeral three, and that the minting of these 3-cent pieces was discontinued in 1890.

The only reader who suggests that the coin might be worth more than $7.50 is Harold J. Weisblut of 52 Crittenden st. ne.

He says if it's in "very fine" condition it might be worth 50 cents. If "uncirculated," one buck. And if in "proof condition" it might be worth $20.

Even at present price levels, $20 in modern money should buy more than a 3-cent piece used to.

STREET SCENE

Kay Bollenbacher of 2150 Pennsylvania ave. nw., is our reporter for this one:

"Last Saturday I was on a streetcar which stopped for a light at 18th and the avenue. While looking out of the window I saw a man 'walking' a pet skunk in the park just west of the Roger Smith Hotel.

"He was a really beautiful creature (the skunk, not the man) with shiny black fur and a broad white stripe down his back. He was on a leash, and seemed to arouse no interest among the strollers in the park.

"As the car started to move again, I saw the man pick him up, and start toward the hotel with his pet in his arms. I couldn't help wondering how popular he was (the man, not the skunk) with his fellow guests."

EDITOR'S NOTE

B. B. of 4912 3d st. nw. writes:

"Thanks for using the item I sent you. I never realized what a fine job of editing you do, until I saw my contribution in print."

Thanks, B. B., for realizing that only a limited number of words will fit into this space, and that my job is to distill out whatever can be eliminated without destroying the sense of the item.

SANTA'S LITTLE HELPER

Mrs. Walter R. Bauguess of 236 Hamilton st. nw. suspects that she is harboring a brilliant economist under her roof.

Five-year-old son David spent last week poring over a Christmas catalogue, selecting the toys he'd like to have.

But because of current price levels, Mrs. Bauguess was forced to inject a note of realism into the boy's deliberations.

"I'm afraid that those things all cost too much, David," she cautioned. "Better go through the catalogue again."

Some time later, Mrs. Bauguess noticed that David was industriously going through the list again, and with a big black pencil was "reducing" all the prices.

"I'm making all the prices lower, Mother," he explained, "so that Santa can afford them."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Helen Dosik of 5731 N 4th st., Arlington, Va., submits the funniest theater sign of the month.

The Ashton Theater, out on Wilson blvd., recently advertised:

"Mother Wore Tights—also Selected Shorts."

NEW YORK—At Lake Success a warmonger tells this apocryphal story to prove that Stalin is really a sweet, thoughtful man: One day, while making a speech in Red Square, Stalin was interrupted by a man's sneezing. "Who sneezed?" he asked. There was no answer . . . He ordered the troops: "Shoot down the first row of people." The shots were fired, and the people in the first row fell . . . "Who sneezed?" Stalin continued. Again no answer. "Shoot the next row," he ordered. The shots were fired, and the people fell. "Who sneezed?" Stalin demanded. A man in the rear confessed: "I sneezed" . . . Stalin smiled sweetly and said "Gezuntheit."

The play script of "State of the Union" had the line "Who is Herbert Bayard Swope?" The movie version will include this line, but only in the East. The line was reshot, using different names for four sections of the country. The prints distributed in the Northwest will have "Who is David Beck?" In Texas "Who is Amon Carter?"

Buster Keaton's comeback in a Paris circus will be successful if he is kept away from night clubs, where Keaton can't resist doing a free turn . . . Paul Small, the agent, once made a theater tour with Keaton. In one club, when Keaton was introduced, Small warned: "Mr. Keaton's contract forbids his working on a night club floor." Keaton threw off Small's restraining hands and did his snake-dance routine, ending with a face fall. He arose, bleeding, and was rushed to a hospital. "That's terrible," Small groaned, while four stitches were taken in Keaton's forehead . . . "You think that's terrible?" said Keaton, baring his right arm. "Look at this—broken the same way last year."

The reporter who unearthed the London photo showing Adolphe Menjou posing with Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky, submitted it with the caption: "Of Maisky and Menjou" . . .

Ingrid Bergman is so busy making "Joan of Lorraine" that she couldn't leave the studio to pose at Enterprise with the giant replica of the Arch of Triumph, for a Life spread on the movie, "Arch of Triumph." Enterprise therefore dismantled the Arch, used three trucks to transport it to the "Joan of Lorraine" studio, set it up there—and Miss Bergman posed.

One of the owners of the Brooklyn Dodgers was asked if Branch Rickey plans to reinstate Leo Durocher. "Mr. Rickey has given his word that he will," he said. "Mr. Rickey does not break his word." . . . Richard Field is the new managing editor of Holiday.

People Back Friendship Train

By Drew Pearson

Aboard The Friendship Train.—One thing that Governor Warren of California called attention to about the Friendship Train was PEARSON —RESET— ..... that there was no official of the United States Government aboard. It is by and from the American people.

The railroads provided free transportation. Local citizens along the way donated the food and loaded the cars. A few patriotic leaders in Hollywood, such as Harry Warner, did the organizing.

To me this is important. It represents the difference between certain people abroad who wait for their governments to tell them what to do, and the American people who act ahead of their Government.

I was talking to a young lady the other day who half complained that life was much easier during the war. In wartime, she said, people knew exactly what they should do and did it.

To a certain extent she was right. Women worked for ambulance units or the Red Cross or the Gray Ladies. They all enjoyed working for their country. They all felt they were a part of their country. People cooperated on victory gardens; neighbors who had scarcely spoken to each other organized car pools. They got more exercise, were less selfish and enjoyed working for their country.

Then, suddenly, the war ended and a lot of this patriotism stopped. Actually, in our smaller towns it didn't stop—because you can't beat the small-town spirit of Americans when it comes to doing things for their neighbors.

But it did stop nationally. We disintegrated our great wholesome spirit of working together as a Nation.

Some people, of course, blamed President Truman. But while Mr. Truman is not a spectacular leader, it wasn't really his fault. It was the fault of too many people who started putting themselves ahead of their country. Business began concentrating on profit. John L. Lewis put wage increases ahead of his country. A lot of other people did likewise. That was the most tragic aftermath of the war.

Gradually, however, I think people are coming round to realizing that we've got to continue the patriotic spirit that attends war without the killing that attends war. We have got to think about other people rather than the almighty dollar and we have to keep on doing this long after wars are ended.

Rocky Road to Peace

The plain fact is that there is no easy road to peace. It is a long, stiff, rocky climb. It costs almost as much in dollars, effort and planning as does war. The only difference is that it doesn't cost lives. I think the American people gradually are beginning to realize this, and that this is one reason why all sorts of people, little and big, have jumped at the chance to promote food for friendship.

Seen and heard along the route of the Friendship Train: When the State Department one year ago proposed setting up its own overseas news service to get the right kind of American news to foreign countries, the big American press associations vigorously opposed the move. They argued that they were already distributing news overseas and the United States Government should not encroach.

Today the most important story to be told the people of Europe is the genuine desire of the American public for peace and friendship and their never-ending help. When the ladies of five churches in Kemmerer, Wyo., collect 10,000 pounds of macaroni for the people of Italy, that's not only news, but it's something the people of Italy should know about.

Drama of Human Friendship

And when the Lions Club in windswept Rawlins, Wyo., donates one large carload of milk and the people of Rock Springs, Wyo., stand in the snow for an hour to see the Friendship Train come through, though their boxcar was loaded onto the train at another stop, and when the people of Kemmerer drive 100 miles just to see the train, and the little town of Green River, population 3000, contributes one whole carload of food —then all these instances make an appealing, dramatic story of human friendship which the people of Europe should know about.

However, so far not one representative of the Associated Press, the United Press or the International News Service has been aboard the Friendship Train.

Fortunately, the State Department had its own newsman accompany the train and he has been sending daily reports to the Voice of America which, in turn, broadcasts the story of American generosity to the people of Europe. Also, the Armed Forces Radio has told the story of the Friendship Train to its estimated audience of 93 million in all parts of the world. The big United States radio networks likewise have been on the job.

Friendship Lasts

Acquaintances are pleasant and . . . Companionship is fun . . . But I am sure that friendship is . . . The only lasting one . . . I may enjoy the company . . . Of somebody I meet . . . Upon a bus or trolley car or . . . Along a busy street . . . Or I may use the telephone . . . And say a fond hello . . . To someone I have never seen . . . Or incidentally know . . . But mere acquaintances are like . . . The ships that pass at night . . . And they have left my mind as soon . . . As they are are out of sight . . . While friendship is enduring and . . . An everlasting part . . . of everything that brightens life . . . And warms the human heart.
